Fuselage Lands Near Workmen, Stunning Them

Huge Constellation Goes Down In Flames

CHESTERTOWN, Md., July 7 (AP)—A Navy Constellation transport plane crashed in flames near here today, killing the six crewmen aboard.

It was on a routine service test flight out of the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent, Md., with a crew from the Navy's transport squadron No. 1.

The burning fuselage landed about 20 feet from five workmen building a new house, stunning them and knocking them down but injuring them only superficially.

Albert Raleigh, foreman of the workers, said he heard the plane's engine's sputter. It caught fire. The left wing and the tail assembly blew off. He stood transfixed as it plummeted down.

One Body Thrown Clear

The workmen ran to the blazing mid-section of the plane as soon as they recovered their senses. The heat was so intense they could not get close.

One body thrown clear was torn beyond recognition.

A Navy spokesman said an Air Force flier in another plane reported to Patuxent he saw the transport go into a sudden 70-degree bank at about 10,000 feet and lose its tail.

The plane crashed about nine miles below Chestertown in the Quaker Neck Section of Kent County, across Chesapeake Bay from Baltimore.

Dozen Saw Plane Circling

It hit within 100 yards of the west bank of the Chester River. The tail assembly dropped into Langford's Bay, another Chesapeake Bay inlet about two miles west of where the fuselage fell.

A dozen persons told of seeing the plane circling above the Quaker Neck Section for several minutes before the crash. Some of them said their attention had been attracted because the engines did not sound right.

The way the nose was buried in the ground indicate it had crashed almost straight down. Wreckage bounced out in wide circles.

All of the crew members were from the Midwest and West.

Navy Plane Goes Down In Flames

This is what remained of a four-engine Navy plane that crashed in flames on the bank of a river south of Chestertown, Md., yesterday, killing six crewmen. The plane was a Constellation transport on a routine training flight.

GIs, ROKs Hold Grimly In Savage Hill Battles

SEOUL, Wednesday, July 8 (AP)—Reinforced U. S. 7th and South Korean 2nd Division troops were reported holding grimly in twin hill battles today while more than 6,000 Chinese Reds stormed the muddy slopes of Porkchop Hill and Arrowhead Ridge for the second day.

The fighting, 40 to 45 miles north of Seoul, was the most violent in weeks on the Western Front. It was the first heavy assault on an American division since the Reds began picking on one South Korean division after another in grinding assaults in mid-June.

Some officers thought the Red offensive against the Republic of Korea Army was intended to punish the ROKs for failing to sign a truce agreement.

6,000 Reds In Attack

Frontline officers said the current attacks were being directed by two separate Chinese divisions which so far have committed about a third of their force. That meant about 6,000 Reds were in the actual attack.

More than two Red battalions and possibly a full regiment up to 3,000 men beat against U. S. 7th division troops holding strategic Porkchop Hill, near Old Baldy on the Western Front. At least another regiment was pounding furiously against the South Koreans holding Arrowhead Ridge, about five miles northeast. Arrowhead is near White Horse Mountain where the Koreans scored a great victory over the Chinese last fall.

Fighting Is Savage

The fighting was of savagery unusual even in the Korean War. Starting at 10:45 Monday night, it raged all day Tuesday and on through the night up and down the slippery outposts in a welter of mud, rain and sweat. GI's used rifles, grenades, gun butts and knives to smash back wave on wave of driving Chinese.

"We counted 80 Chink bodies on one little 150-foot strip," said Col. Hal Randall of Los Angeles, senior adviser of the 2nd Republic of Korea Division at Arrowhead. "There are hundreds of other bodies out there in the dark."

Ike's Brother In La Paz

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 7 (AP)—President Eisenhower's personal envoy, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, arrived at two-mile-high El Alto Airport and was offically greeted by Walter Guevara, Bolivia's foreign minister.

Cab Driver Earns Case's Dismissal

TORONTO, July 7 (AP)—Taxi-driver Joe Lowery was arrested last month and charged with passing counterfeit $10 bills. He protested his innocence, saying he received them in fares from passengers.

Out on bail, Lowery gave every 10-spot more than a passing glance as the days went by. Two days ago he spotted a phony $10 bill and called police, who arrested Sam Krol of Toronto on charges of passing counterfeit money.

Lowery appeared on the original counterfeit charge today. His case was dismissed when Magistrate C. H. Thoburn admitted he couldn't tell the difference "between this and a good one." Krol is yet to be tried.

Tugs Try To Save Grounded Freighter

PUSAN, Korea, Wednesday, July 8 (AP)—Tugs strove today to save the grounded 14,000-ton U. S. freighter Cornhusker Mariner from destruction after removal of 47 of her crew of 53. The stricken cargo carrier is one of the largest and fastest of its type.

Still manned by her captain, Nicholas Telesmanic of Flushing, N. Y., and an emergency crew of six, the freighter was being pounded by heavy typhoon-lashed seas which lodged her yesterday against Lighthouse Rock off Pusan Harbor.

Nixon Will Tour Far East As U.S. Goodwill Envoy

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The White House announced today that President Eisenhower has designated Vice President Nixon to make a trip to the Far East this fall as a goodwill envoy carrying "the sincere greetings of the people of the United States" to the people of Asia.

Nixon will be accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and by officials of the State Department. The group will probably leave in October.

The announcement followed a series of recent demands by Sen. Knowland (R-Calif), acting GOP floor leader in the Senate, and other Congress members for putting greater emphasis on U. S. relations with the Far East.

Will Visit Korea, Japan

Nixon's main task is expected to center on efforts to counter the spread of communism in the Far East and show the peoples of that area that the United States is interested in their welfare.

Officials said both Korea and Japan are among the places the vice president undoubtedly will visit.

Informants said, however, that Nixon's trip would in no way be related to the Eisenhower administration's current efforts to win the support of South Korean President Syngman Rhee for the proposed truce.

In Line With Ike's Policies

James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said the Nixon trip has been "under consideration for some time and is entirely in line with the policies of the President."

Hagerty noted that other high-ranking officials have already visited Europe and the Middle East, and the President's youngest brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, is now in South America on a goodwill mission.

Czech Reds Ease Up; Food Shortages Plague East Europe

VIENNA, Austria, July 7 (AP)—Widespread hunger in some areas of Communist East Europe was reported today as Czechoslovakia eased up on the whip to keep sullen workers on the job.

Reports reaching diplomatic sources in Vienna said food shortages are affecting millions in Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Albania and Poland. Actual death from starvation was reported among some of the poor because so many experienced farmers have fled to the West.

The food crisis and smouldering unrest throughout Russia's satellite empire appeared to be the major reasons for a rash of conciliatory gestures by Communist governments.

Czechoslovakia was the fifth satellite to show signs of abandoning the big stick for the velvet glove in handling the restless people. In a sudden switch of policy, Radio Prague announced that the government has revoked a decree making it a criminal offense for workers to remain away from their jobs four times without good reason.

The law was issued only a week ago because of widespread absenteeism, a form of passive resistance which followed the suppression of a workers' uprising at Pilsen last month in the wake of a currency revaluation which wiped out savings. It seemed likely the law was revoked on Moscow's orders. The government said the law no longer was necessary because the trade unions had agreed to see to it that workers stayed on the job.

Of the Kremlin's satellites, only Poland and Bulgaria have failed so far to make policy modifications to meet the wave of unrest and rebellion. Poland officially denied last weekend that there had been riots and martial law in the East German pattern.

Bulgaria on Sunday announced a decree along the lines of the law annulled today by Czechoslovakia. Imprisonment and heavy fines were provided for workers and apprentices who leave their jobs or training without permission.

East Germany and Hungary have announced a 180-degree turn in their policy of communization, industrialization and collectivization. They are proclaiming a policy of less police terror, more free enterprise and more food and goods for the consumer.

East Germany today slashed the budget of its unreliable Peoples Police by thirty million dollars and announced the money would be used to produce more consumer goods. Spurred by reports of fresh demonstrations before empty food stores the regime sought to lure more farmers into delivering their crops by reducing their quotas and promising them credit.

Romania has increased food rations from its reserves and ordered an amnesty for prisoners.

Clerics Named By Witnesses At Red Inquiry

Important Evidence Presented To House Un-American Group

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—House Un-American Activities Committee members said today a number of American clergymen were named by witnesses as evidence of "extreme importance" was presented concerning Communist infiltration of the clergy.

Rep. Kit Clardy (R-Mich), acting chairman at the New York hearings, said the individuals were American clergymen but did not otherwise identify them or state the exact number.

Asked whether he would attack a clergyman if he were found to be a Communist, Clardy replied:

"I would not attack him. I would expose him."

Receives Testimony

The committee in a prepared statement said it had received testimony on how Communists "planned to and did infiltrate the ranks of the clergy" in the United States.

The testimony came from Benjamin Gitlow and Joseph Kornfeder, the committee said.

Gitlow was described as a charter member of the American Communist party who broke with the Reds and Kornfeder as once an "important Communist party functionary" who had an "intimate acquaintance" with Josef Stalin, late Soviet Premier.

Earlier in the day Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), heading a Senate investigations subcommittee, said in Washington he had no intention of investigating the clergy and that there is "no doubt that the clergy of every religion are good, loyal Americans."

In New York, however, Clardy said his committee was interested in exposing Communists "no matter where they might be found."

Will Verify Statements

The committee statement said also that in closed session Monday night Col. Archibald Roosevelt, son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, gave the committee "illuminating testimony" on Communists among the clergy and "urged us not to shrink from our duty."

Clardy said that after all the testimony had been carefully verified it would be made public in accord with the committee's policy "to forestall all possibility of smearing and defaming innocent American citizens."

Col. Roosevelt's testimony, however, would be made public as soon as it is transcribed, Clardy said.

Chicago Democrat To Succeed Sabath

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—James B. Bowler, colorful 77-year-old Democratic alderman, today won a special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Democratic Rep. Adolph J. Sabath in the 7th Illinois Congressional District.

Complete unofficial returns showed Bowler polled 31,509 votes to his opponent's 6,228 in the 373 precincts of the district.

Sen. McCarthy Blocks Ouster Of Matthews

Chairman Insists That He Alone Can Fire Staff Aides

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), insisting he alone has authority to hire and fire staff aides, today blocked a move to oust J. B. Matthews as executive director of the Senate investigations subcommittee.

Democratic members of the subcommittee took issue with McCarthy and said they will probably appeal to the Senate parliamentarian to rule on the question.

A majority of the seven-man subcommittee — three Democrats and one Republican—told newsmen after a closed-door meeting they had demanded that Matthews' resignation be accepted because of an article he wrote for the American Mercury magazine on communism and the American clergy.

7,000 Clergymen Termed Reds

Matthews wrote that in the past 17 years the Communist party has enlisted 7,000 Protestant clergymen as members, fellow travelers, or dupes. While stating that the vast majority of the Protestant clergy are perfectly loyal, he also said that "The largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is composed of Protestant clergymen."

Subcommittee members said after today's meeting that McCarthy took the stand that as chairman of the subcommittee he had the right to hire and fire staff employes without consent of the other members.

McCarthy affirmed that statement.

No Recriminations

McCarthy said there had been no recriminations. Asked if the controversy was ended, the Wisconsin senator replied:

"No. If any member thinks Matthews is not doing a good job, I'll be glad to consider it."

The three Democratic members —Senators McClellan of Arkansas, Symington of Missouri and Jackson of Washington—had protested earlier that the magazine article by Matthews was "a shocking and unwarranted attack against the American clergy."

Excess Profits Tax Extension Approval Seen

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP)—Administration forces today confidently predicted the House Ways and Means Committee will stamp its approval tomorrow on a six-months extension of the excess profits tax.

There was speculation, however, that Committee Chairman Reed (R-NY) would try to head off the long-delayed administration proposal with a compromise plan offering a personal income tax cut on Oct. 1.

Although still hotly opposing President Eisenhower's plea to extend the profits tax, Reed nevertheless called his tax-writing group into an unusually early closed session (7:45 a.m. EST).

The meeting was called to act on other items, but Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa) planned to move to take up the profits tax. Simpson was the key man in a switch that apparently broke the back of a committee rebellion against the bill.

There were indications today that Simpson would seek action on a straight six-months extension of the levy to Jan. 1, without major amendments. Earlier, the administration had accepted a compromise proposal which would have exempted firms making less than $100,000 profit per year.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) said after a White House conference today the tax extension would come out of the committee tomorrow and would be ticketed for floor action probably Friday or Monday.

Surgeons Lose Battle To Death

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP)—A 42-year-old Florida irrigation engineer died at Johns Hopkins Hospital late today after surgeons battled for nearly nine hours trying to save him through an intricate operation.

The patient, Brazilla Leigh of Live Oak, Fla., was suffering from an aortic aneurysm, a hospital spokesman said. He described it as a weakness in the main blood vessel carrying blood from the heart, which had blown out like a blister on the side of the aorta.

Twenty pints of blood were used during the operation, six pints of it having to be rushed from the Red Cross at Washington. The hospital said Leigh's blood type was OO negative, one of the more uncommon types.

The aneurysm or blister was reported to be about the size of a basketball and was filled with blood. Doctors said it was so huge it was displacing other internal organs and that an operation was the only hope of saving him. If it had burst, they explained, Leigh would have died instantly.

Doctors had transplanted the affected section of the transplanting aorta with undamaged blood vessel, and were preparing to remove the huge sac when Leigh's heart stopped. They massaged the heart to keep it beating, but he lived only 20 to 30 minutes longer.

MADRID, Spain, July 7 (AP)—Storms in Spain killed seven persons today. Some were struck by lightning.

Communists Accept Clark Proposition

Demand Effective Steps To Make ROK Observe Armistice

SEOUL, Wednesday, July 8 (AP)—The Communist high command today accepted Gen. Mark W. Clark's proposal to proceed with the signing of an armistice in Korea, regardless of South Korea's opposition.

The Reds, in a letter for the U. N. commander handed to Allied liaison officers at Panmunjom, said however, that Clark must take "effective steps" to make the South Korean government observe truce terms.

Contents of the reply were disclosed by Communist correspondents outside the conference hut at Panmunjom.

Clark had written the Communists June 29 urging that both sides proceed with the signing of an armistice despite the vigorous opposition of South Korea's President Syngman Rhee, who has firmly insisted on guarantees for unification of his divided country.

"Not Entirely Satisfied"

Although accepting Clark's suggestion, the Reds asserted "our side is not entirely satisfied" with the U. N. Command's handling of the situation created by the South Korean government's release of more than 27,000 anti-Communist Korean war prisoners.

Clark had made it plain to the Communists that the U. N. Command had no control over the Republic of Korea—an independent sovereign state—but did exercise authority over the ROK Army.

However, the Communists said a date should be set by the senior armistice delegates for a resumption of negotiations—which were all but completed when Rhee released the prisoners June 18.

The liaison officers met for five minutes at Panmunjom about the time President Eisenhower's special envoy ended his 10th secret session with Rhee in Seoul.

Reds Level New Charges

The envoy, Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, has been trying to win Rhee's support for an armistice on terms already negotiated.

Before the liaison session began, Peiping's Red radio broadcast fresh charges that Rhee has a new plot afoot to further block a truce and said the United States showed no "desire to halt Rhee's sabotaging activities."

The broadcast, quoting from a "special correspondent" at Kaesong, charged Rhee was working in collusion with agents of Chinese Nationalist Chiang Kai-Shek to "kidnap" the more than 14,000 anti-Red Chinese prisoners held in stockades on Cheju Island off the south coast. Peiping said Rhee was moving "large numbers" of troops southward to carry out the plot.

Today's liaison meeting came on the second anniversary of the first such meeting in Kaesong where the officers arranged for the first negotiations by the full truce delegations, held July 10, 1951.

The appearance of a conciliatory note in some recent Peiping broadcasts has stirred hope that the Reds are ready to give Clark a favorable answer.

Labor Layoffs Show Increase

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The Labor Department reported today that about 11 of every 1,000 workers were laid off their jobs during May, an increase over April but still equal to postwar lows for May.

The increase occurred mainly in the transportation equipment and machinery industry groups. May layoffs in most other manufacturing industries were at or below April level.

Layoffs in the transportation equipment industry, at 34 per thousand, were attributed to auto manufacturer's curtailing operations because of strikes in parts plants. Employment in the machinery industry has been on a slight downtrend in recent months.

May layoff rates in the electrical machinery, tobacco and leather industry groups were at postwar lows.

39 More War Casualties

Bright Reports $1,000 Offer For M'Carthy Memorial Veil

NORTON, Va., July 7 (AP)—Temus (Tim) Bright, candidate for governor of Maryland, said today he had been offered $1,000 for the sheets which veiled a memorial he dedicated to Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) in Baltimore July 4.

Bright, vacationing in the Appalachian Mountains of Southwest Virginia, said he planned to auction one of the sheets to the highest bidder.

The money received, he said, would be given President Eisenhower with the specification that it be used to reduce the national debt.

The Baltimore auto dealer said the other sheet would be offered the Museum of American History in Washington.

The dedication of the McCarthy memorial — a white stone monument — was Bright's opening campaign act. Among his campaign planks is one calling for free public college education for Marylanders and another advocating an elevated highway across Baltimore.

On Monday, two days after the dedication of the McCarthy memorial, police found lipstick and crayon drawings — including a swastika — smeared over the monument. The inscription had been altered to describe McCarthy a "destroyer of American freedoms."

The committee in a prepared statement said it had received testimony on how Communists "planned to and did infiltrate the ranks of the clergy" in the United States.

The testimony came from Benjamin Gitlow and Joseph Kornfeder, the committee said.

Gitlow was described as a charter member of the American Communist party who broke with the Reds and Kornfeder as once an "important Communist party functionary" who had an "intimate acquaintance" with Josef Stalin, late Soviet Premier.

Earlier in the day Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), heading a Senate investigations subcommittee, said in Washington he had no intention of investigating the clergy and that there is "no doubt that the clergy of every religion are good, loyal Americans."

In New York, however, Clardy said his committee was interested in exposing Communists "no matter where they might be found."

Will Verify Statements

The committee statement said also that in closed session Monday night Col. Archibald Roosevelt, son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, gave the committee "illuminating testimony" on Communists among the clergy and "urged us not to shrink from our duty."

Clardy said that after all the testimony had been carefully verified it would be made public in accord with the committee's policy "to forestall all possibility of smearing and defaming innocent American citizens."

Col. Roosevelt's testimony, however, would be made public as soon as it is transcribed, Clardy said.

Chicago Democrat To Succeed Sabath

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—James B. Bowler, colorful 77-year-old Democratic alderman, today won a special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Democratic Rep. Adolph J. Sabath in the 7th Illinois Congressional District.

Complete unofficial returns showed Bowler polled 31,509 votes to his opponent's 6,228 in the 373 precincts of the district.

Sen. McCarthy Blocks Ouster Of Matthews

Chairman Insists That He Alone Can Fire Staff Aides

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), insisting he alone has authority to hire and fire staff aides, today blocked a move to oust J. B. Matthews as executive director of the Senate investigations subcommittee.

Democratic members of the subcommittee took issue with McCarthy and said they will probably appeal to the Senate parliamentarian to rule on the question.

A majority of the seven-man subcommittee — three Democrats and one Republican—told newsmen after a closed-door meeting they had demanded that Matthews' resignation be accepted because of an article he wrote for the American Mercury magazine on communism and the American clergy.

7,000 Clergymen Termed Reds

Matthews wrote that in the past 17 years the Communist party has enlisted 7,000 Protestant clergymen as members, fellow travelers, or dupes. While stating that the vast majority of the Protestant clergy are perfectly loyal, he also said that "The largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is composed of Protestant clergymen."

Subcommittee members said after today's meeting that McCarthy took the stand that as chairman of the subcommittee he had the right to hire and fire staff employes without consent of the other members.

McCarthy affirmed that statement.

No Recriminations

McCarthy said there had been no recriminations. Asked if the controversy was ended, the Wisconsin senator replied:

"No. If any member thinks Matthews is not doing a good job, I'll be glad to consider it."

The three Democratic members —Senators McClellan of Arkansas, Symington of Missouri and Jackson of Washington—had protested earlier that the magazine article by Matthews was "a shocking and unwarranted attack against the American clergy."

Excess Profits Tax Extension Approval Seen

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP) — Administration forces today confidently predicted the House Ways and Means Committee will stamp its approval tomorrow on a six-months extension of the excess profits tax.

There was speculation, however, that Committee Chairman Reed (R-NY) would try to head off the long-delayed administration proposal with a compromise plan offering a personal income tax cut on Oct. 1.

Although still hotly opposing President Eisenhower's plea to extend the profits tax, Reed nevertheless called his tax-writing group into an unusually early closed session (7:45 a.m. EST).

The meeting was called to act on other items, but Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa) planned to move to take up the profits tax. Simpson was the key man in a switch that apparently broke the back of a committee rebellion against the bill.

There were indications today that Simpson would seek action on a straight six-months extension of the levy to Jan. 1, without major amendments. Earlier, the administration had accepted a compromise proposal which would have exempted firms making less than $100,000 profit per year.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) said after a White House conference today the tax extension would come out of the committee tomorrow and would be ticketed for floor action probably Friday or Monday.

Surgeons Lose Battle To Death

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP)—A 42-year-old Florida irrigation engineer died at Johns Hopkins Hospital late today after surgeons battled for nearly nine hours trying to save him through an intricate operation.

The patient, Brazilla Leigh of Live Oak, Fla., was suffering from an aortic aneurysm, a hospital spokesman said. He described it as a weakness in the main blood vessel carrying blood from the heart, which had blown out like a blister on the side of the aorta.

Twenty pints of blood were used during the operation, six pints of it having to be rushed from the Red Cross at Washington. The hospital said Leigh's blood type was OO negative, one of the more uncommon types.

The aneurysm or blister was reported to be about the size of a basketball and was filled with blood. Doctors said it was so huge it was displacing other internal organs and that an operation was the only hope of saving him. If it had burst, they explained, Leigh would have died instantly.

Doctors had transplanted the affected section of the transplanting aorta with undamaged blood vessel, and were preparing to remove the huge sac when Leigh's heart stopped. They massaged the heart to keep it beating, but he lived only 20 to 30 minutes longer.

Communists Accept Clark Proposition

Demand Effective Steps To Make ROK Observe Armistice

SEOUL, Wednesday, July 8 (AP)—The Communist high command today accepted Gen. Mark W. Clark's proposal to proceed with the signing of an armistice in Korea, regardless of South Korea's opposition.

The Reds, in a letter for the U. N. commander handed to Allied liaison officers at Panmunjom, said however, that Clark must take "effective steps" to make the South Korean government observe truce terms.

Contents of the reply were disclosed by Communist correspondents outside the conference hut at Panmunjom.

Clark had written the Communists June 29 urging that both sides proceed with the signing of an armistice despite the vigorous opposition of South Korea's President Syngman Rhee, who has firmly insisted on guarantees for unification of his divided country.

"Not Entirely Satisfied"

Although accepting Clark's suggestion, the Reds asserted "our side is not entirely satisfied" with the U. N. Command's handling of the situation created by the South Korean government's release of more than 27,000 anti-Communist Korean war prisoners.

Clark had made it plain to the Communists that the U. N. Command had no control over the Republic of Korea—an independent sovereign state—but did exercise authority over the ROK Army.

However, the Communists said a date should be set by the senior armistice delegates for a resumption of negotiations—which were all but completed when Rhee released the prisoners June 18.

The liaison officers met for five minutes at Panmunjom about the time President Eisenhower's special envoy ended his 10th secret session with Rhee in Seoul.

Reds Level New Charges

The envoy, Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, has been trying to win Rhee's support for an armistice on terms already negotiated.

Before the liaison session began, Peiping's Red radio broadcast fresh charges that Rhee has a new plot afoot to further block a truce and said the United States showed no "desire to halt Rhee's sabotaging activities."

The broadcast, quoting from a "special correspondent" at Kaesong, charged Rhee was working in collusion with agents of Chinese Nationalist Chiang Kai-Shek to "kidnap" the more than 14,000 anti-Red Chinese prisoners held in stockades on Cheju Island off the south coast. Peiping said Rhee was moving "large numbers" of troops southward to carry out the plot.

Today's liaison meeting came on the second anniversary of the first such meeting in Kaesong where the officers arranged for the first negotiations by the full truce delegations, held July 10, 1951.

The appearance of a conciliatory note in some recent Peiping broadcasts has stirred hope that the Reds are ready to give Clark a favorable answer.

Labor Layoffs Show Increase

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The Labor Department reported today that about 11 of every 1,000 workers were laid off their jobs during May, an increase over April but still equal to postwar lows for May.

The increase occurred mainly in the transportation equipment and machinery industry groups. May layoffs in most other manufacturing industries were at or below April level.

Layoffs in the transportation equipment industry, at 34 per thousand, were attributed to auto manufacturer's curtailing operations because of strikes in parts plants. Employment in the machinery industry has been on a slight downtrend in recent months.

May layoff rates in the electrical machinery, tobacco and leather industry groups were at postwar lows.

De Gasperi Agrees To Form Cabinet

ROME, July 7 (AP) — Premier Alcide de Gasperi reluctantly agreed tonight to try to form a new Italian government.

In a three-hour meeting with President Luigi Enaudi, the Christian Democratic leader urged that some other political leader be chosen, but the President prevailed upon him to attempt to form his eighth consecutive Cabinet, a spokesman said.

Czech Reds Ease Up; Food Shortages Plague East Europe

VIENNA, Austria, July 7 (AP)—Widespread hunger in some areas of Communist East Europe was reported today as Czechoslovakia eased up on the whip to keep sullen workers on the job.

Reports reaching diplomatic sources in Vienna said food shortages are affecting millions in Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Albania and Poland. Actual death from starvation was reported among some of the poor because so many experienced farmers have fled to the West.

The food crisis and smouldering unrest throughout Russia's satellite empire appeared to be the major reasons for a rash of conciliatory gestures by Communist governments.

Czechoslovakia was the fifth satellite to show signs of abandoning the big stick for the velvet glove in handling the restless people. In a sudden switch of policy, Radio Prague announced that the government has revoked a decree making it a criminal offense for workers to remain away from their jobs four times without good reason.

The law was issued only a week ago because of widespread absenteeism, a form of passive resistance which followed the suppression of a workers' uprising at Pilsen last month in the wake of a currency revaluation which wiped out savings. It seemed likely the law was revoked in Moscow's orders. The government said the law no longer was necessary because the trade unions had agreed to see to it that workers stayed on the job.

Of the Kremlin's satellites, only Poland and Bulgaria have failed so far to make policy modifications to meet the wave of unrest and rebellion. Poland officially denied last weekend that there had been riots and martial law in the East German pattern.

Bulgaria on Sunday announced a decree along the lines of the law annulled today by Czechoslovakia. Imprisonment and heavy fines were provided for workers and apprentices who leave their jobs or training without permission.

East Germany and Hungary have announced a 180-degree turn in their policy of communization, industrialization and collectivization. They are proclaiming a policy of less police terror, more free enterprise and more food and goods for the consumer.

East Germany today slashed the budget of its unreliable Peoples Police by thirty million dollars and announced the money would be used to produce more consumer goods. Spurred by reports of fresh demonstrations before empty food stores the regime sought to lure more farmers into delivering their crops by reducing their quotas and promising them credit.

Romania has increased food rations from its reserves and ordered an amnesty for prisoners.

Bright Reports $1,000 Offer For M'Carthy Memorial Veil

NORTON, Va., July 7 (AP)—Temus (Tim) Bright, candidate for governor of Maryland, said today he had been offered $1,000 for the sheets which veiled a memorial he dedicated to Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) in Baltimore July 4.

Bright, vacationing in the Appalachian Mountains of Southwest Virginia, said he planned to auction one of the sheets to the highest bidder.

The money received, he said, would be given President Eisenhower with the specification that it be used to reduce the national debt.

The Baltimore auto dealer said the other sheet would be offered the Museum of American History in Washington.

The dedication of the McCarthy memorial — a white stone monument — was Bright's opening campaign act. Among his campaign planks is one calling for free public college education for Marylanders and another advocating an elevated highway across Baltimore.

On Monday, two days after the dedication of the McCarthy memorial, police found lipstick and crayon drawings — including a swastika — smeared over the monument. The inscription had been altered to describe McCarthy a "destroyer of American freedoms."

Communist Police In E. Berlin Alerted Against New Rioting

Trouble May Be Brewing At Big Housing Project

BERLIN, July 7 (AP)—Communist police units in East Berlin were reported alerted tonight against possible new rioting.

The West German radio said trouble was brewing between workers and Communist officials at Stalin Allee, the big housing project in East Berlin where the June 17 revolt was born.

The radio said the workers demanded the release of comrades arrested in the previous rioting and threatened to go on strike and to march on the govenment headquarters again. Soviet troops had to be called out June 17 to turn back the workers when they attempted to storm the headquarters.

"Similar incidents took place in many state-owned factories in the Lichtenberg and Koepenick boroughs," the radio said, and as a result many police units were alerted.

Leaps To Freedom

Earlier, a young East German leaped from a second story window on the border into West Berlin, bringing with him an eyewitness account of how Russians used force to get so-called confessions that Western agents ignited the June revolt.

Soviet Maj. Gen. P. T. Dibrova whose forces quelled the revolt in East Berlin announced the arrest of Wrner Kalkowski, 37-year-old unemployed actor, and made public purported "confession" of being hired by American Army officers to stir up the rebellion.

The East Berlin refugee said the charges against Kalkowski are "completely false."

"I was with him on Koch Strasse on June 17," the youth said in an interview. "I was caught with Kalkowski while we were watching the riot. None of us was taking part in it, we were just watching. Vopos (German police) and Russians surrounded us and we were handcuffed and taken in big trucks to Karlshorst (Soviet army headquarters). The Russian guards there waved off our convoy and we went to the MVD (Soviet secret police) prison at Lichtenberg on the Magdalenen Strasse.

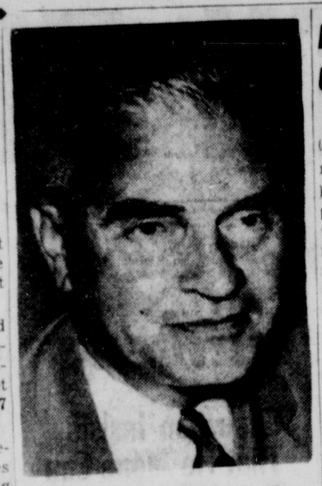

Three-Hour Hearing

"We were showed into a small room, about forty of us, and were given a hearing by a Soviet officer that lasted about three hours. The German police and SSD (Communist secret police) beat us and kicked us but the Soviet soldiers did not touch us.

"Later, I talked to Kalkowski and he told me he had only come to the East to have a couple of drinks and was on his way to the Labor Office at the time. He said he was sure he would be released soon because he hadn't done anything."

He added that he was with Kalkowski in the prison for two days when the Russians separated West Berliners from the East and carted all the Westerners away.

Since the opening of Monmouth Park in 1946, racing fans have failed to collect $235,655 worth of cashable tickets.

Senate Unit OKs Plan To Admit Extra Refugees

WASHINGTON, July (AP) — A Senate judiciary subcommittee today voted to approve an administration-sponsored bill to admit an extra 240,000 refugees and other immigrants into the United States in the next two years.

The full judiciay committee will meet to act on the subcommittee's recommendation tomorrow.

Chairman Watkins (R-Utah) told newsmen the five subcommittee members present approved the bill without dissent. Four other members were absent when the vote was taken.

In approving the bill, the subcommittee slightly revised the original version to provide for the admission of 1,000 persons who have fled from Red China.

The measure would also provide for admission of 110,500 escapees and German expellees from Communist-dominated areas of Europe who are now living in West Germany or Austria. This is an increase of 500 over the original bill.

The subcommittee left unchanged a provision for the entry of 15,000 escapees from behind the Iron Curtain who are residing in North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) countries, including Turkey.

Special quotas for Italians were cut from 75,000 to 74,000 and Dutch Nationals from 20,000 to 19,500.

President Eisenhower asked Congress on April 22 to provide for 240,000 special quota immigrants, saying it would show the United States is willing to do its share in helping to resettle refugees and to ease European population pressures.

The aliens admitted under the legislation would be in addition to the 154,000 regular quota immigrants permitted to settle in the U. S. annually under the McCarran-Walter Act passed last year.

Watkins said the bill approved by the subcommittee contains all the security screening requirements of the McCarran-Walter Act and "some more" to keep out any subversives.

EX-ALDERMAN NOW JANITOR—Edwin A. Hendricks (right), 66, who served 16 years as city alderman at Minneapolis before his defeat last month, reported back at City Hall this week as janitor and custodian. Hendricks, who is also an attorney, said "I've always wanted to see what the fellows did down here so I decided to take a first-hand look." If Hendricks holds the job three years, he will have enough city service to qualify for a $105 monthly pension. He denied, however, this figured in his taking the job. Hendricks is shown learning his duties from Lamonte Dehn.

Nuernberg Has U. S. Bomb Scare

NUERNBERG, Germany, July 7 (AP)—Highly valued art objects were rushed out of a wing of Nuernberg's Germanic Museum as a precautionary move today after a wartime U. S. aerial bomb was found near the building. A German demolition expert removed the fuse from the 500-pounder which construction workers nearby had uncovered.

Mother Who Beat Tots With Flatiron Insane

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 7 (AP)—The 27-year-old wife of a Baptist minister who police said admitted bludgeoning her two small daughters with an electric flatiron was declared insane today.

Mrs. Betty Louise Griffith was ordered committed to the Patton State Hospital by Superior Court.

Psychiatrists reported Mrs. Griffith said she wanted to kill Kathleen, 3, and Genevieve, 2, when she fractured their skulls with the iron July 2. She was quoted as saying they tied her to her home and prevented her from attending church functions with her husband, the Rev. Wilbur J. Griffith, pastor of a church at nearby Palm City.

The cool front was accompanied by brisk west and northwest winds.

Temperatures remained in the high brackets in Southern, Middle Atlantic and Far Western areas.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms occurred on a line that reached from Tennessee to Oklahoma. Scattered, light showers were reported in midwestern area from Northeastern Iowa to Michigan.

Dozen Postoffices May Be Closed

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Rep. Hyde (R-Md.) said tonight that the closing of about a dozen postoffices in Montgomery and Frederick Counties is "under consideration" by the Postoffice Department.

He said a definite decision has been made on Lilypons, near Frederick. That office will close July 15.

Among those definitely under consideration for closing, Hyde said, are Tuscarora in Frederick and Derwood, Brookville, Ednor, Ashton and Spencerville in Montgomery.

Hyde said he had received letters urging against closing the Brookeville office because of its historical background. The office has been in use since 1802.

Henry Clukey, 65-year old harness racing grandfather, serves as his own blacksmith in addition to training and driving his horses.

EX-ALDERMAN NOW JANITOR—Edwin A. Hendricks (right), 66, who served 16 years as city alderman at Minneapolis before his defeat last month, reported back at City Hall this week as janitor and custodian. Hendricks, who is also an attorney, said "I've always wanted to see what the fellows did down here so I decided to take a first-hand look." If Hendricks holds the job three years, he will have enough city service to qualify for a $105 monthly pension. He denied, however, this figured in his taking the job. Hendricks is shown learning his duties from Lamonte Dehn.

N.Y. Playwright, Mrs. Robeson Defy Probers

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — A New York playwright and Mrs. Paul Robeson, wife of the Negro singer, today joined the growing company of those who have refused to tell Senate investigators whether they are Communists.

Arnaud d'Usseau, co-author of the play, "Deep Are the Roots," told Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and his investigations subcommittee that he was invoking his constitutional protection against possible self-incrimination in refusing to answer.

Mrs. Robeson, 56, swore she is "a very, very loyal American," but she declined to state whether she is or ever was a Communist because an answer "might tend to incriminate me."

D'Usseau, a belligerent witness, had the hearing in an uproar at one point, and McCarthy asked Capitol police to stand by to remove him if necessary.

The playwright denied that he had ever engaged in sabotage or espionage.

When McCarthy pressed him to say whether he regarded communism as superior to the American form of government at the time he wrote "Deep Are the Roots," D'Usseau protested "This is your ball park and your ground rules."

He said he'd be glad to debate the issue with McCarthy on television but that he didn't see why he had to discuss a matter of opinion "where you have everything stacked".

Finally, with McCarthy treatening him with contempt, D'Usseau said he "most certainly" thinks communism is superior—using his own definition of communism. By communism, he said, he meant belief in the possibilities of peace, the rights of the poor over the privileges of the rich, and opposition to racial segregation.

TRUCKER'S WIVES TO LIVE TOGETHER—Mrs. Mildred Lewis (left) and Mrs. Ellouise Lewis told Municipal Judge Patrick J. Barton at Indianapolis they would live together to make a home for the children they bore their husband, George D. Lewis (right), held on bigamy charges. Lewis married Ellouise in 1945 and Mildred in 1949. Ellouise has three children and Mildred two. The trucker's double life came out when he ordered Mildred and her family to move in with Ellouise to save money.

Virgin Island GOP Wants Republican

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, Virgin Islands, July 7 (AP)—Republican party leaders have named a two-man delegation to visit President Eisenhower in Washington and ask him to appoint a Republican governor for these islands.

The men are Howard Jackson and William Greer.

Party members complained at a caucus last night that the Virgin Islands are the only U. S. territory still governed by a Democrat appointee. They expressed chagrin at the friendship between Gov. Morris de Castro and Eisenhower's Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay.

The islands are under the Department of the Interior.

Military Materiel Probe Launched

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP) — A House subcommittee began a quiet probe today into inspection of materiel being sold to the armed forces by private firms.

Rep. William E. Hess (R-Ohio) foresaw that the hearings might lead to "pretty strong recommendations to Congress.

Witnesses at today's closed hearing were defense plant inspectors who pass on materiel for the armed services. The subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee split up into four teams to examine them.

Hess said half of today's score of witnesses had no complaints but the other half provided some interesting facts about defense plant operations.

One, he said, told of being sent as a $4,300-a-year assistant to an inspector in an unspecified New Jersey plant, only to find that his boss had nothing to do.

"He was sent there, in effect, to help do nothing," Hess added.

Government Accuses Baltimore Florists

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP) — Two Baltimore florists were charged separately today in a $26,810 income tax case and a $4,500 mail fraud scheme involving flowers.

Howard W. Geary was charged with understating his income by about $66,000 over a four-year period, 1946-49. He was accused of underpaying his taxes by $26,700.

The government said Geary, 43, had paid about $9,600 for the four years.

Geary's wife, Mrs. Virginia S. Geary, was accused of knowingly allowing her husband to file false tax returns.

In the mail-fraud case, Thomas J. D'Anna, was accused of ordering flowers from out-of-town wholesalers under a fictitious name.

Prosecutors said D'Anna would make a small down payment on the order by mail. In one case they said, he paid the balance with a bogus check but later made the check good.

French Financial Reforms Discussed

PARIS, July 7 (AP)—The National Assembly plunged tonight into a detailed discussion of financial reforms and new tax measures asked by Premier Joseph Laniel.

They are designed to bring in 31 billion francs (about $88,500,000) in new revenue.

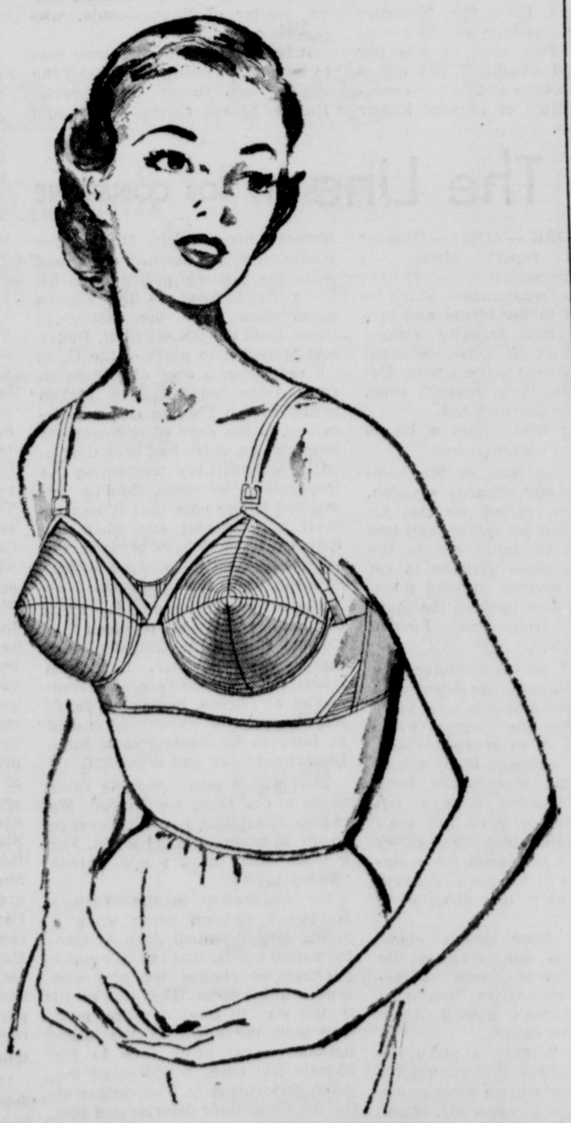

The finance committee of the Assembly proposed instead measures which would give only 18 billion francs (50 million dollars).

The Cabinet said this was not enough and Premier Laniel indicated he might demand a vote of confidence on the issue.

They Still Want Your Blood

"Make your pledge and keep your pledge; no doctor ever transfused a promise."

"Disease never takes a holiday."

These are two of the slogans being used by the American National Red Cross to remind us that we can enjoy our vacations with better conscience this year if we've paid a visit to the Red Cross blood bank before leaving. The aim is to offset the annual "summer slump" in blood-giving.

Collections by Red Cross regional programs and defense centers in May totalled 349,409 pints, almost 38,000 fewer than were collected in April. Collections of private blood banks co-operating for defense needs were 36,940, about 4,000 fewer than in April. If past experience is any guide, the slump threatens to continue well through the summer.

The Red Cross attributes the past summer slumps in the blood-giving pattern to vacationers' forgetfulness of the continuing need for whole blood, uncomfortable weather, the concentration of farm people on crop processing and harvesting. This year two other strong factors must be counteracted: the imminence of a truce in Korea and the public announcement that the Defense Department is using a synthetic blood extender, dextran, in place of plasma in Korea.

The misconception about dextran is emphatically attacked by Dr. M. A. Casberg, special assistant to the secretary of Defense on medical problems. "The use of dextran," says Dr. Casberg, "has no bearing on the need for whole blood, as there is no substitute for whole blood." The Red Cross points out that the armed services will still need serum albumin, a product requiring vast quantities of blood to produce. And military hospitals continue to need whole blood.

Even should fighting in Korea cease, there will be men in military hospitals who will require blood transfusions for many months. For example, whole blood is processed to make a "human glue" for skin grafts in plastic surgery.

Moreover, the Red Cross points out that in 1952 blood from 46 regional blood programs was used in 3,334 hospitals in the U. S. More than 55 per cent of these hospitals depended on the Red Cross for their blood supply.

The Red Cross and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis are co-operating to furnish a million doses of gamma globulin for treatment of polio. GG is a blood derivative; one major laboratory reports that it needs 78,000 pints of whole blood a month to process at full capacity, producing 40,000 doses of GG.

GG is even more effective in the treatment of measles, more serious than usually considered, and of hepatitis (liver inflammation). And it has proved particularly effective in the treatment of women who have contracted "German" measles within the first three months of pregnancy. Without such treatment the disease frequently causes malformation of children.

Point Four Revisited

It will be interesting to see how much stiffer the "stiffened" attitude toward indefinite foreign aid, noted among senators, will be when they hear about the seaborne Dr. Sorenson.

As reported in testimony before a House subcommittee which is looking into the spending policies of the Point Four educational division, Dr. Sorenson apparently was afloat more than he was ashore during the course of one year as director of the division. What the congressmen want to know is what his traipsing proved, if anything. As chief of the education and training division the doctor undertook 28 trips from Washington, including seven round-the-globe jaunts. He spent 34 per cent of his time on the high seas and his steamer tickets cost the taxpayers $6,781.96.

Well, maybe the director of a foreign aid program ought to be in the saddle a great deal of the time, but congressmen got a little confused when it was revealed that in a remarkable number of instances Lincoln, Neb., appeared on the world-wide itinerary. Why was this when the purpose of the trip, for example, was to look into rural developments in Egypt or to recruit teachers in Burma? Well, it turns out Lincoln is Dr. Sorenson's home.

Then came the matter of Dr. Sorenson's assistant, Dr. Thomas R. Fisher. Dr. Fisher, speaking for himself, said he hadn't been given a blessed thing to do, so, instead of just sitting in his office reading light novels and collecting his $9,600 annual salary, he spent his time in the Mutual Security Agency library boning up on things against the day his bosses would give him something to do. Apparently he and Dr. Sorenson didn't even speak.

The congressmen, looking grim and preoccupied, said Dr. Fisher could go along now. They were going to talk to his boss next.

Wild Bill's Bones

Now that the furore occasioned by the removal, in the stealth of night, of the remains of Sitting Bull from North Dakota to South Dakota seems to have died down, with South Dakota evidently the final resting lace of the Sioux medicine man, will a ruckus over the burial place of James Butler "Wild Bill" Hickok next make the headlines?

Wild Bill is buried on top of a hill overlooking Deadwood, S. D., where he was slain by a character named Jack McCall, who shot Bill in the back of the head while he was playing poker in 1876. Thousands of tourists visit the grave of the frontiersman annually.

Now a resident of Abilene, Kas., where Hickok was marshal for a brief period, has written the mayor of Deadwood asking that "negotiations" be opened for the removal of Wild Bill's body to the Kansas town.

The net result of the project to date is that the attorney general of South Dakota has written a letter to the attorney general of Kansas informing him the citizens of Deadwood would demand the National Guard to protect the Hickok grave.

In the removal of Sitting Bull's body from North Dakota to South Dakota, descendants of Sitting Bull gave their co-operation. Whether relatives of Hickok, still living at Troy Grove, Ill., where the plainsman was born and where the state of Illinois has erected a monument to his memory, would side with Abilene in its efforts to obtain the body is not known.

But there is little doubt that Deadwood would arise en masse to present this threat to one of its main tourist attractions.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Weather And The Disposition

"I pray thee, good Mercutio
let's retire,
The day is hot, the Capulets abroad,
And if we meet, we shall not
'scape a brawl,
"For now, these hot days, is the mad blood stirring."

Most of us bog down in summer heat waves and fly off the handle more easily than usual. Statistics show there are more murders, rebellions, uprisings, and revolutions in the hottest part of the year. According to Jacqueline Berke and Vivian Wilson in "Watch Out For The Weather," crimes of violence and sex in France and Italy are twice as numerous in the warm southern sections of both countries as in the cooler north. Furthermore, a peak is reached in the hottest and most oppressive months. The majority of riots in India over a 22-year period took place when the thermometer ranged between 80 and 90 degrees. The first real battle of the American Revolution occurred in June and the decision to sever relations with England took place in July, as did the attack on the Bastille. Anatole France remarked that his countrymen never revolt in winter, saying: "When it rains they go home, taking their flags with them. They will die for the Idea but they won't catch cold for it."

Because weather obviously affects our moods, we can blame the weather when Mother or Dad are cross and cranky. Children can do the same if they are critized for not reading as much as usual or if their summer grades are poor. Even bank clerks are more likely to make mistakes and those who are slated to take a civil service examination ought to postpone it if there is any doubt about their passing.

Some people prefer a warm, dry climate to a warm, moist climate and vice versa. The ideal humidity is said to be 65 per cent, which is logical from the medical viewpoint. This amount of moisture is made to order for the membranes of the nose and throat and, in addition, does not influence the evaporation of sweat. Individuals who have longstanding nasal and sinus trouble find dry air uncomfortable but those with nasal disorders on an allergic basis other than dust allegry are improved when the atmosphere is dry.

In warm, moist areas such as the tropics, heat is hard to take because high humidity decreases sweat evaporation. Anything that interferes with evaporation is most unwelcome because it constitutes one of our chief mechanisms for air conditioning the body. It is here that a little breeze goes a long way because it encourages the process. On the other hand, increased moisture may soothe damaged nasal membranes.

There are many tricks to staying cool, regardless of climate. Suitable clothing is of the utmost importance and, by lessening physical activity, body metabolism is kept to a minimum. It also helps to reduce the number of calories by eating fewer fats, heavy pastries, sauces, and gravies and to concentrate on fruits, vegetables, and lean meats. The shady side of the street is preferable, especially when hurrying back to work after lunch.

TOMORROW: Vacationing in the hay fever season.

HARDENING OF ARTERIES

J. P. writes: Does overwork harden the arteries?

REPLY

Many individuals who worked hard all their lives lived to be 100. In this regard, we do not know the cause of hardening of the arteries. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on arteriosclerosis.

NOSE CANCER

R. P. writes: Is radon used in the treatment of cancer of the nose?

REPLY

In some cases, but surgery is preferred when the physician feels that more can be accomplished by this method.

EYE CAST

L. K. writes: What is meant by a cast in the eye?

REPLY

This term is used occasionally to denote cross-eye. Other terms are squint, starbismus, and wall-eye. It has no relationship to casting "sheep's eyes at a wench," as per Don Quixote.

LUNAR NOTIONS

R. E. writes: I have read many times about the pull of the moon on the tides, causing the water to rise. Have also heard that the new moon affects people adversely. Is there something to this?

REPLY

To my knowledge there is no scientific reason why the moon should affect people in this way unless they are mentally deranged, or loony, to begin with and use the moon to excuse their actions. On the other hand, the romantic influences of the moon were well established before science came into being.

Elder Statesman Baruch Doesn't Like Treasury's Hike Of Interest Rates On U. S. Bonds; Ike Prefers Talking About Golf To Immigration

WASHINGTON — Gaunt, gray Bernie Baruch, the elder statesman Democrat who threw his weight to Eisenhower last fall, is sore at Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey and his assistant Randolph Burgess. Furthermore, he doesn't care much who knows it.

What Baruch is sore about is hiking interest rates on government bonds to almost the same level as industrial securities.

While the increased interest rates may be a fine thing for the bigger banks — Burgess is an executive of National City Bank — it has increased the national debt by a billion dollars already, also has upped commercial interest rates all over the nation. Baruch thinks this was both unnecessary and unwise.

About the time the Treasury floated its last loan at the recent record interest rate of 3-¼ per cent, Allied Chemical put out a commercial loan at 3-½ per cent—only a quarter of a point higher than the government. Ordinarily gilt-edged commercial securities command interest rates of at least a point higher than government bonds.

All of which leads Bernie Baruch to remark: "John Snyder begins to look better and better as secretary of the Treasury."

Golf vs. Immigration

A group of senators and congressmen were invited to the White House to witness the Presidential signing of the Korean Veterans Naturalization Bill. Barrel-chested Pat McCarran, author of the much-debated McCarran Act, was in the group; also Senator Watkins of Utah, author of the bill to modify the McCarran Act; also Congressman Emanuel Celler of New York, who proposes even further modifications; and Congressman Francis Walter of Pennsylvania, who proposes less.

It looked like a big powwow was to be held on immigration, and the group took their two experts, Richard Arens of the Senate and Walter Besterman of the House along to help. The President has made a special plea to Congress that it pass a new bill admitting 240,000 additional immigrants and iron curtain refugees; so the solons felt sure he would want to discuss it.

Apparently, however, Gen. Eisenhower had his mind far away from immigration. For he finished signing the bill giving naturalization to veterans of the Korean War. Then he picked up a book, held it up to his visitors.

The title: "The Rules of Golf."

With a broad grin and some pride, the President pointed out that it was dedicated to William Howard Taft. There ensued some brief banter on golf. Then the meeting adjourned.

Headlines and Footnotes

Now that General Hoyt Vandenberg has retired, it can be told that Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey tried to get President Eisenhower to fire Vandenberg for defying Secretary of Defense Wilson. . . . . Ex-President Herbert Hoover, who slipped into Washington the other day, privately warned against cutting the Air Force. When asked why he didn't speak out publicly, he shrugged: "Who would listen to a doddering old has-been, as against a military figure like President Eisenhower?" . . . . . The Texas drought is worse than the papers have reported. Not only have Texans been forced to slaughter their cattle herds for lack of feed and water, but the cotton and wheat crops have also been burned out. The Texas slaughtering will mean a glut of meat on the market, to be followed next year by a meat shortage. . . . . Texans are irked at President Eisenhower for going to Attorney General Brownell first and asking whether it would be legal to ship emergency feed to Texas. When Western herds were cut off from their feed by blizzards a couple years ago, President Truman dispensed with formalities, ordered the Air Force to form a haylift and fly emergency feed to the stranded cattle (strictly speaking, Truman's emergency action was probably illegal) . . . . . Secretary of Labor Durkin gets such a runaround at the White House that he can't even see Assistant President Sherman Adams, must deal with third-string assistant Bernard Shanley. . . . . Real reason Howard Rushmore quit Senator McCarthy's committee was over the two junior G-men, Roy Cohn and David Schine. Rushmore, ex-editor of the Daily Worker, didn't like the two playboy gumshoes, was particularly annoyed at Cohn's cocky, puffed-chest attitude.

Winston Churchill

U. S. Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich, formerly of the Chase Bank, has advised the State Department Winston Churchill's illness is diplomatic rather than real. Churchill trumped up the health excuse, says Aldrich, because he knew President Eisenhower intended to turn him down at Bermuda regarding the Big Four meeting with Premier Malenkov.

In the twilight of his career, old Churchill did not want to risk this rebuff to his prestige, especially since he soon plans to call general elections.

NOTE — Other diplomats don't agree with Aldrich, say that Winston will have to retire from the political ring permanently very soon. His mind doesn't click into gear with the rapidity of former days.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — (INS) — Senator McCarthy's report about the "chaotic" personnel filing system of the State Department—which he charges led to the hiring and promotion of bad security risks—shook the dust off a few personal memories. I used to be a State Department file clerk, myself, when but an apple-cheeked lad.

May have contributed a bit to that chaos in question, too.

One day the boss of the communications and records division, Dave Salmon, called me into his office, gave me ten lashes, and told me he was assigning me to the Western European division to set up a filing system to hold documents being sent back to the State Department from the London naval conference.

Well, sir, I set up a dinger of a system. It had only one drawback: I was the only employe who knew exactly where the papers were. When I went on to greater things specifically, writing high school sports for the Washington Post, the State Department was left without an authority on this matter. Heard later that they never could find out just what we promised the Japs in the way of naval parity. Probably led directly to World War Two.

We didn't hear much about communism in our wing of the State Department those days—actually a few years before a bright young man named Alger Hiss joined the circle.

Russia was largely a place we did not recognize diplomatically. The girls in our section were much more interested in when Mr. Stimson would give another garden party and invite the help. The men and the boys seemed principally interested in when and if we would ever get a pay raise.

In our part of the file section, which was run by a rugged old Irishman named Doyle and a fine young one named Ford, we could not have dreamed in our wildest nightmare of a day when it might be considered advisable to test our loyalty to the United States. We never thought of loyalty, really, perhaps because it was presumed we possessed it. We just took the documents and memos that came in, gave them a serial number, wrote a little summary of their content on index cards, and stashed the lot away in a file cabinet. After a few years we burned them.

It was a world and a department almost without crisis. Most of our communications seemed concerned with the routine protests of the State Department to the French government over the traffic in booze from the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon to parts of the U. S.

I remember a copy of a dispatch from Ambassador Andrew Mellon to the British Foreign Office interceding in the case of a dowager's Pomeranian which had been detained by a British law restraining the importation of pets. Mellon remarked in the note that it was indeed a wonderful era when the only cause of debate between the two great, English-speaking nations was the comfort of a pooch.

There was a furor one day when our man in Colombia reported that Colonel Charles A. Lindberg, then on a good-will tour, had been stoned by an irate reception committee at Bogota. Seems he didn't like the way the committee rushed at him, so he hopped in a State Department car and drove off.

That was a pretty terrible thing to do to our hero, we decided. We took our own little personal revenge on the Spanish-speaking world. For a week none of us would whistle "Valencia."

My worst day in the Western European division came when a young officer named John F. Carter called me in, told me to wrap a package of clothes for him and send it to his home. That was hardly the way to treat a young man who held the future of the international naval arms race in his chaotic file case. I addressed the package incorrectly. The clothes of the man who later deteriorated into a columnist, and wrote under the name of Jay Franklin, probably are still in the dead letter office in Washington. We had odd ones in the State Department even in those days. A fellow file clerk read poetry aloud and lighted his apartment with black candles. Another came to work one day with his hair and nails dyed a fire engine red. One of the more prominent foreign service officers was picked up by the Washington police for a curious perversion. He was a garter snapper.

But by and large we just worked and waited for the weekends and the paydays, and we would have considered anybody nuts who prophesied that some day it would really matter whether what we did lived or died or was compromised.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — What's this — What's this — a State Department employe in the full exercise of the privilege of freedom to write happens to pen a realistic pamphlet on the subject of the Taft-Hartley Act for the use of foreign journalists visiting America and, immediately upon receiving a protest from the CIO, the secretary of State suspends the employe! The brochure itself is ordered withdrawn — or rather "burned" as the Washington vocabulary now describes all acts of suppression of the printed word.

But unfortunately there is no American pamphleteer association to cry out against this pamphlet-burning episode. Nor is there any senator to make impassioned speeches warning his countrymen about the fear that will be engendered by this occurence and how "Hitlerism" with its book-burning phobia has now beset our fair land.

There's nobody to cite the terrible dangers of "Cio-ism" as interfering with the liberties of the Eisenhower administration to hire and fire its own employes or to issue what pamphlets it pleases on current topics. For sad to relate, when Jacob Potofsky, chairman of the CIO International Committee, can write to the secretary of State demanding suppression of a pamphlet which the CIO labor leaders don't like, and the secretary of State a few days later promptly takes disciplinary action against the employe and kills the pamphlet, the days of freedom are numbered —at least that familiar refrain can be taken up by a different set of critics now.

Employe Resigns

The author of the pamphlet apparently couldn't endure the agony of suspension—being pilloried before the public for having engaged in acts of disloyalty against the political record of the Truman administration. So rather than endure the frustration to one's literary talents in an atmosphere of censorship, the ill-fated employe now has resigned — and there will be no more brochures on the Taft-Hartley Act. As usual with such cases, when the employe resigns, the inquiry stops.

But there has arisen a champion from the intellectual precincts of New York City where many champions of free speech have emerged lately to protest loudly against loss of constitutional rights of any kind. T. R. Isserman, the famous labor relations lawyer, member of a prominent New York law firm, and Gerard Reilly, former member of the National Labor Relations Board, have joined together to defend the contents of the pamphlet and to point out that it didn't err when it blamed President Truman for failing to invoke the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act in the steel strike, which, it now appears, cost the federal treasury so much revenue that the deficit reported last week was considerably larger than anticipated on that account.

Mr. Isserman says, in a long letter to Secretary of State Dulles, giving chapter and verse in defense of the pamphlet, that on the basis of his considerable experience with the Taft-Hartley Law and the debates thereon, he believes the "burned" pamphlet was "far more factual and accurate than Mr. Potofsky's arrogant letter to you."

Hits Conformity

What is America coming to when a CIO leader can crack the whip and intimidate the secretary of State — or is it unimportant what happens to pamphlets that do not conform to the viewpoint of labor leaders? This cannot but remind many persons of the refrain echoed of late in "liberal" circles that there is an effort to make people "conform" to a certain view, and that the public is not being permitted to learn both sides of an issue. This brings to mind a noted professor of history at Columbia who boasts of his liberalism but who recently wrote a newspaper applauding it for suppressing something that happened to give the other side of a current controversial problem disliked by the "liberals" in question. Have such "liberals" suddenly become reactionaries who disregard our sacred freedoms?

How easy it is to turn the oft-heard argument around. "Conformity of view" inside the government is a "high price to pay" for the privilege of appeasing the CIO or any other labor organization. Also "CIO-ism" which intimidated and virtually controlled the last administration has now shown its teeth as against the secretary of State of the Eisenhower administration.

Why does fear stalk the State Department and make our public officials so timid? Maybe soon there's to be a speech from a British Conservative leader asking whether Walter Reuther is more powerful than the secretary of State, John Foster Dulles.

These are strange times and the climate in Washington is hotter now because of these peculiar goings on in the pamphlet-burning areas of the State Department.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Everybody's Freedom

Professor Sidney Hook, who is a respected philosopher at New York University, makes the point:

"Academic freedom is a specific kind of freedom. It is the freedom of professionally qualified persons to inquire, discover, publish, and teach the truth as they see it in the field of their competence, without any control or authority except the control or authority of the rational methods by which truth is established . . ."

This sounds like a very profound and involved definition, but what it means in language that is understandable is that a professor can say anything he chooses because he is qualified to know the truth. That is, of course, what any of us can do and do do according to our self-professed abilities and public acceptance.

The important phrase in Sidney Hook's definition is "professionally qualified." By this, he means that the gent has a diploma of some kind, that he has moved up from an A.B. to a Ph.D., perhaps hangs a Phi Beta Kappa key from his watch chain, and holds a position in a university, with a membership in a learned society. Neither Herbert Spencer nor Karl Marx would be "professionally qualified" under this definition, they being free lancers.

The arrogance of the professionally learned is not novel; yet such qualifications as Professor Sidney Hook requires for the "specific kind of freedom" have never been evidence of wisdom, high moral character, righteous living or a sense of responsibility; they have only proved that the individual has acquired knowledge in certain generalized fields and has recognizable proficiency in a particular field for which he received first good marks at college and subsequent acknowledgement by others in the field. That is what happens to doctors, lawyers, engineers, professors, etc.

Teachers and professors, however, must add to this a moral responsibility, for they are in charge of the minds of the young, who have not yet been prepared by disciplines and experience to answer all questions for themselves. Were it otherwise, each child would come from its mother's womb endowed, like Lao Tze, with supreme knowledge and wisdom.

Under such circumstances, not even parents would be necessary, the child at birth being as wise as its grandfather, and having been slapped on its buttocks by the obstetrician, would deliver a homily on justice and academic freedom. The mortal nurturing of the child by its mother, the inculcating of precepts of right living under Natural Law (this will make Professor Hook squirm), the patient guidance of a father, the teaching not only of the alphabet but of the ABC's of life by the teacher involve an acceptance of responsibility for the child as a person and a citizen.

Sidney Hook, in this article which appeared in "The Saturday Review," limits these responsibilities, He says:

". . . Insofar as it acknowledges intellectual discipline or restraint from a community, it is only from the community of qualified scholars which accepts the authority of rational inquiry."

This is class consciousness. Only scholars judge scholars, not as to scholarship, but as to their responsibility to the child, the parent, the community. They are a class apart, an elite-class like Soviet commissars or Nazi storm troopers.

In Professor Hook's definition of this exclusive privilege, the trick word is "rational." First we have "rational methods," and then we have "rational inquiry." Precisely what is rational in all this? Is the logical system of Thomas Aquinas the product of rational methods or must the true rational method be found in Karl Marx or John Dewey? Is the Natural Law, the revealed law of God to man, as, for instance, spoken by Moses, the result of a rational method; are the Analects of Confucius a product of a rational method or must we look only to Hegel, William James and Plekhanov?

What is rational inquiry? Did the guessers, James Watt, Thomas Edison, Henry Ford, pursue rational inquiry or is the only one capable of that high quality a fellow in a laboratory with a test tube and a team of professors checking his results? Is that the way Louis Pasteur worked?

The answer is that each parent, legally and morally, is responsible for his child. If the parent believes that the child is being corrupted by teachers and professors, it is the parent's obligation to intervene. If professors dislike to work under such controls, they can find jobs elsewhere, in less responsible fields.

They Still Want Your Blood

"Make your pledge and keep your pledge; no doctor ever transfused a promise."

"Disease never takes a holiday."

These are two of the slogans being used by the American National Red Cross to remind us that we can enjoy our vacations with better conscience this year if we've paid a visit to the Red Cross blood bank before leaving. The aim is to offset the annual "summer slump" in blood-giving.

Collections by Red Cross regional programs and defense centers in May totalled 349,409 pints, almost 38,000 fewer than were collected in April. Collections of private blood banks co-operating for defense needs were 36,940, about 4,000 fewer than in April. If past experience is any guide, the slump threatens to continue well through the summer.

The Red Cross attributes the past summer slumps in the blood-giving pattern to vacationers' forgetfulness of the continuing need for whole blood, uncomfortable weather, the concentration of farm people on crop processing and harvesting. This year two other strong factors must be counteracted: the imminence of a truce in Korea and the public announcement that the Defense Department is using a synthetic blood extender, dextran, in place of plasma in Korea.

The misconception about dextran is emphatically attacked by Dr. M. A. Casberg, special assistant to the secretary of Defense on medical problems. "The use of dextran," says Dr. Casberg, "has no bearing on the need for whole blood, as there is no substitute for whole blood." The Red Cross points out that the armed services will still need serum albumin, a product requiring vast quantities of blood to produce. And military hospitals continue to need whole blood.

Even should fighting in Korea cease, there will be men in military hospitals who will require blood transfusions for many months. For example, whole blood is processed to make a "human glue" for skin grafts in plastic surgery.

Moreover, the Red Cross points out that in 1952 blood from 46 regional blood programs was used in 3,334 hospitals in the U. S. More than 55 per cent of these hospitals depended on the Red Cross for their blood supply.

The Red Cross and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis are co-operating to furnish a million doses of gamma globulin for treatment of polio. GG is a blood derivative; one major laboratory reports that it needs 78,000 pints of whole blood a month to process at full capacity, producing 40,000 doses of GG.

GG is even more effective in the treatment of measles, more serious than usually considered, and of hepatitis (liver inflammation). And it has proved particularly effective in the treatment of women who have contracted "German" measles within the first three months of pregnancy. Without such treatment the disease frequently causes malformation of children.

Point Four Revisited

It will be interesting to see how much stiffer the "stiffened" attitude toward indefinite foreign aid, noted among senators, will be when they hear about the seaborne Dr. Sorenson.

As reported in testimony before a House subcommittee which is looking into the spending policies of the Point Four educational division, Dr. Sorenson apparently was afloat more than he was ashore during the course of one year as director of the division. What the congressmen want to know is what his traipsing proved, if anything. As chief of the education and training division the doctor undertook 28 trips from Washington, including seven round-the-globe jaunts. He spent 34 per cent of his time on the high seas and his steamer tickets cost the taxpayers $6,781.96.

Well, maybe the director of a foreign aid program ought to be in the saddle a great deal of the time, but congressmen got a little confused when it was revealed that in a remarkable number of instances Lincoln, Neb., appeared on the world-wide itinerary. Why was this when the purpose of the trip, for example, was to look into rural developments in Egypt or to recruit teachers in Burma? Well, it turns out Lincoln is Dr. Sorenson's home.

Then came the matter of Dr. Sorenson's assistant, Dr. Thomas R. Fisher. Dr. Fisher, speaking for himself, said he hadn't been given a blessed thing to do, so, instead of just sitting in his office reading light novels and collecting his $9,600 annual salary, he spent his time in the Mutual Security Agency library boning up on things against the day his bosses would give him something to do. Apparently he and Dr. Sorenson didn't even speak.

The congressmen, looking grim and preoccupied, said Dr. Fisher could go along now. They were going to talk to his boss next.

Wild Bill's Bones

Now that the furore occasioned by the removal, in the stealth of night, of the remains of Sitting Bull from North Dakota to South Dakota seems to have died down, with South Dakota evidently the final resting lace of the Sioux medicine man, will a ruckus over the burial place of James Butler "Wild Bill" Hickok next make the headlines?

Wild Bill is buried on top of a hill overlooking Deadwood, S. D., where he was slain by a character named Jack McCall, who shot Bill in the back of the head while he was playing poker in 1876. Thousands of tourists visit the grave of the frontiersman annually.

Now a resident of Abilene, Kas., where Hickok was marshal for a brief period, has written the mayor of Deadwood asking that "negotiations" be opened for the removal of Wild Bill's body to the Kansas town.

The net result of the project to date is that the attorney general of South Dakota has written a letter to the attorney general of Kansas informing him the citizens of Deadwood would demand the National Guard to protect the Hickok grave.

In the removal of Sitting Bull's body from North Dakota to South Dakota, descendants of Sitting Bull gave their co-operation. Whether relatives of Hickok, still living at Troy Grove, Ill., where the plainsman was born and where the state of Illinois has erected a monument to his memory, would side with Abilene in its efforts to obtain the body is not known.

But there is little doubt that Deadwood would arise en masse to present this threat to one of its main tourist attractions.

Weather And The Disposition

"I pray thee, good Mercutio let's retire,
The day is hot, the Capulets abroad,
And if we meet, we shall not 'scape a brawl,
"For now, these hot days, is the mad blood stirring."

Most of us bog down in summer heat waves and fly off the handle more easily than usual. Statistics show there are more murders, rebellions, uprisings, and revolutions in the hottest part of the year. According to Jacqueline Berke and Vivian Wilson in "Watch Out For The Weather," crimes of violence and sex in France and Italy are twice as numerous in the warm southern sections of both countries as in the cooler north. Furthermore, a peak is reached in the hottest and most oppressive months. The majority of riots in India over a 22-year period took place when the thermometer ranged between 80 and 90 degrees. The first real battle of the American Revolution occurred in June and the decision to sever relations with England took place in July, as did the attack on the Bastille. Anatole France remarked that his countrymen never revolt in winter, saying: "When it rains they go home, taking their flags with them. They will die for the Idea but they won't catch cold for it."

Because weather obviously affects our moods, we can blame the weather when Mother or Dad are cross and cranky. Children can do the same if they are critized for not reading as much as usual or if their summer grades are poor. Even bank clerks are more likely to make mistakes and those who are slated to take a civil service examination ought to postpone it if there is any doubt about their passing.

Some people prefer a warm, dry climate to a warm, moist climate and vice versa. The ideal humidity is said to be 65 per cent, which is logical from the medical viewpoint. This amount of moisture is made to order for the membranes of the nose and throat and, in addition, does not influence the evaporation of sweat. Individuals who have longstanding nasal and sinus trouble find dry air uncomfortable but those with nasal disorders on an allergic basis other than dust allegry are improved when the atmosphere is dry.

In warm, moist areas such as the tropics, heat is hard to take because high humidity decreases sweat evaporation. Anything that interferes with evaporation is most unwelcome because it constitutes one of our chief mechanisms for air conditioning the body. It is here that a little breeze goes a long way because it encourages the process. On the other hand, increased moisture may soothe damaged nasal membranes.

There are many tricks to staying cool, regardless of climate. Suitable clothing is of the utmost importance and, by lessening physical activity, body metabolism is kept to a minimum. It also helps to reduce the number of calories by eating fewer fats, heavy pastries, sauces, and gravies and to concentrate on fruits, vegetables, and lean meats. The shady side of the street is preferable, especially when hurrying back to work after lunch.

TOMORROW: Vacationing in the hay fever season.

In some cases, but surgery is preferred when the physician feels that more can be accomplished by this method.

EYE CAST

L. K. writes: What is meant by a cast in the eye?

REPLY

This term is used occasionally to denote cross-eye. Other terms are squint, starbismus, and wall-eye. It has no relationship to casting "sheep's eyes at a wench," as per Don Quixote.

LUNAR NOTIONS

R. E. writes: I have read many times about the pull of the moon on the tides, causing the water to rise. Have also heard that the new moon affects people adversely. Is there something to this?

REPLY

To my knowledge there is no scientific reason why the moon should affect people in this way unless they are mentally deranged, or loony, to begin with and use the moon to excuse their actions. On the other hand, the romantic influences of the moon were well established before science came into being.

Elder Statesman Baruch Doesn't Like Treasury's Hike Of Interest Rates On U. S. Bonds; Ike Prefers Talking About Golf To Immigration

WASHINGTON — Gaunt, gray Bernie Baruch, the elder statesman Democrat who threw his weight to Eisenhower last fall, is sore at Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey and his assistant Randolph Burgess. Furthermore, he doesn't care much who knows it.

What Baruch is sore about is hiking interest rates on government bonds to almost the same level as industrial securities.

While the increased interest rates may be a fine thing for the bigger banks — Burgess is an executive of National City Bank — it has increased the national debt by a billion dollars already, also has upped commercial interest rates all over the nation. Baruch thinks this was both unnecessary and unwise.

About the time the Treasury floated its last loan at the recent record interest rate of 3-¼ per cent, Allied Chemical put out a commercial loan at 3-½ per cent—only a quarter of a point higher than the government. Ordinarily gilt-edged commercial securities command interest rates of at least a point higher than government bonds.

All of which leads Bernie Baruch to remark: "John Snyder begins to look better and better as secretary of the Treasury."

Golf vs. Immigration

A group of senators and congressmen were invited to the White House to witness the Presidential signing of the Korean Veterans Naturalization Bill. After a few years we burned them.

It was a world and a department almost without crisis. Most of our communications seemed concerned with the routine protests of the State Department to the French government over the traffic in booze from the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon to parts of the U. S.

I remember a copy of a dispatch from Ambassador Andrew Mellon to the British Foreign Office interceding in the case of a dowager's Pomeranian which had been detained by a British law restraining the importation of pets. Mellon remarked in the note that it was indeed a wonderful era when the only cause of debate between the two great, English-speaking nations was the comfort of a pooch.

There was a furor one day when our man in Colombia reported that Colonel Charles A. Lindberg, then on a good-will tour, had been stoned by an irate reception committee at Bogota. Seems he didn't like the way the committee rushed at him, so he hopped in a State Department car and drove off.

That was a pretty terrible thing to do to our hero, we decided. We took our own little personal revenge on the Spanish-speaking world. For a week none of us would whistle "Valencia."

My worst day in the Western European division came when a young officer named John F. Carter called me in, told me to wrap a package of clothes for him and send it to his home. That was hardly the way to treat a young man who held the future of the international naval arms race in his chaotic file case. I addressed the package incorrectly. The clothes of the man who later deteriorated into a columnist, and wrote under the name of Jay Franklin, probably are still in the dead letter office in Washington. We had odd ones in the State Department even in those days. A fellow file clerk read poetry aloud and lighted his apartment with black candles. Another came to work one day with his hair and nails dyed a fire engine red. One of the more prominent foreign service officers was picked up by the Washington police for a curious perversion. He was a garter snapper.

But by and large we just worked and waited for the weekends and the paydays, and we would have considered anybody nuts who prophesied that some day it would really matter whether what we did lived or died or was compromised.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — What's this — What's this — a State Department employe in the full exercise of the privilege of freedom to write happens to pen a realistic pamphlet on the subject of the Taft-Hartley Act for the use of foreign journalists visiting America and, immediately upon receiving a protest from the CIO, the secretary of State suspends the employe! The brochure itself is ordered withdrawn — or rather "burned" as the Washington vocabulary now describes all acts of suppression of the printed word.

But unfortunately there is no American pamphleteer association to cry out against this pamphlet-burning episode. Nor is there any senator to make impassioned speeches warning his countrymen about the fear that will be engendered by this occurence and how "Hitlerism" with its book-burning phobia has now beset our fair land.

There's nobody to cite the terrible dangers of "Cio-ism" as interfering with the liberties of the Eisenhower administration to hire and fire its own employes or to issue what pamphlets it pleases on current topics. For sad to relate, when Jacob Potofsky, chairman of the CIO International Committee, can write to the secretary of State demanding suppression of a pamphlet which the CIO labor leaders don't like, and the secretary of State a few days later promptly takes disciplinary action against the employe and kills the pamphlet, the days of freedom are numbered —at least that familiar refrain can be taken up by a different set of critics now.

Employe Resigns

The author of the pamphlet apparently couldn't endure the agony of suspension—being pilloried before the public for having engaged in acts of disloyalty against the political record of the Truman administration. So rather than endure the frustration to one's literary talents in an atmosphere of censorship, the ill-fated employe now has resigned — and there will be no more brochures on the Taft-Hartley Act. As usual with such cases, when the employe resigns, the inquiry stops.

But there has arisen a champion from the intellectual precincts of New York City where many champions of free speech have emerged lately to protest loudly against loss of constitutional rights of any kind. T. R. Isserman, the famous labor relations lawyer, member of a prominent New York law firm, and Gerard Reilly, former member of the National Labor Relations Board, have joined together to defend the contents of the pamphlet and to point out that it didn't err when it blamed President Truman for failing to invoke the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act in the steel strike, which, it now appears, cost the federal treasury so much revenue that the deficit reported last week was considerably larger than anticipated on that account.

Mr. Isserman says, in a long letter to Secretary of State Dulles, giving chapter and verse in defense of the pamphlet, that on the basis of his considerable experience with the Taft-Hartley Law and the debates thereon, he believes the "burned" pamphlet was "far more factual and accurate than Mr. Potofsky's arrogant letter to you."

Hits Conformity

What is America coming to when a CIO leader can crack the whip and intimidate the secretary of State — or is it unimportant what happens to pamphlets that do not conform to the viewpoint of labor leaders? This cannot but remind many persons of the refrain echoed of late in "liberal" circles that there is an effort to make people "conform" to a certain view, and that the public is not being permitted to learn both sides of an issue. This brings to mind a noted professor of history at Columbia who boasts of his liberalism but who recently wrote a newspaper applauding it for suppressing something that happened to give the other side of a current controversial problem disliked by the "liberals" in question. Have such "liberals" suddenly become reactionaries who disregard our sacred freedoms?

How easy it is to turn the oft-heard argument around. "Conformity of view" inside the government is a "high price to pay" for the privilege of appeasing the CIO or any other labor organization. Also "CIO-ism" which intimidated and virtually controlled the last administration has now shown its teeth as against the secretary of State of the Eisenhower administration.

Why does fear stalk the State Department and make our public officials so timid? Maybe soon there's to be a speech from a British Conservative leader asking whether Walter Reuther is more powerful than the secretary of State, John Foster Dulles.

These are strange times and the climate in Washington is hotter now because of these peculiar goings on in the pamphlet-burning areas of the State Department.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Everybody's Freedom

Professor Sidney Hook, who is a respected philosopher at New York University, makes the point:

"Academic freedom is a specific kind of freedom. It is the freedom of professionally qualified persons to inquire, discover, publish, and teach the truth as they see it in the field of their competence, without any control or authority except the control or authority of the rational methods by which truth is established . . ."

This sounds like a very profound and involved definition, but what it means in language that is understandable is that a professor can say anything he chooses because he is qualified to know the truth. That is, of course, what any of us can do and do do according to our self-professed abilities and public acceptance.

The important phrase in Sidney Hook's definition is "professionally qualified." By this, he means that the gent has a diploma of some kind, that he has moved up from an A.B. to a Ph.D., perhaps hangs a Phi Beta Kappa key from his watch chain, and holds a position in a university, with a membership in a learned society. Neither Herbert Spencer nor Karl Marx would be "professionally qualified" under this definition, they being free lancers.

The arrogance of the professionally learned is not novel; yet such qualifications as Professor Sidney Hook requires for the "specific kind of freedom" have never been evidence of wisdom, high moral character, righteous living or a sense of responsibility; they have only proved that the individual has acquired knowledge in certain generalized fields and has recognizable proficiency in a particular field for which he received first good marks at college and subsequent acknowledgement by others in the field. That is what happens to doctors, lawyers, engineers, professors, etc.

Teachers and professors, however, must add to this a moral responsibility, for they are in charge of the minds of the young, who have not yet been prepared by disciplines and experience to answer all questions for themselves. Were it otherwise, each child would come from its mother's womb endowed, like Lao Tze, with supreme knowledge and wisdom.

Under such circumstances, not even parents would be necessary, the child at birth being as wise as its grandfather, and having been slapped on its buttocks by the obstetrician, would deliver a homily on justice and academic freedom. The mortal nurturing of the child by its mother, the inculcating of precepts of right living under Natural Law (this will make Professor Hook squirm), the patient guidance of a father, the teaching not only of the alphabet but of the ABC's of life by the teacher involve an acceptance of responsibility for the child as a person and a citizen.

Sidney Hook, in this article which appeared in "The Saturday Review," limits these responsibilities. He says:

". . . Insofar as it acknowledges intellectual discipline or restraint from a community, it is only from the community of qualified scholars which accepts the authority of rational inquiry."

This is class consciousness. Only scholars judge scholars, not as to scholarship, but as to their responsibility to the child, the parent, the community. They are a class apart, an elite class like Soviet commissars or Nazi storm troopers.

In Professor Hook's definition of this exclusive privilege, the trick word is "rational." First we have "rational methods," and then we have "rational inquiry." Precisely what is rational in all this? Is the logical system of Thomas Aquinas the product of rational methods or must the true rational method be found in Karl Marx or John Dewey? Is the Natural Law, the revealed law of God to man, as, for instance, spoken by Moses, the result of a rational method; are the Analects of Confucius a product of a rational method or must we look only to Hegel, William James and Plekhanov?

What is rational inquiry? Did the guessers, James Watt, Thomas Edison, Henry Ford, pursue rational inquiry or is the only one capable of that high quality a fellow in a laboratory with a test tube and a team of professors checking his results? Is that the way Louis Pasteur worked?

The answer is that each parent, legally and morally, is responsible for his child. If the parent believes that the child is being corrupted by teachers and professors, it is the parent's obligation to intervene. If professors dislike to work under such controls, they can find jobs elsewhere, in less responsible fields.

House Committee Cool To Niagara Power Measure

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The House Rules Committee, possibly because of White House intervention, today gave a cool reception to legislation permitting private enterprise to build new power facilities at Niagara Falls.

Significantly, the postponement of action took place only a few hours before the arrival in Washington of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. Dewey wants New York state to carry out the estimated 400 million dollar development.

Chairman Allen (R-Ill) of the rules committee permitted Chairman Dondero (R-Mich) of the House Public Works Committee 10 minutes to explain the controversial bill.

Allen then announced that his committee, which has the power to send the measure to the House floor, would resume its consideration more fully "tomorrow or the next day."

Meantime another source hinted that Dewey had a direct finger in the situation.

Dewey, who flew to Washington in mid-afternoon from Albany, came a day in advance of his expected arrival to attend a meeting of the New York congressional delegation.

The meeting tomorrow night is for the announced purpose of discussing legislation to get Congress' consent to a New York-New Jersey compact aimed at ridding the New York waterfront of its criminal elements.

Dewey told reporters that he had not come to Washington "to lobby for or against this (Niagara) bill."

Red Radio Says Soviets Can Be Holmes Fans

LONDON, July 7 (AP) — Moscow radio said today that good Soviet kiddies and grown-up Communists, too, can be fans of that famous character of the capitalist world—Sherlock Holmes.

The adventures of the daring Baker Street sleuth have gone out to avoid Russian readers from the Molodaya Gvardiya publishing house, the radio said. It noted also that 30 other editions of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's works have been published in the Soviet Union since the end of World War II.

The broadcast, commemorating the 23rd anniversary of Doyle's death, said the British writer's children's stories were particularly popular among Russian youngsters.

Bull Is Finally Corralled After Bolting To Freedom

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 7 (AP)—Sweltering Charlotte folks, a bit dazed by another day of mid-ninety temperatures, thought they saw a bull in mid-town today. They did.

The animal bolted to freedom while being unloaded by his owner for sale at a livestock company.

The big brute snorted his way to the post office area, three blocks from Independence Square, the center of this town of 135,000. While scores of citizens scurried to safety, a few intrepid souls cornered the animal. Citizen Henry Douglas, who had chased him for two miles, part of the time in his automobile, attempted to grab the beast by the horns and throw him, in the manner of screen and TV cowboys.

But the bull had other ideas. He kicked in a plate glass window of a florist shop, threw Douglas to the sidewalk and then sat on him.

A dozen policemen and civilian assistants finally subdued the animal, loaded him into a truck and carted him away.

Douglas was treated for minor injuries at a hospital and released.

Chile-Argentina Pact

BUENOS AIRES, July 7 (AP)—An official announcement tonight said the treaty of economic union between Chile and Argentina will be signed tomorrow by Presidents Carlos Ibanez del Campo and Juan D. Peron.

Ibanez is here on a state visit. President Peron proposed the pact when he visited Chile in February.

Labor-Welfare Funds Approved

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The Senate today passed a $2,011,000,000 labor-welfare money bill after voting 15 increases, two of them at the request of President Eisenhower.

The biggest boost on the floor was an additional 15 million dollars for federal grants to states for hospital construction. This would make 75 million available. The House allowed 50 millions; the Senate Appropriations Committee voted 60 millions, the amount requested by the President.

The amendment carried by the narrow margin of 43 to 41. The vote came after Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill), opposing it, shouted "I have grave doubts if we really want to balance the budget."

Many of the sums added on the floor were designed to permit the Labor Department, hard hit by budget-cutting drives in recent years, to function more effectively.

The two Eisenhower-backed boosts, however, were to help out the new Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

One of these, $426,000 for the Office of Education, restored a cut below the President's budget made by the House and concurred in by the Senate Appropriations Committee. The other gave an additional $151,000 to Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby of the new welfare department for expenses in her office.

Wiley Scores Rhee's Stand As "Arbitrary"

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Senator Wiley (R-Wis) today accused Syngman Rhee of "extremism, obstinacy and arbitrariness" and said the South Korean President's anti-truce stand "could shatter the chances for world peace in our time."

Wiley issued a statement as Rhee reportedly held fast to his demand for an ironclad United States guarantee that Korea would be united by either political or military action regardless of any truce.

The Korean President, in talks with President Eisenhower's special emissary, Walter S. Robertson, has rejected a reported U. S. compromise offer which would be subject to approval by the U. S. Senate. Any such agreement presumably would go before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which Wiley heads.

Wiley said he was speaking only for himself—not for the committee "or for anyone else." But the position he holds lent weight to his words.

He said that if Rhee persists in his threat to pull South Korean troops out of the United Nations forces and fight on, they could "end up by destroying not only themselves but the United Nations."

"A military disaster in Korea would mean a political disaster from which the U. N. might never recover," Wiley continued. "This could shatter the chances for world peace in our time. President Rhee has been playing with global dynamite."

A different viewpoint was expressed by Wisconsin's other senator, Sen. McCarthy told the investigations subcommittee he heads that "I think Syngman Rhee is one of the greatest patriots of all time."

Mountain Climbers At 16,700-Foot Level

SKARDU, Kashmir, July 7 (AP)—The American expedition seeking to top 28,250-feet Mt. Godwin Austin (K-2) has established its base camp on Baltoro Glacier at 16,700 feet. The camp is in the same area where a previous American expedition set up camp 15 years ago, and the present expedition plans to attempt the summit along the same route.

Information reaching here today said the expedition met a minor snow-storm at the base camp. The expedition leader, Charles Houston, preceded the main party by six hours.

Veteran Baltimore Detective Suspended

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP)—Detective Lt. Frank Schmidt, a veteran of 25 years, was suspended for 30 days and ordered back into uniform today for improper investigation of an alleged extortion attempt by a cop.

Schmidt was called on the carpet before Commissioner Beverly Ober about a report in the case of Patrolman Willard Scorggs. Scroggs had been accused of trying to extort $168 from a paroled numbers writer, Willie Alford.

Scroggs was exonerated by the police commissioner and the case was reopened at the suggestion of the state's attorney.

Ober concluded that Schmidt had not deliberately misrepresented facts in his report, but "should have been more careful in the accuracy of his report and the thoroughness of his investigation."

Schmidt pleaded innocent, but admitted he may have used bad judgment.

Officers Raid 103 Gambling Places In New York City

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—Scores of plainclothes cops raided 103 places today in a sudden swoop against gambling in the New York City area.

District Attorney Frank C. Hogan said 10 persons, including two women, were arrested. He said scores of additional arrests were expected.

Hogan said one purpose of the raid was to smash an organized policy ring operating in the metropolitan area.

Most of the city's plainclothesmen and some of its detectives were suddenly mobilized by radio alert soon after noon.

Mobilized at the main police stations on the East and West side of Manhattan, they were given sealed instructions and fanned out over the city.

Hogan said detectives from his office aided in the raids. He added that the sudden drive against gamblers also led to some places in Brooklyn, Queens, Nassau County, Yonkers, White Plains and New Rochelle and across the Hudson in New Jersey.

The district attorney said the places raided were suspected of being headquarters for bookmakers and policy slip operators.

Hogan also announced he expects to question two New York newspaper employes, a newspaper syndicate employe, and two Western Union workers on duty in the offices of the New York Daily Mirror.

Hogan said they furnished racing results "quickly" to persons who then supplied the information to policy slip racketeers. Some policy slip operators select the winners on the basis of race track parimutuel figures.

Wiley Scores Rhee's Stand As "Arbitrary"

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Senator Wiley (R-Wis) today accused Syngman Rhee of "extremism, obstinacy and arbitrariness" and said the South Korean President's anti-truce stand "could shatter the chances for world peace in our time."

Wiley issued a statement as Rhee reportedly held fast to his demand for an ironclad United States guarantee that Korea would be united by either political or military action regardless of any truce.

The Korean President, in talks with President Eisenhower's special emissary, Walter S. Robertson, has rejected a reported U. S. compromise offer which would be subject to approval by the U. S. Senate. Any such agreement presumably would go before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which Wiley heads.

Wiley said he was speaking only for himself—not for the committee "or for anyone else." But the position he holds lent weight to his words.

He said that if Rhee persists in his threat to pull South Korean troops out of the United Nations forces and fight on, they could "end up by destroying not only themselves but the United Nations."

"A military disaster in Korea would mean a political disaster from which the U. N. might never recover," Wiley continued. "This could shatter the chances for world peace in our time. President Rhee has been playing with global dynamite."

A different viewpoint was expressed by Wisconsin's other senator, Sen. McCarthy told the investigations subcommittee he heads that "I think Syngman Rhee is one of the greatest patriots of all time."

Mountain Climbers At 16,700-Foot Level

SKARDU, Kashmir, July 7 (AP)—The American expedition seeking to top 28,250-feet Mt. Godwin Austin (K-2) has established its base camp on Baltoro Glacier at 16,700 feet. The camp is in the same area where a previous American expedition set up camp 15 years ago, and the present expedition plans to attempt the summit along the same route.

Information reaching here today said the expedition met a minor snow-storm at the base camp. The expedition leader, Charles Houston, preceded the main party by six hours.

Veteran Baltimore Detective Suspended

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP)—Detective Lt. Frank Schmidt, a veteran of 25 years, was suspended for 30 days and ordered back into uniform today for improper investigation of an alleged extortion attempt by a cop.

Schmidt was called on the carpet before Commissioner Beverly Ober about a report in the case of Patrolman Willard Scorggs. Scroggs had been accused of trying to extort $168 from a paroled numbers writer, Willie Alford.

Scroggs was exonerated by the police commissioner and the case was reopened at the suggestion of the state's attorney.

Ober concluded that Schmidt had not deliberately misrepresented facts in his report, but "should have been more careful in the accuracy of his report and the thoroughness of his investigation."

Schmidt pleaded innocent, but admitted he may have used bad judgment.

Officers Raid 103 Gambling Places In New York City

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—Scores of plainclothes cops raided 103 places today in a sudden swoop against gambling in the New York City area.

District Attorney Frank C. Hogan said 10 persons, including two women, were arrested. He said scores of additional arrests were expected.

Hogan said one purpose of the raid was to smash an organized policy ring operating in the metropolitan area.

Most of the city's plainclothesmen and some of its detectives were suddenly mobilized by radio alert soon after noon.

Mobilized at the main police stations on the East and West side of Manhattan, they were given sealed instructions and fanned out over the city.

Hogan said detectives from his office aided in the raids. He added that the sudden drive against gamblers also led to some places in Brooklyn, Queens, Nassau County, Yonkers, White Plains and New Rochelle and across the Hudson in New Jersey.

The district attorney said the places raided were suspected of being headquarters for bookmakers and policy slip operators.

Hogan also announced he expects to question two New York newspaper employes, a newspaper syndicate employe, and two Western Union workers on duty in the offices of the New York Daily Mirror.

Hogan said they furnished racing results "quickly" to persons who then supplied the information to policy slip racketeers. Some policy slip operators select the winners on the basis of race track parimutuel figures.

Oil Industry Arguments For Price Hike Unconvincing, Heselton Says

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Rep. Heselton (R-Mass) said today the "arguments and reasons" given by the oil industry to justify gasoline and oil price hikes "have been completely unconvincing."

He added at a House Commerce Committee hearing that claims of the industry's representatives that they did not want to make the increases "have a very hollow ring."

The committee, conducting hearings to determine the justification for price boosts which have added up to two cents a gallon to filling station prices for gasoline, has heard testimony that increased costs of crude oil and of doing business has made the higher prices necessary.

Chairman Wolverton (R-NJ) said today he has received telegrams containing accusations that the price boosts were made "as a direct slap at the Eisenhower administration." Other complaints are, he said, that the big companies are trying to drive small independent filling station operators out of business. He did not identify the complainants.

Both charges were denied by Herbert Willetts, director and vice president of the Socony Vacuum Oil Co., whom Wolverton questioned about them.

Willetts said he hoped his company had done nothing to embarrass President Eisenhower and "I don't think we ever shall." And "it would be the height of foolishness," he said, to try to drive independents out of business, for it is through them that his firm markets most of its products.

Heselton, also addressing Willetts, said the oil companies appear "determined to force the cost of these products up between 500 and 700 million dollars" despite high production and inventories, and "record-breaking earnings and assets."

West Va. Institution Fireproofing Tackled

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 7 (AP)—The Board of Control tackled in earnest this week widespread fireproofing of buildings at the state's mental institutions.

President Joe F. Burdett said the 3-member board would visit Weston State Hospital on Friday for an on-the-spot study of how $1,150,000 best can be used for such a program there.

The 1953 Legislature also made available one million dollars for fireproofing work at Huntington State Hospital and $600,000 for such a program at Spencer.

Need for the fireproofing was emphasized last Thanksgiving eve when a fire in a building at Huntington State Hospital resulted in the death of 17 mental patients.

Ecuador Minister Quits

QUITO, Ecuador, July 7 (AP)—Foreign Minister Teodoro Alvarado Garaicoa resigned today. No reason was given but unofficially it was said he would be named ambassador to Britain.

THE KREMLIN is having its troubles, boxes on this map indicate, with Red policies apparently being bypassed or ignored in some areas, and populations taking the bit in their teeth in others. Communist troubles are most serious in East Germany, probably, where Moscow wanted co-operation the most and is getting it the least. In East Germany there have been 50 executions since the mid-June rioting.

Chemical Treatment Seen Stopping Cancer

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—A leading British researcher said today doctors eventually may be able to prevent cancer through chemical treatment alone.

Addressing the annual meeting of the British Empire Cancer Campaign, Prof. Alexander Haddow, director of the Chester Beatty Research Institute, said researchers are familiar with hundreds of chemical agents, capable of inducing cancer, and how they work.

"A full understanding of this remarkable process by which normal cells are transferred into cancer cells will surely lead to the discovery of the means by which the process may be regulated, controlled or even prevented or reversed," he added.

Three Chiang Officers Will Deal With Guerrilla Withdrawal Poser

TAIPEH, Wednesday, July 8 (AP)—Three staff officers of Chinese Nationalist Gen. Li Mi flew today toward Bangkok to deal further with the problem of withdrawing 12,000 Red-hating Li guerrillas from North Burma to Formosa.

Signs multiplied that no easy solution is in sight.

A China Post editorial, believed to reflect Nationalist government views, said these guerrillas have little in common with others repatriated from Indochina to Formosa. The Post said most of the 12,000 are descendents of people who have lived for generations along the China-Burma border and would not want to be removed "to Formosa or anywhere else."

Burma protested the presence of the armed guerrillas as posing a menace to Burma's relations with bordering Red China. The U. N. General Assembly called for evacuation of guerrillas who fled into Burma when the Reds overran South China in 1950.

As a result, a Bangkok conference was called of delegates from the United States, Burma, Thailand and Nationalist China to draft a plan for disarming the guerrillas and moving them through Thailand.

One of Li's guerrilla leaders, Chinese Nationalist Lt. Gen. Lee Tse-fen, recently stalled plans for moving the irregulars to Formosa by demanding representation at the Bangkok conference. The three staff officers of Gen. Li left yesterday with secret instructions for Lee.

Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government has insisted that Li Mi's "anti-Communist and national salvation army" is not under its direct control.

Ecuador Minister Quits

QUITO, Ecuador, July 7 (AP)—Foreign Minister Teodoro Alvarado Garaicoa resigned today. No reason was given but unofficially it was said he would be named ambassador to Britain.

THE KREMLIN is having its troubles, boxes on this map indicate, with Red policies apparently being bypassed or ignored in some areas, and populations taking the bit in their teeth in others. Communist troubles are most serious in East Germany, probably, where Moscow wanted co-operation the most and is getting it the least. In East Germany there have been 50 executions since the mid-June rioting.

Chemical Treatment Seen Stopping Cancer

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—A leading British researcher said today doctors eventually may be able to prevent cancer through chemical treatment alone.

Addressing the annual meeting of the British Empire Cancer Campaign, Prof. Alexander Haddow, director of the Chester Beatty Research Institute, said researchers are familiar with hundreds of chemical agents, capable of inducing cancer, and how they work.

"A full understanding of this remarkable process by which normal cells are transferred into cancer cells will surely lead to the discovery of the means by which the process may be regulated, controlled or even prevented or reversed," he added.

Chick Donaldson, 212-pound center of the West Virginia football team, couldn't make his high school squad. He weighed only 118 pounds then.

Three Chiang Officers Will Deal With Guerrilla Withdrawal Poser

TAIPEH, Wednesday, July 8 (AP)—Three staff officers of Chinese Nationalist Gen. Li Mi flew today toward Bangkok to deal further with the problem of withdrawing 12,000 Red-hating Li guerrillas from North Burma to Formosa.

Signs multiplied that no easy solution is in sight.

A China Post editorial, believed to reflect Nationalist government views, said these guerrillas have little in common with others repatriated from Indochina to Formosa. The Post said most of the 12,000 are descendents of people who have lived for generations along the China-Burma border and would not want to be removed "to Formosa or anywhere else."

Burma protested the presence of the armed guerrillas as posing a menace to Burma's relations with bordering Red China. The U. N. General Assembly called for evacuation of guerrillas who fled into Burma when the Reds overran South China in 1950.

As a result, a Bangkok conference was called of delegates from the United States, Burma, Thailand and Nationalist China to draft a plan for disarming the guerrillas and moving them through Thailand.

One of Li's guerrilla leaders, Chinese Nationalist Lt. Gen. Lee Tse-fen, recently stalled plans for moving the irregulars to Formosa by demanding representation at the Bangkok conference. The three staff officers of Gen. Li left yesterday with secret instructions for Lee.

Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government has insisted that Li Mi's "anti-Communist and national salvation army" is not under its direct control.

Contractor Dies

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—John C. Hegeman, 69, whose internationally-known building firm built the RCA Building, Rockefeller Center's tallest skyscraper, and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington, Va., died yesterday.

The 1947 All-Star game at Wrigley Field, Chicago, was the first from which the player pension fund benefitted.

Congress Debates Touchy Issue: What Kind Of Label Should Be Put On Foreign-Born Fish

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Congress today considered whether a special label should be put on foreign born trout brought into this country.

Although that seems like a simple question—hardly the stuff of which riots are made—it nevertheless produced a lively hearing during which one witness cried:

"Why they fly the American flag at the State Department I don't know."

A house interstate and foreign commerce subcommittee has a bill before it which calls for imported trout to be in a package bearing the label of the nation whence it came. Furthermore, the bill says, restaurants serving foreign trout should say so on the menu. The bill already has passed the Senate.

Most of today's witnesses were for it.

They said that in recent years a lot of trout has been imported from Denmark and Japan. What riled them, they said, was that this trout is being sold under such labels as Rocky Mountain, rainbow or brook trout.

Colin Thomas, a Ruxton, Md., trout farmer, was the most eloquent. He was the fellow who was sore at the State Department. He said he was not surprised those people over there objected to the bill.

"The State Department has a vested interest in every country but our own," he said.

Thomas said raising trout for marketing is a tough job. You need swift running water, for it's the life-long battle with swift water that gievs the trout its taste.

Then you feed the little creatures special scientific mixtures—five times a day when they're babies—and after 18 months, if all goes well, you may have a trout weighing a half pound.

That's what's wrong with fish from Denmark, he said. No scientific feed, no swift-running water because the trout there are raised in ponds.

Leon Rubin, a New York importer, promptly disputed Thomas. Rubin said imported fish are just as good as those raised here, and that the streams in Denmark go as swiftly as they do in this country.

Gen. Cramer Under Fire

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Rep. Short (R-Mo) said today the House armed Services Committee has received an "unsatisfactory" preliminary report from the Army on complaints that discipline is "too severe" under Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, commander in Southern Germany.

Short, the committee chairman, said the Army has been asked for more specific information, including the number of men up for courts martial in Cramer's command, and why they were cited.

An interim report from Army Secretary Stevens, received today, was "too broad and a bit evasive," Short told newsmen.

He said Stevens reported he could find "no grounds to substantiate the charges" and added "morale is very high" in Southern Germany.

The committee called for a report after receiving several complaints that an unusually large number of men in Cramer's command are facing court martial action.

Gen. Cramer was criticized for heavy discipline in 1950 when he commanded the 43rd Division at Camp Pickett, Va. A congressional investigation was proposed then but nothing developed.

The committee now has received complaints that court martial actions in Southern Germany include some based on charges of fraternization with German girls.

Stevens reported that Cramer's superiors were satisfied he was not being unduly strict, Short said.

The chairman added that the committee wants fuller information because "we want to find out if Gen. Cramer is a martinet."

Bill Barring Military Discharge Buying OK'd

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Congress decided today to make it impossible for anyone to buy his way out of military service before completing his tour of duty.

The House passed and sent to the White House a bill repealing an 1890 act permitting enlisted men to purchase discharges.

The act hasn't been working lately, because it was suspended under wartime emergency powers, which have been extended from year to year.

Bond Bids To Be Opened

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP)—The Maryland State Roads Commission wil open bids July 21 on $25,000,000 in highway bonds, final portion of $100,000,000 approved by the Legislature in 1947.

The new batch will mature from 1954 through 1968.

Icebreakers' Attempt To Reach Nome Fails

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The Coast Guard reported today that two of this nation's sturdiest icebreakers failed last winter in an attempt to cut their way by sea to Nome, Alaska.

The two ships apparently went less than 40 miles from the Chukotsky Peninsula of Soviet Siberia, but the Coast Guard declined to say how close the ships came to Russia.

Involved in the 47-day expedition were the Coast Guard cutter Northwind and the Navy ship Burton Island, which returned to the U. S. in March after operating in the Bering Sea, which lies between Alaska and Siberia.

The Coast Guard said the ships made two tries at chopping their way to Nome. The first, along the western coast of Alaska, had to be abandoned when the ships couldnt pierce the giant ice floes.

Bond Bids To Be Opened

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP)—The Maryland State Roads Commission wil open bids July 21 on $25,000,000 in highway bonds, final portion of $100,000,000 approved by the Legislature in 1947.

The new batch will mature from 1954 through 1968.

Gen. Cramer Under Fire

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Rep. Short (R-Mo) said today the House armed Services Committee has received an "unsatisfactory" preliminary report from the Army on complaints that discipline is "too severe" under Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, commander in Southern Germany.

Short, the committee chairman, said the Army has been asked for more specific information, including the number of men up for courts martial in Cramer's command, and why they were cited.

An interim report from Army Secretary Stevens, received today, was "too broad and a bit evasive," Short told newsmen.

He said Stevens reported he could find "no grounds to substantiate the charges" and added "morale is very high" in Southern Germany.

The committee called for a report after receiving several complaints that an unusually large number of men in Cramer's command are facing court martial action.

Gen. Cramer was criticized for heavy discipline in 1950 when he commanded the 43rd Division at Camp Pickett, Va. A congressional investigation was proposed then but nothing developed.

The committee now has received complaints that court martial actions in Southern Germany include some based on charges of fraternization with German girls.

Stevens reported that Cramer's superiors were satisfied he was not being unduly strict, Short said.

The chairman added that the committee wants fuller information because "we want to find out if Gen. Cramer is a martinet."

Bill Barring Military Discharge Buying OK'd

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Congress decided today to make it impossible for anyone to buy his way out of military service before completing his tour of duty.

The House passed and sent to the White House a bill repealing an 1890 act permitting enlisted men to purchase discharges.

The act hasn't been working lately, because it was suspended under wartime emergency powers, which have been extended from year to year.

Icebreakers' Attempt To Reach Nome Fails

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The Coast Guard reported today that two of this nation's sturdiest icebreakers failed last winter in an attempt to cut their way by sea to Nome, Alaska.

The two ships apparently went less than 40 miles from the Chukotsky Peninsula of Soviet Siberia, but the Coast Guard declined to say how close the ships came to Russia.

Involved in the 47-day expedition were the Coast Guard cutter Northwind and the Navy ship Burton Island, which returned to the U. S. in March after operating in the Bering Sea, which lies between Alaska and Siberia.

The Coast Guard said the ships made two tries at chopping their way to Nome. The first, along the western coast of Alaska, had to be abandoned when the ships couldnt pierce the giant ice floes.

Rep. Cole (R-NY), chairman of the joint House-Senate Committee on Atomic Energy said Ohio Valley Electric Co., Electric Energy, Inc., and TVA will invest more than a billion dollars in new plants and expansions to supply more than 5½ million kilowatts of power for the atomic plants.

93-Year-Old Minister Preaching Since 1887

By WILMA LEMBURG
Central Press Correspondent

PEORIA, Ill. — A 93-year-old minister who has been preaching 66 years was licensed to preach by the Methodist church in 1887 and still is going strong. She has preaching appointments "at least every other weekend."

The Rev. Della Stretch has a firm and vigorous voice, her hearing is very good, and she still has her own lower teeth after getting false uppers when she was passing 90.

Not long ago she was having her eyes examined to check the glasses she sometimes uses for reading. Her eye doctor told her he was afraid she would need to have her glasses prescription altered. It would need to be made weaker, he said, for she apparently was getting her "second eyesight."

In spite of her 93 years, Rev. Mrs. Stretch lives alone in a seven-room home at 303 South Sycamore street in El Paso, Ill. She does her own housework and cooks her own meals. "I do order my groceries and have them sent over instead of going after them," she said apologetically.

THE FRIENDLY MINISTER, who can stand up and sit down without creaking, has a memory that is nothing short of spectacular. "I do use Scripture references for notes," she said, "but I never, never have written out a sermon." She estimated, conservatively, that she has delivered between 12,000 and 14,000 sermons.

"I only agree to preach a couple of days at a time now," she said. "I used to close evangelistic services Sunday nights in one place, and open on Monday somewhere else." This, she said, happened year after year, August through March.

She has read the Bible through at least 20 times—10 times by count within the last few years. But she has some very definite ideas about the new revised version of the Bible.

"I don't like it," she stated.

Her husband, who died 28 years ago during a flu epidemic, was a singer, and the two traveled around central Illinois and neighboring states while she preached and he sang. After his death, she continued her evangelistic work in many denominations. Although she started out as a Methodist, she now attends the Nazarene church because it is closer to her home.

She believes she is not too old to learn, for she reads diligently, preferring history and civics books and sermons.

Asked her opinion about her fellowmen, Rev. Mrs. Stretch thought a moment and then said firmly, "People, in general, are quite careless, doubtful and skeptical. I think they ought to repent and get converted."

"Anything else?" she was asked.

"That's all," she smiled.

Prior to that, the County Commissioners had helped get the project under way when they appointed commissioners to acquire land for the dam and advanced $20,000 to match federal funds used to survey the property and design the huge dam.

Was WPA Project

The survey was made and the WPA agreed to furnish labor for the structure if the county put up $1,000,000 for equipment and agreed to furnish the supervisory staff.

The funds were furnished by the County Commissioners, who issued $1,000,000 worth of bonds for the work.

Under the supervision of Daniel Pelletier and later George Naill, the project was pushed toward completion and was about half completed when it was halted by the War Production Board in December 1941, as the nation redoubled its efforts in World War II.

Shortly after the project was shut down, the commission asked Major H. H. Allen, head of the J. E. Greiner Company, to prepare a report on the project.

When the WPA job halted, the commission had about $200,000 in its treasury.

Beall Aids Project

The second major factor which led to the completion of the big dam was Senator J. Glenn Beall, who was then serving as representative from the 6th Maryland District.

Senator Beall, who had been interested in the project for years, successfully sponsored federal legislation which led to the completion of the dam by the Corps of Engineers as an area flood protection project.

The commission turned over to the Corps of Engineers the remaining $200,000 as the balance of the county's share of the $6,000,000 project.

Although the dam had been completed to within nine feet of its present height by the WPA, almost half of the structure had been carried away in a flood which hit the area in 1942.

Under the direction of the Corps of Engineers, the dam was completed according to schedule late in 1951.

It has since been operated by the corps, which has prepared a manual of operations for the commission.

Local Chamber To Work With Commerce Dept.

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce has been officially designated a cooperative office of the United States Department of Commerce it was announced yesterday.

The local Chamber is one of a national network of 580 agencies formed by the Commerce Department in a move to extend its services to a wider segment of the business public than it has heretofore served.

At the same time the Department announced that its present Field Service of 42 offices will be reduced to 31 offices on July 31, resulting in a saving of approximately $200,000 a year. Among the offices to be closed is the one in Baltimore.

James C. Worthy, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Administration, stated that the action is part of the Department's program to strengthen its Field Service organization and at the same time reduce substantially the cost of operation.

With the Commerce field offices functioning as central agencies for business in their particular areas, Secretary Worthy said, the cooperative network will be furnished with Department publications, reference material and other information of interest to business and industry. The cooperative agencies will in turn serve as clearing houses for the transmission to the Field Offices of business opinion and requirements.

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, as a cooperative office, will serve all inquirers without regard to industrial, trade and political affiliations and regardless of whether they are members.

Prior to that, the County Commissioners had helped get the project under way when they appointed commissioners to acquire land for the dam and advanced $20,000 to match federal funds used to survey the property and design the huge dam.

The survey was made and the WPA agreed to furnish labor for the structure if the county put up $1,000,000 for equipment and agreed to furnish the supervisory staff.

The funds were furnished by the County Commissioners, who issued $1,000,000 worth of bonds for the work.

State Troopers Quell Revolt At Reformatory For Women

Clubs And Fire Hoses Are Used To End Rioting

JESSUPS, Md., July 7 (AP) — It took a rush by 20 state troopers using clubs and fire hoses today to subdue 53 screaming prisoners in their fortress of revolt in a two-story cottage at the Maryland Reformatory for Women.

The 52 Negroes and one white woman barricaded themselves in the cottage for nearly four hours. They repulsed one police invasion by brandishing broken furniture and knives and hurling crockery.

Three women employes, who took refuge in a locked bathroom, were unharmed. The prisoners kicked on the locked door and drove ice picks through it.

Trooper Cut On Hand

State Police Lt. Martin Puncke was cut on the hand by a flying piece of china. Several women prisoners were bruised in the melee with police at the institution 10 miles southwest of Baltimore.

The cottage for Negro prisoners had been restless all night, Miss Alice Blum, the superintendent over 186 inmates, reported. It had been necessary last night, she said, to use tear gas to oust one inmate from her barricaded room.

Open rebellion flared again in the cottage shortly after dawn today, Miss Blum said. The warden and guards from the nearby House of Correction for males were summoned. The shouting women dared them to come in.

Warden Calls State Police

Warden William F. Steiner called the state police. Six of them managed to force their way into the cottage. They had to retreat after being surrounded by the unruly mob of women.

State police then tried talking them into surrender. They were answered with hoots of derision and profanity. Women prisoners in other cottages shouted encouragement. A white prisoner got into the cottage through a basement window to join the fracas.

The state troopers prepared to use tear gas. But another storm by a score swinging clubs was successful. After forcing admission, they turned fire hoses on some of the most defiant who continued their rebellion.

About half of the rioters were escorted out of the cottage and the others quieted. Windows, doors and furniture throughout the building were broken and smashed.

The woman inmate involved in last night's incident had been transferred to the reformatory three days ago from the state hospital for Negro insane.

Miss Blum, superintendent for 12 years, called the uprising a "spontaneous rebellion against rules and regulations headed by a few ringleaders."

VET IN GOOD SHAPE—Walter W. Williams, 110, of Franklin, Texas, one of Texas' two living Civil War veterans, has the physical condition of a normal man of 55-60, according to Dr. R. S. Wolfe, chief medical officer at Veterans Administration Clinic in Houston. Williams came to Houston for a physical checkup Tuesday. Standing beside him are Dr. Wolfe and the veterans' 80-year-old wife.

W. Va. Crops Begin Feeling Lack Of Rain

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 7 (AP)—Lack of rain in some Eastern Panhandle and central counties is beginning to be felt by farmers, the state Department of Agriculture's Weather-Crop report indicated today.

Although most of the state had above average rainfall last week, pasture crops in some areas are drying up, and corn and late hay crops may be harmed if rain does not fall soon.

Jose Ferrer's Wife Files For Divorce

JUAREZ, Mexico, July 7 (AP)—Mrs. Phyllis Hill Ferrer, New York City, wife of actor Jose Ferrer filed for divorce yesterday in the First Civil Court of Juarez.

Mrs. Ferrer, an actress, appeared in court. Ferrer was represented by an attorney. She returned late yesterday to New York.

The suit stated that the couple were married in Greenwich, Conn., June 19, 1948, and have been separated since May, 1952.

State Farmers Still Need Rain To Help Crops

COLLEGE PARK, Md., July 7 (AP)—In the Maryland crop report today the refrain was the same—farmers need more rain.

In most cases the crop report for last week was "progress good." But if this is to continue the observers said more rain will be needed.

The hot dry weather favored combining of wheat and rye. Harvest of barley was just about finished. Field corn grew rapidly, but the Maryland Crop Reporting service said "rain will soon be needed if the crop is to continue making good progress. . ."

Soybeans and Southern Maryland tobacco also have made good growth although a few tobacco fields were becoming dry.

Tomatoes have made good progress but rain "will be needed soon to encourage proper fruit sizing in the canning areas." The report said "market sweet corn fields need more rain at this time, a rather critical period. . ." It said the situation is much the same for the early processing fields.

Many snap bean fields in the Wicomico county area were plowed under during the week and the peak of harvest moved northward. The cucumber harvest continued on the shore and the first Fordhook limas were picked in the Wicomico area. In the Salisbury area cantaloupes were nearing maturity somewhat earlier than normal and watermelons were beginning to size.

Sweet potatoes have made good growth in Wicomico and Anne Arundel counties.

In Western Maryland, transparent and Lodi apples were harvested. "More rain is needed to encourage sizing of the important late varieties," the report said. A heavy volume of raspberries was harvested in Washington and Allegany counties and harvest of sour cherries got underway in Western Maryland.

Park Reopening Ruling Delayed

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP)—Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut consented today to wait until Thursday to decide if he should permit reopening of Sandy Point Park.

In the meantime, Negroes opposing the reopening will inspect the segregated beaches at the park which was closed several weeks ago on Judge Chesnut's order.

The judge heard the state argue today that his injunction should be lifted because the two beaches for Negroes and whites now are at least equal in standard. State officials testified the beach for Negroes actually is superior.

Francis Asher, Annapolis contractor who made improvements to the Negro beach since the park was closed, testified they are worth $66,300. It had been estimated originally that it would cost $36,100.

W. Giles Parker, assistant attorney general, proposed that the park be reopened immediately on a segregated basis until a final ruling. The Negroes refused.

Judge Chesnut had ruled earlier that the state could not operate segregated beaches unless they were equal.

Sandy Point Park, the state's only bayside recreation area, was opened last year.

Start Of Helicopter Service Faces Delay

State Troopers Quell Revolt At Reformatory For Women

Clubs And Fire Hoses Are Used To End Rioting

JESSUPS, Md., July 7 (AP) — It took a rush by 20 state troopers using clubs and fire hoses today to subdue 53 screaming prisoners in their fortress of revolt in a two-story cottage at the Maryland Reformatory for Women.

The 52 Negroes and one white woman barricaded themselves in the cottage for nearly four hours. They repulsed one police invasion by brandishing broken furniture and knives and hurling crockery.

Three women employes, who took refuge in a locked bathroom, were unharmed. The prisoners kicked on the locked door and drove ice picks through it.

Trooper Cut On Hand

State Police Lt. Martin Puncke was cut on the hand by a flying piece of china. Several women prisoners were bruised in the melee with police at the institution 10 miles southwest of Baltimore.

The cottage for Negro prisoners had been restless all night, Miss Alice Blum, the superintendent over 186 inmates, reported. It had been necessary last night, she said, to use tear gas to oust one inmate from her barricaded room.

Open rebellion flared again in the cottage shortly after dawn today, Miss Blum said. The warden and guards from the nearby House of Correction for males were summoned. The shouting women dared them to come in.

Warden Calls State Police

Warden William F. Steiner called the state police. Six of them managed to force their way into the cottage. They had to retreat after being surrounded by the unruly mob of women.

State police then tried talking them into surrender. They were answered with hoots of derision and profanity. Women prisoners in other cottages shouted encouragement. A white prisoner got into the cottage through a basement window to join the fracas.

The state troopers prepared to use tear gas. But another storm by a score swinging clubs was successful. After forcing admission, they turned fire hoses on some of the most defiant who continued their rebellion.

About half of the rioters were escorted out of the cottage and the others quieted. Windows, doors and furniture throughout the building were broken and smashed.

The woman inmate involved in last night's incident had been transferred to the reformatory three days ago from the state hospital for Negro insane.

Miss Blum, superintendent for 12 years, called the uprising a "spontaneous rebellion against rules and regulations headed by a few ringleaders."

VET IN GOOD SHAPE—Walter W. Williams, 110, of Franklin, Texas, one of Texas' two living Civil War veterans, has the physical condition of a normal man of 55-60, according to Dr. R. S. Wolfe, chief medical officer at Veterans Administration Clinic in Houston. Williams came to Houston for a physical checkup Tuesday. Standing beside him are Dr. Wolfe and the veterans' 80-year-old wife.

W. Va. Crops Begin Feeling Lack Of Rain

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 7 (AP)—Lack of rain in some Eastern Panhandle and central counties is beginning to be felt by farmers, the state Department of Agriculture's Weather-Crop report indicated today.

Although most of the state had above average rainfall last week, pasture crops in some areas are drying up, and corn and late hay crops may be harmed if rain does not fall soon.

Jose Ferrer's Wife Files For Divorce

JUAREZ, Mexico, July 7 (AP)—Mrs. Phyllis Hill Ferrer, New York City, wife of actor Jose Ferrer filed for divorce yesterday in the First Civil Court of Juarez.

Mrs. Ferrer, an actress, appeared in court. Ferrer was represented by an attorney. She returned late yesterday to New York.

The suit stated that the couple were married in Greenwich, Conn., June 19, 1948, and have been separated since May, 1952.

State Farmers Still Need Rain To Help Crops

COLLEGE PARK, Md., July 7 (AP)—In the Maryland crop report today the refrain was the same—farmers need more rain.

In most cases the crop report for last week was "progress good." But if this is to continue the observers said more rain will be needed.

The hot dry weather favored combining of wheat and rye. Harvest of barley was just about finished. Field corn grew rapidly, but the Maryland Crop Reporting service said "rain will soon be needed if the crop is to continue making good progress. . ."

Soybeans and Southern Maryland tobacco also have made good growth although a few tobacco fields were becoming dry.

Tomatoes have made good progress but rain "will be needed soon to encourage proper fruit sizing in the canning areas." The report said "market sweet corn fields need more rain at this time, a rather critical period. . ." It said the situation is much the same for the early processing fields.

Many snap bean fields in the Wicomico county area were plowed under during the week and the peak of harvest moved northward. The cucumber harvest continued on the shore and the first Fordhook limas were picked in the Wicomico area. In the Salisbury area cantaloupes were nearing maturity somewhat earlier than normal and watermelons were beginning to size.

Sweet potatoes have made good growth in Wicomico and Anne Arundel counties.

In Western Maryland, transparent and Lodi apples were harvested. "More rain is needed to encourage sizing of the important late varieties," the report said. A heavy volume of raspberries was harvested in Washington and Allegany counties and harvest of sour cherries got underway in Western Maryland.

Legion Opens 35th State Convention Today

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP)—The American Legion and its auxiliary will move into Baltimore tomorrow for the 35th annual convention.

More than 1,500 delegates from 205 Legion posts in Maryland are due to attend.

The formal proceedings start tomorrow night with an address by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general.

Business sessions will be held Thursday and Friday. The big show comes Friday night with a parade downtown.

The windup on Saturday includes a speech by Sen. Butler (R-Md) and election of officers.

The only announced candidate so far to succeed state commander Joseph Fields of Silver Spring is J. Edward Walter of Cambridge. Walter now is a vice commander.

Oakland Native Gets Post Office Department Job

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—John S. Coleman, a native of Charles Town, W. Va., and president of Burroughs Adding Machine Co., was one of seven members appointed to the Post Office Department Advisory board today.

Charles M. White, president of Republic Steel Corp. and a native of Oakland, Md., also was appointed by the Senate Postoffice Committee.

Park Reopening Ruling Delayed

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP)—Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut consented today to wait until Thursday to decide if he should permit reopening of Sandy Point Park.

In the meantime, Negroes opposing the reopening will inspect the segregated beaches at the park which was closed several weeks ago on Judge Chesnut's order.

The judge heard the state argue today that his injunction should be lifted because the two beaches for Negroes and whites now are at least equal in standard. State officials testified the beach for Negroes actually is superior.

Francis Asher, Annapolis contractor who made improvements to the Negro beach since the park was closed, testified they are worth $66,300. It had been estimated originally that it would cost $36,100.

W. Giles Parker, assistant attorney general, proposed that the park be reopened immediately on a segregated basis until a final ruling. The Negroes refused.

Judge Chesnut had ruled earlier that the state could not operate segregated beaches unless they were equal.

Sandy Point Park, the state's only bayside recreation area, was opened last year.

Start Of Helicopter Service Faces Delay

BALTIMORE, July 7 (AP) — Air Force officials announced here today plans to begin a Baltimore-Washington helicopter service from Gen. Sam Smith Park tomorrow have been "tentatively postponed."

The first flight was scheduled to leave the waterfront park at 10 a. m. tomorrow. The Air Force said no new take-off time or date had been set.

Charles Goodyear was the first to manufacture rubber overshoes.

Fort Cumberland Post kept its record unblemished in the Mountain District, American Legion Junior Baseball League by registering its fifth victory at the expense of Farrady Post yesterday at Beall High School Field, Frostburg. The score was 15-6.

The undefeated local aggregation put the game on ice early by scoring seven runs in the first two frames and wound up the fray with a six-run outburst in the 7th stanza.

Kirtley Belts Homer

Bob Kirtley smashed a two-run homer during the first inning rally.

Cumberland collected nine hits off Bobby Blank and Hugh Nolan, four of the wallops going for extra bases including doubles by Harry Iser and Bruce Lynn and Dorcil Kline's three-base clout.

Iser went the route for the victors to post his second win of the campaign. He yielded seven hits, two of which were credited to Harris, fanned six and walked six. Nolan, who relieved Blank in the first inning, struck out ten Cumberland batsmen in 6⅔ frames.

Kirtley with three hits and Kline with two headed the Cumberland attack.

Colaw Beats Midland

Toby Colaw, diminutive 15-year-old southpaw from Crellin, pitched Grantsville Post of Garrett county to its first victory of the campaign yesterday when he turned back Midland Post with three hits in a contest at Grantsville. The score was 5-2.

Colaw struck out eight Midland stickers and gave up three singles.

D. Colaw collected two of the seven hits credited to the Grantsville team.

Tod Cuthbertson who failed to finish the first inning was charged with the defeat. Henry Lloyd finished on the mound for the 1952 district champions. Box scores:

SPORT SLANTS

Big Sports Weekend • • • Wrestling Revival?

Flopped Here In 1950 • • • Pennsy Hunting Dates

By C. V. BURNS

THIS WEEKEND in sports looms as the biggest of the 1953 season in Cumberland.

Commencing Thursday the Cumberland Country Club will be the scene of the third annual Women's Invitation Golf Tournament that will attract over 100 players, including Mrs. Maurice Glick, of Baltimore, the state's No. 1 player for many years.

Junior golfers will vie in the Jaycees' annual tournament at the Country Club Friday with the four low scorers qualifying for the state championship event at Bethesda on July 13.

On Friday evening at Penn Avenue Field, the Hot Stove League will stage its annual All-Star contest.

The sixth annual Cumberland Soap Box Derby is scheduled for Pennsylvania Avenue Saturday afternoon. Approximately 50 youngsters will battle it out for the right to represent this city in the All-American Soap Box Derby at Akron, Ohio.

As a fitting climax to the four big days is the baseball battle between Cumberland's high-riding Old Germans and the runner-up Westvaco Papermakers Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at Penn Avenue Field. Westvaco is the only team to stop the locals in 15 games this season and the Tri-Towns aggregation believes Bobby Raines can do it again.

NATIE BROWN'S visit here last week started rumors to the effect that a local organization was seriously considering sponsoring pro wrestling shows in Cumberland.

Brown, as you know, represents Washington (D. C.) wrestling intrests. He was a former grappler but before that boxed as a heavyweight. He lost a 10-round decision to Joe Louis in 1935 and in 1937 before the Brown Bomber won the title he belted out Natie in four heats at Kansas City.

We doubt very much that Cumberland will go for pro wrestling. It flopped here in the 1930s and was counted out again in 1950.

A revival was attempted here in 1949 after an absence of about 15 years. A December show drew about 600. In March 1950 less than 300 paid to see the pachyderms and the promoters were glad to get out.

Fans here are smarter than most promoters think. We have some very keen smellers among the populace.

One of the chief talking points used by outside promoters is the "benefit show" gag and some of the worst fiascos are committed in the name of charity.

PENNSYLVANIA'S hunters again will have three separate seasons in which to bag a deer this fall and they will begin the small game season on a Saturday for the first time in years.

The decision to begin the small game season Saturday, October 31 was made for the purpose of giving the working man a fairer chance to get into the fields.

The two-day season on doe is one day less than in 1952. Only 103,000 special doe licenses, necessary to hunt during the period and priced at $1.15 will be sold this year. Last year 224,000 were issued. They are good only in the county in which they are bought.

Antlered deer, Nov. 30-Dec. 12.
Antlerless deer, Dec. 14 and 15.
Archers deer, Oct. 12-24.
Small game, Oct. 31-Nov. 28.
Bear, Nov. 16-21.

THE OLD GERMANS have outscored Grantsville 82 runs to five in the four Bi-State League games the teams have played to date. The scores were 26-0, 16-0, 20-2 and 20-3.

One fan hints that they're playing Twenty or Nothing this season in the Bi-State as Westvaco also whipped Grantsville 20-0 on Saturday. The Papermakers hold a 25-2 decision over Mt. Savage.

ANSWER to local baseball fan's query:

The Pittsburgh Pirates traded Gus Bell to Cincinnati on October 14, 1952 for Cal Abrams and Gail Henley.

ROY CAMPANELLA, of the Dodgers, labeled the "Best Catcher in Baseball," is noted for his ability to grab tricky pop-ups.

The other day he thrilled Brooklyn fans with the nonchalance with which he handled a towering pop-up behind the plate. As the ball came off the bat, Campanella took one look and actually turned to chat with the umpire. In due time, he broke off the conversation and caught the ball.

"That's what I tell Yogi Berra," Campanella explained later.

"Never watch those balls going up, especially those high ones. All it does is make you dizzy. Time enough to watch 'em when they start coming down. They always do come down. No batter ever left one up there."

La Vega Is Second In Cranwood Race

La Vega, owned by Enoch Price of Frostburg finished second in the second race at Cranwood Park, Ohio, yesterday, and paid $5.20 to place and show. G. Darlington was the rider.

It marked the second time that La Vega had finished second at the Cranwood meeting.

To Play At Bedford

The Stringtown softball team of the County League will play Bedford at the Bedford (Pa.) Fair Grounds on Thursday at 6:30 o'clock.

Dick Iames' 62 Equals Course Record At CCC

Richard (Dick) Iames, assistant pro at the Bonnie View Country Club, Baltimore, equalled the course record at the Cumberland Country Club yesterday by posting a 62 while playing in a fivesome that included Don Saylor, assistant pro at Burning Tree, Bethesda; Carroll Boggs, CCC pro; Woody Harner, Hagerstown, and Judge Morgan C. Harris.

Iames, a former assistant at the local club, tied the record that is held by Joe Fungy, former CCC pro, and Carroll Boggs. "Dick" was three under par on the front side and five under on the back nine.

Boggs shot a 67, Saylor had a 68, Harner 71 and Judge Harris, who played only nine holes, turned in a 39.

A's Sink Yankees

PHILADELPHIA, July 7 (AP) — Pete Suder hit a ninth inning outfield fly with the bases loaded tonight to give the Philadelphia Athletics a 5-4 win over the New York Yankees.

It was an ironic defeat for Manager Casey Stengel of the Yanks, who said earlier today he was sorry he hadn't seen fit to pick the same Suder for his American League All Star squad.

The A's came from behind to win in the ninth, one of their few such performances this season.

Giants Take Pair

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP) — The New York Giants thrashed the Philadelphia Phillies tonight in a twi-night doubleheader, 5-3 and 9-1, behind the pitching of right-handers Marvin Grissom and Al Corwin for a sweep of the three-game series.

A surprisingly large turnout of 34,736 saw Corwin pitch his first complete game of the season in the nightcap as his mates backed him with 14 hits against rookie Thornton Kipper, Kent Peterson and Andy Hansen.

Corwin allowed six hits and helped his cause with a home run, triple and single. A three-bagger by Mel Clark in the ninth and an infield out ruined his bid for a shutout.

Iser went the route for the victors to post his second win of the campaign. He yielded seven hits, two of which were credited to Harris, fanned six and walked six. Nolan, who relieved Blank in the first inning, struck out ten Cumberland batsmen in 6⅔ frames.

Kirtley with three hits and Kline with two headed the Cumberland attack.

Big Sports Weekend • • • Wrestling Revival?

Flopped Here In 1950 • • • Pennsy Hunting Dates

By C. V. BURNS

THIS WEEKEND in sports looms as the biggest of the 1953 season in Cumberland.

Commencing Thursday the Cumberland Country Club will be the scene of the third annual Women's Invitation Golf Tournament that will attract over 100 players, including Mrs. Maurice Glick, of Baltimore, the state's No. 1 player for many years.

Junior golfers will vie in the Jaycees' annual tournament at the Country Club Friday with the four low scorers qualifying for the state championship event at Bethesda on July 13.

On Friday evening at Penn Avenue Field, the Hot Stove League will stage its annual All-Star contest.

The sixth annual Cumberland Soap Box Derby is scheduled for Pennsylvania Avenue Saturday afternoon. Approximately 50 youngsters will battle it out for the right to represent this city in the All-American Soap Box Derby at Akron, Ohio.

As a fitting climax to the four big days is the baseball battle between Cumberland's high-riding Old Germans and the runner-up Westvaco Papermakers Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at Penn Avenue Field. Westvaco is the only team to stop the locals in 15 games this season and the Tri-Towns aggregation believes Bobby Raines can do it again.

NATIE BROWN'S visit here last week started rumors to the effect that a local organization was seriously considering sponsoring pro wrestling shows in Cumberland.

Brown, as you know, represents Washington (D. C.) wrestling intrests. He was a former grappler but before that boxed as a heavyweight. He lost a 10-round decision to Joe Louis in 1935 and in 1937 before the Brown Bomber won the title he belted out Natie in four heats at Kansas City.

We doubt very much that Cumberland will go for pro wrestling. It flopped here in the 1930s and was counted out again in 1950.

A revival was attempted here in 1949 after an absence of about 15 years. A December show drew about 600. In March 1950 less than 300 paid to see the pachyderms and the promoters were glad to get out.

Fans here are smarter than most promoters think. We have some very keen smellers among the populace.

One of the chief talking points used by outside promoters is the "benefit show" gag and some of the worst fiascos are committed in the name of charity.

PENNSYLVANIA'S hunters again will have three separate seasons in which to bag a deer this fall and they will begin the small game season on a Saturday for the first time in years.

The decision to begin the small game season Saturday, October 31 was made for the purpose of giving the working man a fairer chance to get into the fields.

The two-day season on doe is one day less than in 1952. Only 103,000 special doe licenses, necessary to hunt during the period and priced at $1.15 will be sold this year. Last year 224,000 were issued. They are good only in the county in which they are bought.

Here are the dates:
Antlered deer, Nov. 30-Dec. 12.
Antlerless deer, Dec. 14 and 15.
Archers deer, Oct. 12-24.
Small game, Oct. 31-Nov. 28.
Bear, Nov. 16-21.

THE OLD GERMANS have outscored Grantsville 82 runs to five in the four Bi-State League games the teams have played to date. The scores were 26-0, 16-0, 20-2 and 20-3.

One fan hints that they're playing Twenty or Nothing this season in the Bi-State as Westvaco also whipped Grantsville 20-0 on Saturday. The Papermakers hold a 25-2 decision over Mt. Savage.

ANSWER to local baseball fan's query:

The Pittsburgh Pirates traded Gus Bell to Cincinnati on October 14, 1952 for Cal Abrams and Gail Henley.

ROY CAMPANELLA, of the Dodgers, labeled the "Best Catcher in Baseball," is noted for his ability to grab tricky pop-ups.

The other day he thrilled Brooklyn fans with the nonchalance with which he handled a towering pop-up behind the plate. As the ball came off the bat, Campanella took one look and actually turned to chat with the umpire. In due time, he broke off the conversation and caught the ball.

"That's what I tell Yogi Berra," Campanella explained later.

"Never watch those balls going up, especially those high ones. All it does is make you dizzy. Time enough to watch 'em when they start coming down. They always do come down. No batter ever left one up there."

La Vega Is Second In Cranwood Race

La Vega, owned by Enoch Price of Frostburg finished second in the second race at Cranwood Park, Ohio, yesterday, and paid $5.20 to place and show. G. Darlington was the rider.

It marked the second time that La Vega had finished second at the Cranwood meeting.

To Play At Bedford

The Stringtown softball team of the County League will play Bedford at the Bedford (Pa.) Fair Grounds on Thursday at 6:30 o'clock.

Dick Iames' 62 Equals Course Record At CCC

Richard (Dick) Iames, assistant pro at the Bonnie View Country Club, Baltimore, equalled the course record at the Cumberland Country Club yesterday by posting a 62 while playing in a fivesome that included Don Saylor, assistant pro at Burning Tree, Bethesda; Carroll Boggs, CCC pro; Woody Harner, Hagerstown, and Judge Morgan C. Harris.

Iames, a former assistant at the local club, tied the record that is held by Joe Fungy, former CCC pro, and Carroll Boggs. "Dick" was three under par on the front side and five under on the back nine.

Boggs shot a 67, Saylor had a 68, Harner 71 and Judge Harris, who played only nine holes, turned in a 39.

A's Sink Yankees

PHILADELPHIA, July 7 (AP) — Pete Suder hit a ninth inning outfield fly with the bases loaded tonight to give the Philadelphia Athletics a 5-4 win over the New York Yankees.

It was an ironic defeat for Manager Casey Stengel of the Yanks, who said earlier today he was sorry he hadn't seen fit to pick the same Suder for his American League All Star squad.

Hyndman Nine Trims LaVale Maroons, 13-2

Hyndman trounced the LaVale Maroons in a Pen-Mar Little League game yesterday at Hyndman by the score of 13-2.

Billy Feichtner slammed two homers and Willison banged a three-bagger for the winners.

Giants Take Pair

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP) — The New York Giants thrashed the Philadelphia Phillies tonight in a twi-night doubleheader, 5-3 and 9-1, behind the pitching of right-handers Marvin Grissom and Al Corwin for a sweep of the three-game series.

A surprisingly large turnout of 34,736 saw Corwin pitch his first complete game of the season in the nightcap as his mates backed him with 14 hits against rookie Thornton Kipper, Kent Peterson and Andy Hansen.

Corwin allowed six hits and helped his cause with a home run, triple and single. A three-bagger by Mel Clark in the ninth and an infield out ruined his bid for a shutout.

Burkemo Beats Torza In Final Of PGA Tourney

Michigan Pro Scores 2 And 1, Cops $5,000

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., July 7 (AP)—Burglar-bold Walter Burkemo, the people's choice, tamed the Toy Tiger with an erratic putting blade today, defeating wee Felice Torza, 2 and 1, for the 35th Professional Golfers Association championship.

The blonde belter from Franklin, Mich., only one up at the end of the morning round, ripped off the first three holes of the afternoon with some great pressure putting to put the fledgling pro from St. Charles, Ill., into a hole from which he never recovered.

The five-and-a-half foot, 135-pound Torza sprang brisk rallies twice to cut the advantage to two holes at the 24th but Burkemo applied the screws and closed the match with a par four for a half on the 35th.

The Toy Tiger — as the little Italian became known in his unexpected sweep into the finals — couldn't control his tee shots through 35 m. p. h. gusts of wind in the morning and after lunch his putting went completely sour.

On the first 18 holes over the 6,465-yard, par 1 Birmingham Country Club course Torza sprayed his tee shots into the rough seven times. On the first nine holes of the final round, he missed four putts of six feet and less.

Burkemo, four up with five to play and three up with three to go, let Torza stay alive with some erratic play. Walter went over par on the 29th, which he three-putted; the 32nd and 34th, where he hit into the rough.

The PGA is worth $5,000 in immediate cash for Burkemo, 34-year-old Detroiter who took a sound lacing from Sam Snead in the PGA finals at Oakmont, Pa., in 1951. It also gives him an automatic spot on the U. S. Ryder Cup team which meets Britain's best at Wentworth, England, in the fall.

As runnerup, Torza collects $3,000—the first big purse he ever won. A pro of less than six years, this is his first PGA.

Burkemo won the first two holes of the afternoon round with birdie putts of six and ten feet and then he made a spectacular 35-foot approach putt on the next hole, the 21st, to win with a par three. He almost holed out.

Wightman Cup Team Chosen

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—The U. S. Wightman Cup team was named today and it looks like more bad news for the England tennis girls.

The four top-ranking feminine players, Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif.; Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla.; Shirley Fry of Akron, O.; and Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., have been selected to meet the British women at the Westchester Country Club, Rye, N. Y., Aug. 1 and 2.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont, chairman of the United States Lawn Tennis Association's Wightman Cup Committee, announced the makeup of the squad.

The same four women shut out the Britons, 7-0, at Wimbledon last year. In 24 meetings since 1923, the U. S. has won 20 times and England four. The British haven't won since 1930.

St. Paul Gets PGA

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., July 7 (AP)—The 1954 Professional Golfers Association championship will be played at St. Paul, Minn., PGA President Horton Smith said today. The dates and the course on which the tournament will be played will be selected later.

Mickey Mantle Hits Mile Of Home Runs

PHILADELPHIA, July 7 (AP)—The Yankee Figger Filberts, who drag out the tape measure each time Mickey Mantle belts a homer, have figured out that the Oklahoma kid's 13 home runs have travelled a total distance of more than a mile.

The exact distance, according to their figures, is 5,508 feet, which is 228 feet more than a mile. His homers have averaged 424 feet, whether he hits them lefthanded or righthanded.

Cleveland Indians Lose Avila And Simpson

CLEVELAND, July 7 (AP) — Bob Avila will be out of the Cleveland Indians lineup for at least a week and Harry Simpson for at least three weeks, team physician Don Kelly said today.

Both the second baseman and the right fielder were hurt yesterday when they collided while chasing a fly ball during the Cleveland-Chicago White Sox game.

St. Louis Browns Release Lanier

ST. LOUIS, July 7 (AP)—Southpaw Max Lanier, a 14-year veteran of the major leagues, was given his unconditional release today by the St. Louis Browns.

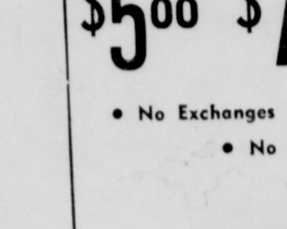

The 38-year-old pitcher was signed by the Browns last May after his release by the New York Giants. He appeared in 10 games for St. Louis, suffering a defeat in his lone decision. He has a lifetime record of 108 victories and 82 defeats and holds a 2-1 World Series record, appearing in the 1942-43-44 classics with the Cardinals.

Stanky Is Fined $50 For Remarks To Ump

CINCINNATI, July 7 (AP)—Manager Eddie Stanky of the St. Louis Cardinals was rapped for a $50 fine today for "remarks" to Umpire Tom Gorman during the July 4 doubleheader at Chicago.

The remakrs came in the ninth inning of the second game, lost by the Cards, 5-4, after St. Louis catcher Sal Yvars was chased from the game by Gorman for protesting a called second strike.

Burkemo Beats Torza In Final Of PGA Tourney

Michigan Pro Scores 2 And 1, Cops $5,000

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., July 7 (AP)—Burglar-boid Walter Burkemo, the people's choice, tamed the Toy Tiger with an erratic putting blade today, defeating wee Felice Torza, 2 and 1, for the 35th Professional Golfers Association championship.

The blonde belter from Franklin, Mich., only one up at the end of the morning round, ripped off the first three holes of the afternoon with some great pressure putting to put the fledgling pro from St. Charles, Ill., into a hole from which he never recovered.

The five-and-a-half foot, 135-pound Torza sprang brisk rallies twice to cut the advantage to two holes at the 24th but Burkemo applied the screws and closed the match with a par four for a half on the 35th.

The Toy Tiger — as the little Italian became known in his unexpected sweep into the finals — couldn't control his tee shots through 35 m. p. h. gusts of wind in the morning and after lunch his putting went completely sour.

On the first 18 holes over the 6,465-yard, par 1 Birmingham Country Club course Torza sprayed his tee shots into the rough seven times. On the first nine holes of the final round, he missed four putts of six feet and less.

Burkemo, four up with five to play and three up with three to go, let Torza stay alive with some erratic play. Walter went over par on the 29th, which he three-putted; the 32nd and 34th, where he hit into the rough.

The PGA is worth $5,000 in immediate cash for Burkemo, 34-year-old Detroiter who took a sound lacing from Sam Snead in the PGA finals at Oakmont, Pa., in 1951. It also gives him an automatic spot on the U. S. Ryder Cup team which meets Britain's best at Wentworth, England, in the fall.

As runnerup, Torza collects $3,000—the first big purse he ever won. A pro of less than six years, this is his first PGA.

Burkemo won the first two holes of the afternoon round with birdie putts of six and ten feet and then he made a spectacular 35-foot approach putt on the next hole, the 21st, to win with a par three. He almost holed out.

Wightman Cup Team Chosen

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—The U. S. Wightman Cup team was named today and it looks like more bad news for the England tennis girls.

The four top-ranking feminine players, Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif.; Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla.; Shirley Fry of Akron, O.; and Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., have been selected to meet the British women at the Westchester Country Club, Rye, N. Y., Aug. 1 and 2.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont, chairman of the United States Lawn Tennis Association's Wightman Cup Committee, announced the makeup of the squad.

The same four women shut out the Britons, 7-0, at Wimbledon last year. In 24 meetings since 1923, the U. S. has won 20 times and England four. The British haven't won since 1930.

St. Paul Gets PGA

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., July 7 (AP)—The 1954 Professional Golfers Association championship will be played at St. Paul, Minn., PGA President Horton Smith said today. The dates and the course on which the tournament will be played will be selected later.

Mickey Mantle Hits Mile Of Home Runs

PHILADELPHIA, July 7 (AP)—The Yankee Figger Filberts, who drag out the tape measure each time Mickey Mantle belts a homer, have figured out that the Oklahoma kid's 13 home runs have travelled a total distance of more than a mile.

The exact distance, according to their figures, is 5,508 feet, which is 228 feet more than a mile. His homers have averaged 424 feet, whether he hits them lefthanded or righthanded.

Cleveland Indians Lose Avila And Simpson

CLEVELAND, July 7 (AP) — Bob Avila will be out of the Cleveland Indians lineup for at least a week and Harry Simpson for at least three weeks, team physician Don Kelly said today.

Both the second baseman and the right fielder were hurt yesterday when they collided while chasing a fly ball during the Cleveland-Chicago White Sox game.

Locke Paces Qualifiers In British Open

Bobby Turns In 136, Lloyd Mangrum Ties Hogan's Score Of 145

By STERLING SLAPPEY

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, July 7 (AP)—Ben Hogan and Carnoustie's soggy championship course ran head on in the British Open golf tournament today and the seaside layout's slow and shaggy greens lofted the U. S. Open champion's score to a 75.

That 75 along with a 70 yesterday on the easier Burnside course gave the Texan a 145 total easily low enough to qualify him for the tournament proper beginning tomorrow.

Locke Is Medalist

Defending Champion Bobby Locke of South Africa, rustled up a brilliant 71, one under unofficial par at Championship, for a two-day 136 and the medal honors.

While Locke was brilliant on the greens with his putter, Hogan had poor success putting on what he called "these chewing gum greens." It is his first crack at a British Open golf title.

Hogan started out barely missing the cup on a six-foot putt at the first hole. He didn't find his usual deft touch until the 18th when he superbly stroked in a 30-footer for an eagle three.

There is one consolation—the deep greens were cut tonight in preparation for tomorrow's play. The 91 low scores qualified for rounds of 18 tomorrow and Thursday, after which the field will be reduced to 50 for Friday's 36-hole finale. The qualifying scores mean nothing in the tournament proper, which is medal play.

Locke's 136 was five strokes under the second low of 141, shot by John Panton of Scotland and Christy O'Connor of Ireland. Panton, member of the British Ryder Cup team, had a 72 today after an opening round record 69 yesterday. O'Connor, a little-known Irish pro toured the Burnside course in 68 despite a seven on the 15th hole. He had a 73 yesterday.

Qualifiers had to score 154 or better.

Lloyd Mangrum, another veteran of America's tournament circuit, shot the hottest round of the day, a 67 at the shorter Burnside course.

Such brilliance got him out of trouble since he was in bad shape yesterday after a 78. His qualifying total is a safe 145, equalling Hogan.

Toledo's Frank Stranahan held comfortably to the low amateur ranking with a 71 for a 144 total. Stranahan played Burnside today. Hogan and Locke did their work today on the "champ's" 7,200-yard sand-duned acres, with a 36-36—72 unofficial par.

Burnside is a par 71, 6,398-yarder.

WINS DEMARCEY TROPHY—Mrs. Mildred Gronbach is shown holding the DeMarcey Memorial Trophy which she won in the annual tourney held recently at the Cumberland Country Club. Mrs. Gronbach is the fourth player to gain a leg on the trophy, offered by Carroll Boggs and named in memory of Mrs. Julia MeMarcey who with her husband were formed managers of the local club. Mrs. DeMarcey died about five years ago. The 1953 winner posted an 82-25—57 to hold the trophy for one year. Past winners were Miss Elizabeth Dixon, Mrs. Fred W. Mills and Mrs. Vivian Moberly. The trophy becomes the possession of the player winning three tournaments.

Dodgers Top Pirates Twice, Break N.L. Home Run Record

Brooklyn Racks Up 5-4, 9-5 Victories

PITTSBURGH, July 7 (AP)—Booming home run bats of Gil Hodges, Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider, Preacher Roe and Billy Cox powered the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers to a 5-4 and 9-5 victories today over the last-place Pittsburg Pirates.

Hodges, Snider and Robinson smashed bases-empty homers in the first game, giving the Dodgers a new National League record of hitting at least one homer in 20 straight games.

Roe and Cox kept the Dodgers home run hitting streak intact in the second contest. Roe hit the first roundtripper of his major league career in the third and Cox belted four baggers in the seventh and eighth innings.

The old National League mark of hitting homers in consecutive games—19—was established by the New York Giants in 1947. The New York Yankees hold the major league record of 25 games.

Walcott Dropped From NBA Rating

Charles Recognized As Title Contender

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — The familiar name of Jersey Joe Walcott was missing from the summer fight ratings announced today by the National Boxing Association.

The ratings marked the end of an era in the storied history of heavyweight fighters, for the name of Walcott had been at or near the top for more than a decade.

Of the five heavyweights listed as outstanding boxers or better, only one is a hangover from the Joe Louis era. He's Ezzard Charles, the former champion rated No. 2, the only logical contender for the title held by Rocky Marciano of Brockton, Mass.

The NBA heavyweight rankings include 15 fighters, 10 of them winning honorable mention, but Walcott's name is not among them. The NBA apparently has taken Walcott at his word and decided that the ex-champ finally has retired for good.

Rated 3, 4 and 5 among the heavyweights are Roland Lastarza of New York, Dan Bucceroni of Pennsylvania and Bob Satterfield of Illinois.

Persley And Zulueta Clash At Garden

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP) — Art Persley, a hustling lightweight who has moved into the division's first ten on 12 straight victories, aims to better his ranking at Orlando Zulueta's expense in a ten-round fight at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The Negro from Red Cross, La. was moved into the No. 10 berth when he outclassed Percy Bassett, the interim featherweight champion, for his 12th consecutive triumph May 18. Zulueta of Cuba is ranked fifth.

Persley is a 2 to 1 favorite to win the network television fight. Starting at 9 p.m., EST, the bout will be telecast coast to coast by CBS.

Sugar Ray Robinson, retired middleweight boxing champion, fought as an amateur under the name of Walker Smith.

Bosox Blank Nats

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — Skinny Brown limited Washington to four hits tonight as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Senators, 2-0, to cement their hold on fourth place. Brown posted his seventh victory as Boston swept the two-game series.

Jerry Lane, recently promoted from Chattanooga, made his major league debut for the Senators and yielded only one run before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning.

Locke Paces Qualifiers In British Open

Bobby Turns In 136, Lloyd Mangrum Ties Hogan's Score Of 145

By STERLING SLAPPEY

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, July 7 (AP)—Ben Hogan and Carnoustie's soggy championship course ran head on in the British Open golf tournament today and the seaside layout's slow and shaggy greens lofted the U. S. Open champion's score to a 75.

That 75 along with a 70 yesterday on the easier Burnside course gave the Texan a 145 total easily low enough to qualify him for the tournament proper beginning tomorrow.

Locke Is Medalist

Defending Champion Bobby Locke of South Africa, rustled up a brilliant 71, one under unofficial par at Championship, for a two-day 136 and the medal honors.

While Locke was brilliant on the greens with his putter, Hogan had poor success putting on what he called "these chewing gum greens." It is his first crack at a British Open golf title.

Hogan started out barely missing the cup on a six-foot putt at the first hole. He didn't find his usual deft touch until the 18th when he superbly stroked in a 30-footer for an eagle three.

There is one consolation—the deep greens were cut tonight in preparation for tomorrow's play. The 91 low scores qualified for rounds of 18 tomorrow and Thursday, after which the field will be reduced to 50 for Friday's 36-hole finale. The qualifying scores mean nothing in the tournament proper, which is medal play.

Locke's 136 was five strokes under the second low of 141, shot by John Panton of Scotland and Christy O'Connor of Ireland. Panton, member of the British Ryder Cup team, had a 72 today after an opening round record 69 yesterday. O'Connor, a little-known Irish pro toured the Burnside course in 68 despite a seven on the 15th hole. He had a 73 yesterday.

Qualifiers had to score 154 or better.

Lloyd Mangrum, another veteran of America's tournament circuit, shot the hottest round of the day, a 67 at the shorter Burnside course.

Such brilliance got him out of trouble since he was in bad shape yesterday after a 78. His qualifying total is a safe 145, equalling Hogan.

Toledo's Frank Stranahan held comfortably to the low amateur ranking with a 71 for a 144 total. Stranahan played Burnside today. Hogan and Locke did their work today on the "champ's" 7,200-yard sand-duned acres, with a 36-36—72 unofficial par.

Burnside is a par 71, 6,398-yarder.

Mrs. Gronbach is the fourth player to gain a leg on the trophy, offered by Carroll Boggs and named in memory of Mrs. Julia MeMarcey who with her husband were formed managers of the local club. Mrs. DeMarcey died about five years ago. The 1953 winner posted an 82-25—57 to hold the trophy for one year. Past winners were Miss Elizabeth Dixon, Mrs. Fred W. Mills and Mrs. Vivian Moberly. The trophy becomes the possession of the player winning three tournaments.

Dodgers Top Pirates Twice, Break N.L. Home Run Record

Brooklyn Racks Up 5-4, 9-5 Victories

PITTSBURGH, July 7 (AP)—Booming home run bats of Gil Hodges, Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider, Preacher Roe and Billy Cox powered the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers to a 5-4 and 9-5 victories today over the last-place Pittsburg Pirates.

Hodges, Snider and Robinson smashed bases-empty homers in the first game, giving the Dodgers a new National League record of hitting at least one homer in 20 straight games.

Roe and Cox kept the Dodgers home run hitting streak intact in the second contest. Roe hit the first roundtripper of his major league career in the third and Cox belted four baggers in the seventh and eighth innings.

The old National League mark of hitting homers in consecutive games—19—was established by the New York Giants in 1947. The New York Yankees hold the major league record of 25 games.

Walcott Dropped From NBA Rating

Charles Recognized As Title Contender

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — The familiar name of Jersey Joe Walcott was missing from the summer fight ratings announced today by the National Boxing Association.

The ratings marked the end of an era in the storied history of heavyweight fighters, for the name of Walcott had been at or near the top for more than a decade.

Of the five heavyweights listed as outstanding boxers or better, only one is a hangover from the Joe Louis era. He's Ezzard Charles, the former champion rated No. 2, the only logical contender for the title held by Rocky Marciano of Brockton, Mass.

The NBA heavyweight rankings include 15 fighters, 10 of them winning honorable mention, but Walcott's name is not among them. The NBA apparently has taken Walcott at his word and decided that the ex-champ finally has retired for good.

Rated 3, 4 and 5 among the heavyweights are Roland Lastarza of New York, Dan Bucceroni of Pennsylvania and Bob Satterfield of Illinois.

Persley And Zulueta Clash At Garden

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP) — Art Persley, a hustling lightweight who has moved into the division's first ten on 12 straight victories, aims to better his ranking at Orlando Zulueta's expense in a ten-round fight at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The Negro from Red Cross, La. was moved into the No. 10 berth when he outclassed Percy Bassett, the interim featherweight champion, for his 12th consecutive triumph May 18. Zulueta of Cuba is ranked fifth.

Persley is a 2 to 1 favorite to win the network television fight. Starting at 9 p.m., EST, the bout will be telecast coast to coast by CBS.

Sugar Ray Robinson, retired middleweight boxing champion, fought as an amateur under the name of Walker Smith.

Bosox Blank Nats

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — Skinny Brown limited Washington to four hits tonight as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Senators, 2-0, to cement their hold on fourth place. Brown posted his seventh victory as Boston swept the two-game series.

Jerry Lane, recently promoted from Chattanooga, made his major league debut for the Senators and yielded only one run before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning.

Two Teachers End Careers In County

Two of Allegany County's veteran teachers have retired, Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday. They are Miss Daisy T. Cline, of Central High School, Lonaconing, and Miss Anna M. T. Webster of Allegany High School.

Miss Cline, assistant principal and head of the English Department, served as acting principal of the Lonaconing school between 1943 and 1945 after the death of Arthur F. Smith.

She was graduated from Western Maryland College in the class of 1907 with a bachelor of arts degree majoring in English.

Her postgraduate work took her to old Baltimore State College, Frostburg State Teachers College, Western Reserve, Johns Hopkins University and back to her alma mater, Western Maryland.

In September 1908, she began teaching at Barton High School. In September 1918, she transferred to Central High School where she remained until this June. During the greater part of her service at Central she was head of the English Department.

Miss Cline served on the teachers' committee for the revision of the English curriculum in Allegany County between 1941 and 1944.

Webster noted that she has been a leader in child study groups for several years.

In recent years she devoted much of her efforts to the organization and development of a school library at Central.

She was on the editing committee of the library handbook for teachers that was developed during the 1949 summer workshop of the Board of Education.

Miss Webster taught Latin at Allegany High School since 1915. She was graduated from Frostburg State Teachers College in 1904.

For several years after her graduation she taught in the elementary schools of Cumberland. She later attended Roanoke College where she received in 1910 a bachelor of arts degree in Latin and German.

In 1927 Miss Webster received her master of arts degree from Columbia University. In 1928 she attended school in Rome. In 1946, 1947 and 1948 summer sessions she attended the International Academy of Spanish at Sattilo, Mexico.

School officials note that Miss Webster has a total of 46 years teaching experience in Cumberland schools.

THE COAST GUARD CUTTER Northwind, one of the sturdiest icebreakers in the nation's fleet, calls on all available power from her six engines to break through the ice during an attempt to reach the northern section of the Bering Sea. At right is Capt. Richard E. Morrell, commander of mid-winter tests, details of which have just been revealed. With the Northwind was the Burton Island, a "breaker" in the same class. The chief objective was to pierce giant ice floes that bar the sea lanes to Nome, Alaska, during the winter. On the eastern approach, ice fields 12 feet thick blocked the progress of two ships. (International)

Two Men Tried In Court Here

Two men were tried in Allegany County Circuit Court, with one of them being sentenced to the House of Correction for six months and the other handed a suspended sentence.

James P. Allen, this city, was brought before Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris for violation of a parole He was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction.

Allen had been given a two-year suspended sentence in the April term of court when he was found guilty of a charge of breaking and entering.

One of the provisions of his parole was to refrain from drinking. Parole Officer David Steele testified that Allen has been drinking alcoholic beverages excessively in the past two months and has failed to report to the parole officer since May 23.

In the other case, Raymond J. Swach, also of this city, was given a one-year suspended term in the House of Correction when he pleaded guilty to irregularities in the performance of his duties as field supervisor for the Department of Employment Security of Maryland.

Sentence was suspended on condition that restitution be made. A certified check in full amount was presented the court by Peter J. Carpenti, attorney for the defendant.

Tractor Maintenance Suggestion Offered

Farm tractors really get a workout during the summer. With farmers working them long hours, it's easy to overlook some of the little things that will make the tractor work better and last longer.

University of Maryland extension agricultural engineer Guy W. Gienger has a tip that will save time in servicing the tractor.

An all purpose grease—one that can be used on the water pump, wheel bearings and any other place grease is needed—will speed up lubrication. One grease gun will do the whole job.

Insurance Saving Cited On Port Property

Insistence by Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan that physical properties of Municipal Airport be listed has resulted in a slight reduction in insurance rates for the city.

And City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson says the detailed report will mean an even greater saving in the future.

The engineering report on the airport came at Keegan's request after he found the listings were not correct. The report was compiled by the Philip E. Keller Agency, local insurance firm, and lists all buildings.

Photographs of each of the properties are also included, and the report is so designed that it may be supplemented as future growth demands.

Comprehensive And Brief

It includes brief descriptions of the physical characteristics of buildings, estimates of sound values and diagrams of the properties. The insurance firm said it had endeavored to make the report comprehensive as well as brief

In only one instance did the airport properties fail to get a "good" or "very good" rating as to condition. The one exception is Building No. 1—a 15-plane hangar, the condition of which was described as "fair".

Building No. 2, the administration and dwelling, is in good condition; No. 3, airplane repair shop, very good; No. 4, a hangar for six planes, office and tool room combined, good; No. 5, a Quonset hangar, very good; and No. 6, the Kelly Springfield Company hangar, very good.

The city will eventually own the Kelly hangar. It was built by and paid for by the city and is being amortized by the Kelly firm with title passing to the city when all payments are completed.

Value Is $89,000

The sound value of all the properties listed is $89,000, based on the reporting firm's estimates.

The larger hangar is estimated at $15,500; the administration and dwelling building, $12,000; the repair shop, $10,500; the six plane hangar, $15,000 quonset hangar, $16,000 and the Kelly hangar, $20,000.

Also included is a scale map of the properties showing their distances from each other.

The airport report is the first of its kind the city has attempted.

However, all the city's properties are listed for insurance purposes.

It includes brief descriptions of the physical characteristics of buildings, estimates of sound values and diagrams of the properties. The insurance firm said it had endeavored to make the report comprehensive as well as brief.

In only one instance did the airport properties fail to get a "good" or very good" rating as to condition. The one exception is Building No. 1—a 15-plane hangar, the condition of which was described as "fair".

Building No. 2, the administration and dwelling, is in good condition; No. 3, airplane repair shop, very good; No. 4, a hangar for six planes, office and tool room combined, good; No. 5, a Quonset hangar, very good; and No. 6, the Kelly Springfield Company hangar, very good.

The city will eventually own the Kelly hangar. It was built by and paid for by the city and is being amortized by the Kelly firm with title passing to the city when all payments are completed.

Value Is $89,000

The sound value of all the properties listed is $89,000, based on the reporting firm's estimates.

The larger hangar is estimated at $15,500; the administration and dwelling building, $12,000; the repair shop, $10,500; the six plane hangar, $15,000; quonset hangar, $16,000 and the Kelly hangar, $20,000.

Also included is a scale map of the properties showing their distances from each other.

The airport report is the first of its kind the city has attempted.

View Of Housing Project

This is the front view of the recently completed colored housing project on Frederick Street which is now being occupied by local residents. The three-story structure, constructed by the John I. Vandegrift Company, contains 144 rooms, including six one-bedroom apartments, 12 two-bedroom apartments, nine with three bedrooms, and three four-bedroom apartments.

Board Hears Protest On Liquor License

The Allegany County Board of License Commissioners yesterday took under advisement a decision on the remonstrance filed against the issuance of a beer license in Frostburg.

A hearing was held yesterday morning in the Court House on the petition filed against Victor Arnone for a Class D beer permit for his restaurant on Water Street, Frostburg.

The remonstrance was filed by Thomas Elias, Walter Mackay, Rev. John Bayley Jones and others. They cited three reasons against giving Arnone the license.

One was that the restaurant is 100 yards from the proposed addition to Miners Hospital, another that there are four alcoholic beverage licenses within 125 yards of Arnone's establishment, and the third that because of the condition of the road at that point a traffic hazard would result.

Edward J. Ryan, attorney for Arnone, stated that the applicant was one of 12 children, was a veteran of World War II and was an unemployed tilesetter.

Ryan explained that Arnone's mother had set him up in business not with the idea of a road house or a barroom, but an establishment that dispensed home cooked meals. He further stated Arnone lives in an apartment above the restaurant.

Rev. Jones, speaking for the remonstrants, said he was expressing the opinion of the majority of the Frostburg Ministerial Association in requesting that the license not be issued. He stated he had nothing personal against the applicant, but was against the issuance because of the reasons advanced.

Mackay told of the traffic hazard at the place, which is located on the top of the "S" curve near Miners Hospital on Route 36 in Frostburg.

Accidents Cited In Police Report

A traffic summary released yesterday by Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn shows 11 persons, including six pedestrians, were injured in motor accidents in Cumberland last month.

The report also listed one fatality. Grover C. Harman, 20, of 143 North Centre Street, who was severely burned January 28 in a truck-train crash in South End, died June 13.

A total of 25 accidents involving 44 motor vehicles caused property damage estimated at $3,613 during the 30-day period. In June, 1952, there were 33 accidents, 11 persons hurt and $5,713 property damage.

The collision summary included five pedestrians, 18 other motor vehicles, one fixed object and one bicycle.

Parking violations for June totaled 521. Fifteen violators received suspended fines and 109 cases were dismissed. The courtesy meter was used 117 times.

City police arrested 29 drivers on state charges, including five for drunken driving. No arrests were made with use of the radar speedmeter.

Local Man Hit By Truck Here

A truck hit and injured a pedestrian and then crashed against a utility pole Monday near the Park Street-Central Avenue intersection.

Donald Lee Scott, 24, of 310 Maryland Avenue, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital about 2:30 p. m. with possible injuries of the right leg and knee. His condition is satisfactory.

Police listed the driver as Juno L. Moore, 36, Wellersburg, Pa., and said he struck the pole after swerving in an effort to avoid hitting Scott. No charges were filed pending the outcome of Scott's injuries. Officer Louis D. Downey investigated.

Rolland L. Erickson, 38, RD 4, reported three persons were injured Sunday night on Route 51 near the city limits, east of Evitts Creek, when his auto skidded on a slippery curve, turned around in the road three times, hit a sign, rolled over and landed on its wheels.

Taken to Memorial Hospital after the crash were Juanita Hartman, 23, RD 4, head bruises and other injuries; Shirley Benson, 14, also of RD 4, bruises, and Marguerite Sponaugle, 20, Baltimore, injuries of the right eye, leg and hand.

County Board Gets Road Plan

The State Roads Commission has given the County Roads Department a copy of the plans of the relocation of Winchester Road.

William H. Lemmert, president of the Board of County Commissioners, turned the plans over to Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor, as the project will affect several county roads.

The State Roads Commission has advertised for bids for the work that will cover the heavily traveled three and one-half mile link between Routes 40 and 220.

The Roads Department also figured in today's meeting of the county commissioners when a delegation of seven residents along Bryce Hollow Road appeared before the board.

The property owners drew to the attention of the commissioners the frequent overflow of water on the roads in spots where there are no ditches.

The commissioners promised the delegation they would consider ditching of the road, also called the Twiggtown Road, in future plans. They noted that the road was resurfaced and patched last fall.

Bedford, Fulton County TB Groups Merge

The directors of the tuberculosis organizations of Bedford and Fulton counties have approved a resolution for the merging of the two groups to provide the greatest possible service to the two counties with the money available each year from the annual Christmas Seal sale.

It was considered that duplication of administrative detail would be eliminated by having a combined organization, and that the saving thereby effected would help to meet the increased cost of operation. Both organizations have constantly expanded their service to the public during a period when costs have risen continuously.

The new organization will be called the Bedford-Fulton Tuberculosis and Health Society. Mrs. Alice S. Cawley, who has been employed by each organization on a part-time basis, will continue as executive secretary.

Lonaconing Unit Seeks To Lease Jackson School

Request Its Use For Industrial Use

LONACONING—The Lonaconing Industrial Committee yesterday requested the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for a lease on the Jackson Street Elementary School.

The school has been abandoned and, according to state law, the deed to the building reverts to the county commissioners after the Board of Education has no other use for the structure.

The committee, according to Arthur G. Phillips, secretary, wants the two story brick building for industrial purposes.

Firms Interested

The group stated further that at the present time "we have several contacts with firms which would be intersted in locating here if buildings were available."

Already the industrial committee has brought the Tach Fast Corporation to Lonaconing, resulting in the employment of a number of residents.

The committee was formed several years ago after declining coal mine production produced a lack of jobs for the people of that area.

Definite terms for the lease could be worked out at a meeting with the county commissioners and the committee, Phillips wrote.

The industrial group desires a long-term lease to give the prospective occupant security, the secretary said.

No Present Action

The insurance on the building would be handled either by the Lonaconing group or by the industry, at an amount set by the commissioners.

The committee promised the structure would be kept in as good condition or better than when they receive it, if the commissioners decide to grant the request.

William H. Lemmert, president of the Board of County Commissioners, said no action can be taken by the commissioners at this time as the deed to the building has not been transacted.

The city council also donated $150 from the parking meter fund to Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, to help pay for the July 4 fireworks display. George Layman, post commander of the legion, said the receipts on hand to pay for the display are as follows: $134.22 left over from last year, $150 donated by the mayor and city council, and $205.38 in collections and from the sale of refreshments, making a total of $489.60. The expenses to date including $575 for the fireworks and $38.25 miscellaneous items, total $613.25, or a net loss of $123.65.

Lonaconing Unit Seeks To Lease Jackson School

Request Its Use For Industrial Use

LONACONING—The Lonaconing Industrial Committee yesterday requested the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for a lease on the Jackson Street Elementary School.

The school has been abandoned and, according to state law, the deed to the building reverts to the county commissioners after the Board of Education has no other use for the structure.

The committee, according to Arthur G. Phillips, secretary, wants the two story brick building for industrial purposes.

Firms Interested

The group stated further that at the present time "we have several contacts with firms which would be intersted in locating here if buildings were available."

Already the industrial committee has brought the Tach Fast Corporation to Lonaconing, resulting in the employment of a number of residents.

The committee was formed several years ago after declining coal mine production produced a lack of jobs for the people of that area.

Definite terms for the lease could be worked out at a meeting with the county commissioners and the committee, Phillips wrote.

The industrial group desires a long-term lease to give the prospective occupant security, the secretary said.

No Present Action

The insurance on the building would be handled either by the Lonaconing group or by the industry, at an amount set by the commissioners.

The committee promised the structure would be kept in as good condition or better than when they receive it, if the commissioners decide to grant the request.

William H. Lemmert, president of the Board of County Commissioners, said no action can be taken by the commissioners at this time as the deed to the building has not been transacted.

She has been conducting sewing classes since the Bishop Method was introduced in the school system here four years ago.

Hollywood Bowl's Top Year?

Hollywood Bowl—a musical jewel sparkling under the California stars.

By BOB J. BURANDT
Central Press Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Hollywood Bowl is sparkling more brightly than ever this year, as music lovers everywhere await the opening "Symphonies Under the Stars" concert on July 14.

This will be the 32nd annual Hollywood Bowl season, and for eight consecutive weeks the magical pianissimos and allegrettos of a wide variety of composers—ranging all the way from Beethoven, Bizet, Verdi, Mozart and Brahms to Wagner, Tschaikovsky, Strauss and Gershwin—will literally be bouncing off the peaks of the Hollywood hills.

During the two months, hundreds of thousands will stroll up the shady aisle of Pepper Tree Lane toward the Bowl.

They will take their seats in the Bowl's exclusive Garden section; the more moderate Terrace section, and the really down-to-earth-in-price (but up in the clouds in altitude!) Starlight section where you can "hear a million dollars worth of music for 50 cents."

DUSK DESCENDS, here and there a star begins twinkling overhead; the orchestra members move to their chairs. Then, as the conductor strides from the wings, the applause greeting him resounds majestically into the farthest arroyos and canyons of this world's largest natural amphitheater.

Orchestra instruments are poised; the conductor raises his baton—and, it's "Symphonies Under the Stars" at Hollywood Bowl!

However, there's more than even the usual glamor in store this year, for 1953 is Hollywood Bowl's "1,000th Concert Year," and there are going to be a thousand symbolic candles on the Bowl's "Concert Birthday Cake!"

This 1,000th concert to be played in the Bowl, since the first one way back in 1922, will be on Sept. 3. Otto Klemperer, one of the world's foremost interpreters of Beethoven, will conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra in a program of the great composer's music.

Highlight of the 1,000th concert observance will be the playing of Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 in D Minor, accompanied by the 200-voice Roger Wagner augmented chorus. Appropriate ceremonies attended by many "Bowl pioneers" and world-famous artists will help to make the occasion an unforgettable one.

THE CONCERTS scheduled this year by music director John Barnett appeal to a wide range of tastes, in keeping with the Bowl's slogan, "Music for Everybody." The opener will be conducted by the celebrated Bruno Walter, with Margaret Harshaw, Metropolitan soprano, as soloist. The final concert, by way of contrast, will feature composer-conductor Victor Young and singer Peggy Lee.

An official designation of "Hollywood Bowl International Festival of Music" has been given to the concert series. Among others, two internationally-famed composers will conduct programs—Sir William Walton of Great Britain and Heitor Villa-Lobos of Brazil.

Sir William, who is coming directly from Britain for the Bowl appearance, will conduct Aug. 13. The highlight will be the performance of Walton's cantata, Belshazzar's Feast, with Leonard Morganthaler as bass-baritone and the 200-voice Roger Wagner chorus.

As in past seasons, all concerts will be played by the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, which also plays the autumn and winter season of symphony concerts at downtown Philharmonic auditorium.

HOLLYWOOD BOWL has come a long way, but there have been a few "ups and downs" along the way. Early in its 1951 season, the Bowl closed temporarily because of financial difficulties. However, civic-minded southern Californians organized a successful campaign to put the Bowl back on its feet under a new and progressive-minded management.

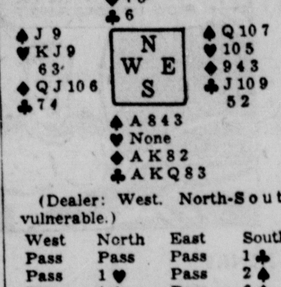

As result, the Bowl enjoyed a highly successful season in 1952, and many improvements to the property (which is owned by the county of Los Angeles and leased by the Bowl association) have been completed or are in progress. Where patrons formerly climbed a small but rather steep mountainside to reach their seats, there are now four gently sloping ramps.

Other improvements include new box seats, complete re-painting of the Bowl's 20,000 seats; a beautiful semi-circular plaza housing ticket offices, gift shops and refreshment facilities; new turnstiles; reflooring and repainting of the huge Bowl shell, and planting of hundreds of shrubs and trees.

Daily Bridge Lesson
by Shepard Barclay

PRETTY PLAY SIMPLE

SOME of the pretty plays of the game are not in the least complex or fancy. They bob up so seldom, however, or at least the chance for them, that pretty fair players are by no means certain to make use of them. One of these consists of the forcing out of a defender's high trump to ruff a side suit trick, thereby promoting a lower trump of the declarer's side into a crucial trick winner, or having that defender discard a side card while the low trump ruffs for the winning trick.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♣
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	6 ♠

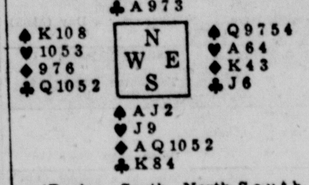

That was a good example of direct slam bidding, when information to be adduced by cue-bidding or the Blackwood convention would have been of slight value to South, in view of his void in North's hearts. The 6-Spades constituted the ideal contract, though it called for neat and careful play by the declarer, which is just what he gave it.

The diamond Q lead was won by the K, then the club K and A to prepare for a bit of ruffing in dummy. To safeguard himself against over-ruffs, he next scored the spade K and A, allowing East to retain the spade Q as the only sure winner for the defense.

Following this came the club Q, a ruff of the club 3 by the spade 5, the diamond A, ruff of the diamond 2 by the spade 6, and then the victory-gaining play of the heart Q. He had kept in his own hand the spade 8 and diamond 8. East, who was obliged to play before South, had left only the spade Q and the club J. He therefore had to offer South an option. If he discarded the club, South could ruff for the twelfth trick. If he instead used his spade Q, South could discard the diamond and then use the spade 8 to ruff East's club J. That is exactly what happened, East taking the next to last trick and South the final one.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What is the most promising card to lead in your partner's bid suit, against a 3-No Trump contract, if holding the K-10-8 of it? What factor causes you to lead differently from that than from a holding like the K-7-4 of the suit?

Diagonal lines can be used to advantage by all except the exceedingly slim. Here are guides to remember!

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

All but the exceedingly slim have something to gain from the diagonal line—and even some of them can use it to give their figures more attractive proportion.

The diagonal line relieves monotony; it leads the eye from its source to its end. It slashes large, plane surfaces, minimizing them in the eyes of the beholder.

If you have an exquisitely proportioned figure, it will detract nothing from your perfection; but, cutting from right shoulder to left hip and thence diagonally across to the right, it will give a willowy, lithesome effect to your figure that is sure to elicit admiring notice.

Perfect Proportioning

Heavy figures can drop an illusory ten pounds through this diagonal placement of lines. To prove this to yourself, put on a plain, dark dress and stand before a full-length mirror. Take a white tape measure and hold it diagonally across your chest starting from your shoulder. See how it immediately reduces the breadth of your bust? The eye can't help following the line, traversing the expanse in far less than the usual time and thereby giving the illusion of smaller space.

The same thing happens when you hold the tape from the right side of your waistline across to the lower point of your left hip. Your hips immediately appear inches smaller.

You can put this principal to work to bring hips and bust into better proportion. Select a costume with diagonal across the bust if that area is too large in proportion to your hips or one that slashes your hipline if it is outsize.

Subtler uses of the diagonal can also be employed. Consider a double-breasted effect, with two rows of buttons forming a V to the waist. Presto—the bust achieves a high, uplifted effect and the waist takes on a slimmed-down look. Slashed pockets, diagonal tucks across the abdomen, a row of buttons set in a similar line all cut hip girth.

Keep in mind, conversely, what straight lines across the figure do: A stripe or tuck straight across your chest will make it appear fuller; a similar device across the hips make your bustline appear smaller in proportion.

When you know how lines affect your figure and thoroughly understand your figure's lines, you can create the illusion of figure perfection by seeking out the clothes that compensate for any deficiencies. Figure flattery is easy when you know what to look for!

Keeping Up With Hollywood
by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 7 (INS)—That ex-bullfighter, writer of beautiful poems to beautiful women and well known actor—Mario Cabre, arrives in Hollywood in November. He's being brought from Madrid by Helen Ainsworth to do 26 TV shows.

Just in case your memory is lax, I'd like to remind you that Cabre played oposite Ava Gardner in that wonderful picture, "Pandora and the Flying Dutchman," and fell for her. Then Yvonne De Carlo went to Spain and again there were whispers of a romance with her.

Apparently these stories did Mario no harm, for he has made three successful pictures in his native Spain since he first met Ava. While here, naturally Mario will talk to the studios.

There's a fascinating story behind Jimmy McHugh's song, "I Can't Believe That You're in Love With Me." He wrote it at the beginning of his career.

Now it's staging such a vivid comeback that Stanley Kramer has chosen it as the theme song of "Caine Mutiny" with pretty May Wynn singing the number.

Interestingly enough, Sidney Mills, of the Mills Music Company, writes that this is Jimmy McHugh Week and marks his birthday and his 30th anniversary as a composer. Six hundred radio, TV and disc jockey shows will broadcast the McHugh songs nationwide, starting July 10.

Bert Friedlob, who still has "no comment" about Eleanor Parker's sudden divorce, has plenty to say about his new screen discovery, Dorian Leigh, $50,000 per year commercial model whom he'll test for "Untamed."

"This girl's just gorgeous," Bert telephoned me immediately after he planed in from New York. "She has posed for so many magazine covers and advertisements her face is already as well known as many movie stars."

It will be a very short trip to Hollywood for Miss Leigh (no relation to Janet, her real name is Parker) Immediately after the test she planes to London to pose for Cecil Beaton, photographer to royalty.

All I can say is hang on while you read this:

That much discussed oil portrait of Linda Christian Power, nude from the waist up, is going on the auction block! Also the big mural of Tyrone Power's life and career.

Arthur Goode, of the American Art Galleries, has acquired these sensational paintings for auction—and you can bet your life that the galleries will be jammed for this wingding.

How come Linda and Ty decided to dispose of these works of art? Well, maybe with a second addition expected in the family they've decided to make their art collection more conservative.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Larry Finley has two broken ribs, the result of a dive into a swimming pool.

Susan Hayward, Jess Barker and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Childress of Dallas, were at the Mocambo and later at M O P. Jess told me that he is about to make a western—three within the past few months.

Chuck Conchard, one of the best publicity men in our town, has joined Lou Smith in his independent organization. Chuck has handled some of the really big stars and has many ideas.

John Haskell brought out all the song writers plus music critics plus many stars at La Rue when he entertained in honor of Jimmy Van Heusen and Johnny Burke who wrote the score for "Carnival in Flanders."

The star, Dolores Grey, carried her toy poodle, the cutest thing I've ever seen. John Raitt, her co-star, made quite a hit with the ladies.

Dorothy Manners (Mrs. John Haskell in private life) came in from her palatial trailer at Laguna Beach. Ever since I visited her I've become trailer conscious.

Had the time of my life at Ciro's talking to Marquis, owner of the chimpanzee act. The star of the troupe lighted a cigaret for Marcella Roulette, winner of the "Miss California" contest. The grandmother chimp was being disciplined for swiping liquor off a table and they refused to let her in the act.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Bingo!

We are notifying United Nations that the commonwealth of New Jersey is determined to play bingo.

It was at Atlantic City many seasons ago that we won a plush rabbit when the buttons on our card approximated those on a well-fed vest.

New Jersey's racket connoisseurs got their meat hooks into the game and fed off second-hand trophies. First prize was usually a birdless cuckoo clock.

But New Jersey doesn't care who makes international law provided it includes bingo. It is a legend handed down by the sachem of the saxommaxon tribe. It is the motto on the banner with the strange device.

It originated as lotto. Until somebody discovered bingo was a much better battle holler. It is Geronimo on foot.

Kennel Club Holds Meeting, Sees Movie

LONACONING—The Upper Potomac Valley Kennel Club held its meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Queen City Brewing Company, Cumberland.

Plans for their annual picnic were made.

Hollywood Bowl's Top Year?

Hollywood Bowl—a musical jewel sparkling under the California stars.

By BOB J. BURANDT
Central Press Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Hollywood Bowl is sparkling more brightly than ever this year, as music lovers everywhere await the opening "Symphonies Under the Stars" concert on July 14.

This will be the 32nd annual Hollywood Bowl season, and for eight consecutive weeks the magical pianissimos and allegrettos of a wide variety of composers—ranging all the way from Beethoven, Bizet, Verdi, Mozart and Brahms to Wagner, Tschaikovsky, Strauss and Gershwin—will literally be bouncing off the peaks of the Hollywood hills.

During the two months, hundreds of thousands will stroll up the shady aisle of Pepper Tree Lane toward the Bowl.

They will take their seats in the Bowl's exclusive Garden section; the more moderate Terrace section, and the really down-to-earth-in-price (but up in the clouds in altitude!) Starlight section where you can "hear a million dollars worth of music for 50 cents."

DUSK DESCENDS, here and there a star begins twinkling overhead; the orchestra members move to their chairs. Then, as the conductor strides from the wings, the applause greeting him resounds majestically into the farthest arroyos and canyons of this world's largest natural amphitheater.

Orchestra instruments are poised; the conductor raises his baton—and, it's "Symphonies Under the Stars" at Hollywood Bowl!

However, there's more than even the usual glamor in store this year, for 1953 is Hollywood Bowl's "1,000th Concert Year," and there are going to be a thousand symbolic candles on the Bowl's "Concert Birthday Cake!"

This 1,000th concert to be played in the Bowl, since the first one way back in 1922, will be on Sept. 3. Otto Klemperer, one of the world's foremost interpreters of Beethoven, will conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra in a program of the great composer's music.

Highlight of the 1,000th concert observance will be the playing of Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 in D Minor, accompanied by the 200-voice Roger Wagner augmented chorus. Appropriate ceremonies attended by many "Bowl pioneers" and world-famous artists will help to make the occasion an unforgettable one.

THE CONCERTS scheduled this year by music director John Barnett appeal to a wide range of tastes, in keeping with the Bowl's slogan, "Music for Everybody." The opener will be conducted by the celebrated Bruno Walter, with Margaret Harshaw, Metropolitan soprano, as soloist. The final concert, by way of contrast, will feature composer-conductor Victor Young and singer Peggy Lee.

An official designation of "Hollywood Bowl International Festival of Music" has been given to the concert series. Among others, two internationally-famed composers will conduct programs—Sir William Walton of Great Britain and Heitor Villa-Lobos of Brazil.

Sir William, who is coming directly from Britain for the Bowl appearance, will conduct Aug. 13. The highlight will be the performance of Walton's cantata, Belshazzar's Feast, with Leonard Morganthaler as bass-baritone and the 200-voice Roger Wagner chorus.

As in past seasons, all concerts will be played by the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, which also plays the autumn and winter season of symphony concerts at downtown Philharmonic auditorium.

HOLLYWOOD BOWL has come a long way, but there have been a few "ups and downs" along the way. Early in its 1951 season, the Bowl closed temporarily because of financial difficulties. However, civic-minded southern Californians organized a successful campaign to put the Bowl back on its feet under a new and progressive-minded management.

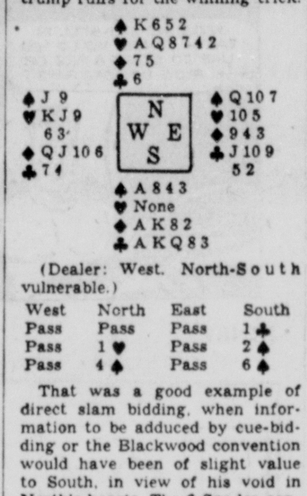

As result, the Bowl enjoyed a highly successful season in 1952, and many improvements to the property (which is owned by the county of Los Angeles and leased by the Bowl association) have been completed or are in progress. Where patrons formerly climbed a small but rather steep mountainside to reach their seats, there are now four gently sloping ramps.

Other improvements include new box seats, complete re-painting of the Bowl's 20,000 seats; a beautiful semi-circular plaza housing ticket offices, gift shops and refreshment facilities; new turnstiles; reflooring and repainting of the huge Bowl shell, and planting of hundreds of shrubs and trees.

Daily Bridge Lesson

PRETTY PLAY SIMPLE

SOME of the pretty plays of the game are not in the least complex or fancy. They bob up so seldom, however, or at least the chance for them, that pretty fair players are by no means certain to make use of them. One of these consists of the forcing out of a defender's high trump to ruff a side suit trick, thereby promoting a lower trump of the declarer's side into a crucial trick winner, or having that defender discard a side card while the low trump ruffs for the winning trick.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♣
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	6 ♠

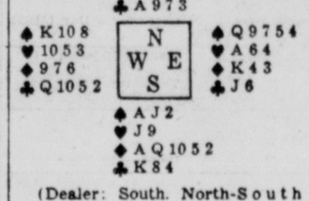

That was a good example of direct slam bidding, when information to be adduced by cue-bidding or the Blackwood convention would have been of slight value to South, in view of his void in North's hearts. The 6-Spades constituted the ideal contract, though it called for neat and careful play by the declarer, which is just what he gave it.

The diamond Q lead was won by the K, then the club K and A to prepare for a bit of ruffing in dummy. To safeguard himself against over-ruffs, he next scored the spade K and A, allowing East to retain the spade Q as the only sure winner for the defense.

Following this came the club Q, a ruff of the club 3 by the spade 5, the diamond A, ruff of the diamond 2 by the spade 6, and then the victory-gaining play of the heart Q. He had kept in his own hand the spade 8 and diamond 8. East, who was obliged to play before South, had left only the spade Q and the club J. He therefore had to offer South an option. If he discarded the club, South could ruff for the twelfth trick. If he instead used his spade Q, South could discard the diamond and then use the spade 8 to ruff East's club J. That is exactly what happened, East taking the next to last trick and South the final one.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What is the most promising card to lead in your partner's bid suit, against a 3-No Trump contract, if holding the K-10-8 of it? What factor causes you to lead differently from that than from a holding like the K-7-4 of the suit?

Diagonal lines can be used to advantage by all except the exceedingly slim. Here are guides to remember!

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

All but the exceedingly slim have something to gain from the diagonal line—and even some of them can use it to give their figures more attractive proportion.

The diagonal line relieves monotony; it leads the eye from its source to its end. It slashes large, plane surfaces, minimizing them in the eyes of the beholder.

If you have an exquisitely proportioned figure, it will detract nothing from your perfection; but, cutting from right shoulder to left hip and thence diagonally across to the right, it will give a willowy, lithesome effect to your figure that is sure to elicit admiring notice.

Perfect Proportioning

Heavy figures can drop an illusory ten pounds through this diagonal placement of lines. To prove this to yourself, put on a plain, dark dress and stand before a full-length mirror. Take a white tape measure and hold it diagonally across your chest starting from your shoulder. See how it immediately reduces the breadth of your bust? The eye can't help following the line, traversing the expanse in far less than the usual time and thereby giving the illusion of smaller space.

The same thing happens when you hold the tape from the right side of your waistline across to the lower point of your left hip. Your hips immediately appear inches smaller.

You can put this principal to work to bring hips and bust into better proportion. Select a costume with diagonal across the bust if that area is too large in proportion to your hips or one that slashes your hipline if it is outsize.

Subtler uses of the diagonal can also be employed. Consider a double-breasted effect, with two rows of buttons forming a V to the waist. Presto—the bust achieves a high, uplifted effect and the waist takes on a slimmed-down look. Slashed pockets, diagonal tucks across the abdomen, a row of buttons set in a similar line all cut hip girth.

Keep in mind, conversely, what straight lines across the figure do: A stripe or tuck straight across your chest will make it appear fuller; a similar device across the hips make your bustline appear smaller in proportion.

Keeping Up With Hollywood
by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 7 (INS)—That ex-bullfighter, writer of beautiful poems to beautiful women and well known actor—Mario Cabre, arrives in Hollywood in November. He's being brought from Madrid by Helen Ainsworth to do 26 TV shows.

Just in case your memory is lax, I'd like to remind you that Cabre played oposite Ava Gardner in that wonderful picture, "Pandora and the Flying Dutchman," and fell for her. Then Yvonne De Carlo went to Spain and again there were whispers of a romance with her.

Apparently these stories did Mario no harm, for he has made three successful pictures in his native Spain since he first met Ava. While here, naturally Mario will talk to the studios.

There's a fascinating story behind Jimmy McHugh's song, "I Can't Believe That You're in Love With Me." He wrote it at the beginning of his career.

Now it's staging such a vivid comeback that Stanley Kramer has chosen it as the theme song of "Caine Mutiny" with pretty May Wynn singing the number.

Interestingly enough, Sidney Mills, of the Mills Music Company, writes that this is Jimmy McHugh Week and marks his birthday and his 30th anniversary as a composer. Six hundred radio, TV and disc jockey shows will broadcast the McHugh songs nationwide, starting July 10.

Bert Friedlob, who still has "no comment" about Eleanor Parker's sudden divorce, has plenty to say about his new screen discovery, Dorian Leigh, $50,000 per year commercial model whom he'll test for "Untamed."

"This girl's just gorgeous," Bert telephoned me immediately after he planed in from New York. "She has posed for so many magazine covers and advertisements her face is already as well known as many movie stars."

It will be a very short trip to Hollywood for Miss Leigh (no relation to Janet, her real name is Parker) Immediately after the test she planes to London to pose for Cecil Beaton, photographer to royalty.

All I can say is hang on while you read this:

That much discussed oil portrait of Linda Christian Power, nude from the waist up, is going on the auction block! Also the big mural of Tyrone Power's life and career.

Arthur Goode, of the American Art Galleries, has acquired these sensational paintings for auction—and you can bet your life that the galleries will be jammed for this wingding.

How come Linda and Ty decided to dispose of these works of art? Well, maybe with a second addition expected in the family they've decided to make their art collection more conservative.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Larry Finley has two broken ribs, the result of a dive into a swimming pool.

Susan Hayward, Jess Barker and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Childress of Dallas, were at the Mocambo and later at M O P. Jess told me that he is about to make a western—three within the past few months.

Chuck Conchard, one of the best publicity men in our town, has joined Lou Smith in his independent organization. Chuck has handled some of the really big stars and has many ideas.

John Haskell brought out all the song writers plus music critics plus many stars at La Rue when he entertained in honor of Jimmy Van Heusen and Johnny Burke who wrote the score for "Carnival in Flanders."

The star, Dolores Grey, carried her toy poodle, the cutest thing I've ever seen. John Raitt, her co-star, made quite a hit with the ladies.

Dorothy Manners (Mrs. John Haskell in private life) came in from her palatial trailer at Laguna Beach. Ever since I visited her I've become trailer conscious.

Had the time of my life at Ciro's talking to Marquis, owner of the chimpanzee act. The star of the troupe lighted a cigaret for Marcella Roulette, winner of the "Miss California" contest. The grandmother chimp was being disciplined for swiping liquor off a table and they refused to let her in the act.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Baering Down On The News

Bingo!

We are notifying United Nations that the commonwealth of New Jersey is determined to play bingo.

It was at Atlantic City many seasons ago that we won a plush rabbit when the buttons on our card approximated those on a well-fed vest.

New Jersey's racket connoisseurs got their meat hooks into the game and fed off second-hand trophies. First prize was usually a birdless cuckoo clock.

But New Jersey doesn't care who makes international law provided it includes bingo. It is a legend handed down by the sachem of the saxommaxon tribe. It is the motto on the banner with the strange device.

It originated as lotto. Until somebody discovered bingo was a much better battle holler. It is Geronimo on foot.

Kennel Club Holds Meeting, Sees Movie

LONACONING—The Upper Potomac Valley Kennel Club held its meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Queen City Brewing Company, Cumberland.

An obedience training movie entitled "Training You To Train Your Dog," directed by Blanche Saunders, author of the well-known book by the same title, was shown.

Plans for their annual picnic were made.

Inaction In The Afternoon

"Action In The Afternoon" is a real live horse opera which spreads enlightenment up and down the coaxial cable to your small fry and mine every afternoon (Monday through Friday) at 3:30 p. m. EDT. (CBS - TV). This is the first real live horse opera to come along since Billy Rose got those damned elephants out of the Hippodrome back in 1936.

John Crosby

Well, I suppose "Jumbo" was more of an elephant opera than a horse opera, but never mind. "Action In The Afternoon" is a noteworthy television "first" and it's just possible it may be a television last. I can't imagine any one else trying it. It emanates from Philadelphia, a city which also spawned the Declaration of Independence, so we mustn't be too harsh on it.

Anyhow, in "Action In The Afternoon," real live stagecoaches drawn by real live horses come pelting up to the village store, scattering real live dust all over real live actors. (Well, I don't know that "actors" is quite the word for them. Real live people, anyhow). When the villain goes galumphing off into the sunset, it's a real live sunset. (The sun sets real early in Philadelphia, didn't you know?).

As horse operas go, this is an exceedingly complex one. I stem from the Hopalong Cassidy school where plots are relatively simple. In that school, there's Hopalong and just one villain who is trying to drive the widow off her land so he can drill for oil. Of course, the villain may have a gang, but you don't have to worry about them. They're just faces.

But in "Action In The Afternoon," everyone is mixed up in skullduggery of some sort either as victims or villains. This necessitates an inordinate amount of explanation from everyone as to just what he's doing there.

One guy blew into town and promptly announced: "My name is Iron Hat Sullivan. I'm from little old New York. I'm from the Five Points Gang and proud of it. I'm looking for fights—fist fights that is."

Another guy who arrived on the same stage coach lost no time in explaining that he had come to town only to turn a dishonest dollar, specifically to buy up copper stock, glut the stock market with it and then buy it back cheap. Even with all this explanation, you are likely to get mighty confused as to who is up to what. Consequently, at the end of each episode, you hear something like this:

"So now the fight is set between the blacksmith and Iron Hat and Lily LaMott spins her web around the unsuspecting Jack Valentine. Tune in again tomorrow."

When you do tune in again tomorrow, you are likely to find that nobody has progressed very far in any direction, again you get that narrator: "Folks in Hubberly (the name of the town) think they're living on a volcano. Who killed Ed Kennedy? And who is going to get the map to the gold mine? And whose gun fired the bullet that creased the sheriff?"

That's a little too much plot for my simple skull. And even with all that plot they take their time about it. It seems like everyone has time, between killings, for a drink of whisky or maybe sassafras tea. When they ain't a'drinkin' whisky, they're pulling up the poker table. Incidentally, they play pretty bum poker. One man bet right into the teeth of a pat hand. Now, what sort of thing is that to be teaching young impressionable boys? Check, you fool!

The dialogue is appropriately laconic:

"Money in it?"

"Yup, there's money in it."

"Talk to you later."

As I say, they're great at postponing things on this show. Even with all the delays, the mortality rate is tremendous. Besides poor old Ed Kennedy and the creased sheriff, the last time I looked, a man named Savage shot to death a man who was languishing in jail (for what reason I have no idea) and instantly was shot to death himself by his own partner (for what reason I have no idea). Bodies all over the place.

W. Va. Treasurer Undergoes Operation

West Virginia's state treasurer, W. H. Ansel, Jr., of Springfield, is a patient in Memorial Hospital where he underwent emergency major abdominal surgery Sunday.

The West Virginia official was visiting his home over the July Fourth holiday when stricken Friday. He was taken to Memorial Hospital on Saturday, according to his mother, Mrs. W. H. Ansel.

Hospital officials said his condition is good.

Ansel, 39, a Democrat, was appointed state treasurer in 1949, elected treasurer for the unexpired term of the late Richard E. Talbott in the 1950 general election and re-elected in last year's balloting. His term is for four years. He is a lawyer and has also been a member of the House of Delegates from Hampshire County and assistant attorney general of West Virginia.

Inaction In The Afternoon

"Action In The Afternoon" is a real live horse opera which spreads enlightenment up and down the coaxial cable to your small fry and mine every afternoon (Monday through Friday) at 3:30 p. m. EDT. (CBS - TV). This is the first real live horse opera to come along since Billy Rose got those damned elephants out of the Hippodrome back in 1936.

John Crosby

Well, I suppose "Jumbo" was more of an elephant opera than a horse opera, but never mind. "Action In The Afternoon" is a noteworthy television "first" and it's just possible it may be a television last. I can't imagine anyone else trying it. It emanates from Philadelphia, a city which also spawned the Declaration of Independence, so we mustn't be too harsh on it.

Anyhow, in "Action In The Afternoon," real live stagecoaches drawn by real live horses come pelting up to the village store, scattering real live dust all over real live actors. (Well, I don't know that "actors" is quite the word for them. Real live people, anyhow). When the villain goes galumphing off into the sunset, it's a real live sunset. (The sun sets real early in Philadelphia, didn't you know?).

As horse operas go, this is an exceedingly complex one. I stem from the Hopalong Cassidy school where plots are relatively simple. In that school, there's Hopalong and just one villain who is trying to drive the widow off her land so he can drill for oil. Of course, the villain may have a gang, but you don't have to worry about them. They're just faces.

But in "Action In The Afternoon," everyone is mixed up in skullduggery of some sort either as victims or villains. This necessitates an inordinate amount of explanation from everyone as to just what he's doing there.

One guy blew into town and promptly announced: "My name is Iron Hat Sullivan. I'm from little old New York. I'm from the Five Points Gang and proud of it. I'm looking for fights—fist fights that is."

Another guy who arrived on the same stage coach lost no time in explaining that he had come to town only to turn a dishonest dollar, specifically to buy up copper stock, glut the stock market with it and then buy it back cheap. Even with all this explanation, you are likely to get mighty confused as to who is up to what. Consequently, at the end of each episode, you hear something like this:

"So now the fight is set between the blacksmith and Iron Hat and Lily LaMott spins her web around the unsuspecting Jack Valentine. Tune in again tomorrow."

When you do tune in again tomorrow, you are likely to find that nobody has progressed very far in any direction, again you get that narrator: "Folks in Hubberly (the name of the town) think they're living on a volcano. Who killed Ed Kennedy? And who is going to get the map to the gold mine? And whose gun fired the bullet that creased the sheriff?"

That's a little too much plot for my simple skull. And even with all that plot they take their time about it. It seems like everyone has time, between killings, for a drink of whisky or maybe sassafras tea. When they ain't a'drinkin' whisky, they're pulling up the poker table. Incidentally, they play pretty bum poker. One man bet right into the teeth of a pat hand. Now, what sort of thing is that to be teaching young impressionable boys? Check, you fool!

The dialogue is appropriately laconic:

"Money in it?"

"Yup, there's money in it."

"Talk to you later."

As I say, they're great at postponing things on this show. Even with all the delays, the mortality rate is tremendous. Besides poor old Ed Kennedy and the creased sheriff, the last time I looked, a man named Savage shot to death a man who was languishing in jail (for what reason I have no idea) and instantly was shot to death himself by his own partner (for what reason I have no idea). Bodies all over the place.

W. Va. Treasurer Undergoes Operation

West Virginia's state treasurer, W. H. Ansel, Jr., of Springfield, is a patient in Memorial Hospital where he underwent emergency major abdominal surgery Sunday.

The West Virginia official was visiting his home over the July Fourth holiday when stricken Friday. He was taken to Memorial Hospital on Saturday, according to his mother, Mrs. W. H. Ansel.

Hospital officials said his condition is good.

Ansel, 39, a Democrat, was appointed state treasurer in 1949, elected treasurer for the unexpired term of the late Richard E. Talbott in the 1950 general election and re-elected in last year's balloting. His term is for four years. He is a lawyer and has also been a member of the House of Delegates from Hampshire County and assistant attorney general of West Virginia.

REPLICA OF FAMED BASILCA OF ST. PETER TOURS U. S.

Lucio Savoia explains fine points of the replica of St. Peter's basilica to Cardinal Stritch, other clergy and laymen, in Chicago.

By LUCIA PERRIGO
Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper

BROWSING through a Rome bookstore one day, a bespectacled gentleman with a white goatee, adjusted his glasses more securely and excitedly thumbed through a sheaf of blueprints of French design, purporting to depict actual construction plans for the Basilica of St. Peter in Rome.

Attilio Savoia, Italy's foremost model maker, was fired with a fantastic dream—to construct a replica of the center of Christianity in Vatican City to be sent on a world tour to afford millions the opportunity to see one of the architectural gems of the ages.

Enlisting the aid of his son, Lucio, an architect, the elder Savoia began to put the dream to work and devoted five years to research and construction, re-creating the great Basilica which was begun in 1453 by Pope Nicola V. The result, which many thousands are seeing as it tours the United States currently, is an authentic scale model, weighing three tons, composed of 400,000 pieces of wood carved entirely by hand, 140 statues, glimmering lights, running fountains.

IT IS EIGHT feet high, 15 feet long, and is approximately one-one hundredth the size of the real basilica. The beholder is entranced by the church, the courtyard and the whole Vatican area, the cathedral bells that ring when a sound tape is operated to recreate the actual bells of St. Peter's.

Attilio Savoia and Lucio, in undertaking research for the project, discovered there were no existing plans of the structure of Vatican City. They combed the universities and libraries of Europe. But in vain.

So, to create a set of plans, the Savoias spent three years climbing every single part of the basilica, using cameras and measuring rods to piece together a complete set of plans. After thousands of notes, sketches and figures of the interior of the church had been assembled, they started the hand carving which took two years, and their life savings.

They used beech, birch and cirmolo to depict the stone and marble portions of the church. They copied the basilica even to its identical colorings, including gray weather markings. Whenever metal was used in the church, the same metal was used in the Savoia replica—the fountains in bronze, the lights in brass, the protective shields of the dome in lead.

ON SEPT. 2 of the Holy Year, 1950, the Savoias presented to Pope Pius XII their work of love and art for his blessing and the wonderment of pilgrims to Rome that year.

Today, Americans may see in the Savoia replica the artistry of Bramante, Michaelangelo and Bernini, masters of the Renaissance who created the basilica 500 years ago.

Bramante is credited with the design of the original basilica in the shape of a Grecian cross. Actual work on the cathedral was begun in 1506, but 120 years elapsed before the consecration of the new basilica in 1626.

The genius that was Michaelangelo's is evident in the giant cupola. From 1657 to 1664 Bernini completed the Colonnade of the Square of St. Peter with its 284 marble columns, 88 pillars, and 140 statues representing the popes, saints and the founders of the religious orders. These all have been faithfully depicted by the Savoias.

Lucio Savoia, who is accompanying the exhibit, has had the superb satisfaction of seeing a dream live and of affording Americans, who may never get to visit Rome, to see the glory of the basilica that has stood for centuries—a monument to beauty and man's devotion to his God.

Market Continues To Rise Following Ragged Opening

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP) — The Stock Market displayed improvement today after a ragged start and closed with its fifth straight advance.

Steels and motors were the first to start the upward movement, and they pulled in the railroads, utilities, chemicals, and most other major sections of the list.

Business picked up markedly as prices advanced with total volume crossing the million mark. It came to 1,030,000 shares as compared with 820,000 shares traded yesterday. The total still is well below the daily average so far this year.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 50 cents at $108.90. That means the average has regained more than half of the loss suffered in the recent big drop that started in the latter part of May.

With today's rise of 50 cents, the industrial component of the average was up 70 cents, the railroads up 40 cents, and the utilities up 20 cents.

The list expanded to 1,099 individual issues. That compares with 1,003 issues on the tape yesterday. Of the total, 521 issues advanced and 277 declined with 7 new highs and 21 new lows for the year registered during the session.

New York Central Railroad, which was yesterday's second most active issue, topped the list today with a gain of ⅛ at 25 with 31,500 shares traded.

It was followed by American Power & Light unchanged at 2½, American Telephone up ⅛ at 154, Pacific Western Oil off 1 at 35¾, and Pennsylvania Railroad up ⅛ at 21⅞.

Kerensky Warns West

MUNICH, Germany, July 7 (AP)—Alexander Kerensky, last Premier of the Russian republic before the Communist revolution, today warned the West against being deceived by the Kremlin's latest peace offensive.

"With or without Stalin," he told the Munich Academic-Political Club, "the Kremlin's ultimate aim remains world revolution."

"The tactics have been changed in a move of cynical opportunism, but the strategy remains the same."

REPLICA OF FAMED BASILCA OF ST. PETER TOURS U. S.

Lucio Savoia explains fine points of the replica of St. Peter's basilica to Cardinal Stritch, other clergy and laymen, in Chicago.

By LUCIA PERRIGO
Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper

BROWSING through a Rome bookstore one day, a bespectacled gentleman with a white goatee, adjusted his glasses more securely and excitedly thumbed through a sheaf of blueprints of French design, purporting to depict actual construction plans for the Basilica of St. Peter in Rome.

Attilio Savoia, Italy's foremost model maker, was fired with a fantastic dream—to construct a replica of the center of Christianity in Vatican City to be sent on a world tour to afford millions the opportunity to see one of the architectural gems of the ages.

Enlisting the aid of his son, Lucio, an architect, the elder Savoia began to put the dream to work and devoted five years to research and construction, re-creating the great Basilica which was begun in 1453 by Pope Nicola V. The result, which many thousands are seeing as it tours the United States currently, is an authentic scale model, weighing three tons, composed of 400,000 pieces of wood carved entirely by hand, 140 statues, glimmering lights, running fountains.

IT IS EIGHT feet high, 15 feet long, and is approximately one-one hundredth the size of the real basilica. The beholder is entranced by the church, the courtyard and the whole Vatican area, the cathedral bells that ring when a sound tape is operated to recreate the actual bells of St. Peter's.

Attilio Savoia and Lucio, in undertaking research for the project, discovered there were no existing plans of the structure of Vatican City. They combed the universities and libraries of Europe. But in vain.

So, to create a set of plans, the Savoias spent three years climbing every single part of the basilica, using cameras and measuring rods to piece together a complete set of plans. After thousands of notes, sketches and figures of the interior of the church had been assembled, they started the hand carving which took two years, and their life savings.

They used beech, birch and cirmolo to depict the stone and marble portions of the church. They copied the basilica even to its identical colorings, including gray weather markings. Whenever metal was used in the church, the same metal was used in the Savoia replica—the fountains in bronze, the lights in brass, the protective shields of the dome in lead.

ON SEPT. 2 of the Holy Year, 1950, the Savoias presented to Pope Pius XII their work of love and art for his blessing and the wonderment of pilgrims to Rome that year.

Today, Americans may see in the Savoia replica the artistry of Bramante, Michaelangelo and Bernini, masters of the Renaissance who created the basilica 500 years ago.

Bramante is credited with the design of the original basilica in the shape of a Grecian cross. Actual work on the cathedral was begun in 1506, but 120 years elapsed before the consecration of the new basilica in 1626.

The genius that was Michaelangelo's is evident in the giant cupola. From 1657 to 1664 Bernini completed the Colonnade of the Square of St. Peter with its 284 marble columns, 88 pillars, and 140 statues representing the popes, saints and the founders of the religious orders. These all have been faithfully depicted by the Savoias.

Lucio Savoia, who is accompanying the exhibit, has had the superb satisfaction of seeing a dream live and of affording Americans, who may never get to visit Rome, to see the glory of the basilica that has stood for centuries—a monument to beauty and man's devotion to his God.

Kerensky Warns West

MUNICH, Germany, July 7 (AP)—Alexander Kerensky, last Premier of the Russian republic before the Communist revolution, today warned the West against being deceived by the Kremlin's latest peace offensive.

"With or without Stalin," he told the Munich Academic-Political Club, "the Kremlin's ultimate aim remains world revolution."

"The tactics have been changed in a move of cynical opportunism, but the strategy remains the same."

Market Continues To Rise Following Ragged Opening

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP) — The Stock Market displayed improvement today after a ragged start and closed with its fifth straight advance.

Steels and motors were the first to start the upward movement, and they pulled in the railroads, utilities, chemicals, and most other major sections of the list.

Business picked up markedly as prices advanced with total volume crossing the million mark. It came to 1,030,000 shares as compared with 820,000 shares traded yesterday. The total still is well below the daily average so far this year.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 50 cents at $108.90. That means the average has regained more than half of the loss suffered in the recent big drop that started in the latter part of May.

With today's rise of 50 cents, the industrial component of the average was up 70 cents, the railroads up 40 cents, and the utilities up 20 cents.

The list expanded to 1,099 individual issues. That compares with 1,003 issues on the tape yesterday. Of the total, 521 issues advanced and 277 declined with 7 new highs and 21 new lows for the year registered during the session.

New York Central Railroad, which was yesterday's second most active issue, topped the list today with a gain of ⅛ at 25 with 31,500 shares traded.

It was followed by American Power & Light unchanged at 2½, American Telephone up ⅛ at 154, Pacific Western Oil off 1 at 35¾, and Pennsylvania Railroad up ⅛ at 21⅞.

Position Of Treasury

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—The position of the Treasury July 3:

Net budget rcpts $112,290,155.29, budget $4,783,686,693.38, budget rcpts fiscal yr July 1 $514,065,945.16, budget expenditures fiscal yr $981,848,770.21, budget deficit $467,782,825.05, total debt $266,446,833,461.07, gold assets $22,437,854,569.48.

AUSTRIAN-BORN Francesca Rhee (above), small but powerful wife of President Syngman Rhee, is said to be fully behind Rhee's stubborn and dangerous fight to unify all of Korea regardless of the projected armistice. Her influence on Rhee, many years her senior, long has been a subject of much speculation. (International)

Savage River Dam Is Turned Over To Upper Potomac Board

Area Commission Will Operate Project

The Upper Potomac River Commission has taken over from the Corps of Engineers the operation and maintenance of the Savage River Dam.

The commission, at a meeting here yesterday, formally adopted a resolution which turned over to the commission, effective July 1, the huge earth-fill reservoir which impounds some 6½ billion gallons of water from the turbulent Savage River in Garrett County.

Present at the meeting were all members of the commission, John J. McMullen, chairman, Owen E. Hitchins, treasurer, the Allegany County representatives, and Lawrence M. Fraley, who represents Garrett County on the commission.

McMullen yesterday received from Governor McKeldin his commission as a reappointed member of the commission and took his oath of office from Clerk of Circuit Court Joseph E. Boden. He has been on the commission since 1939.

Offer Technical Aid

The Corps of Engineers, operating the dam for the commission since it was completed late in 1951, will continue to offer technical aid to the commission, which will be in full charge of operations.

Officials said the dam, designed to regulate the flow of the North Branch of the Potomac River and to help reduce the danger of floods in this area, will be operated according to a manual which has been prepared by the Corps of Engineers.

Julian G. Patrick, Westernport, is supervisory engineer for the Savage River Dam.

The dam which the commission yesterday accepted from the government was begun in 1939, interrupted by World War II, and completed late in 1951 at a cost of over $6,000,000.

The huge reservoir impounds 6½ billion gallons of water, covers 405 acres and receives water from a watershed of about 100 miles.

The primary purpose of the Savage River Dam, officials said, is to regulate the flow of the North Branch by maintaining a flow of 60,000,000 gallons of water a day at Luke.

In times of heavy runoff, the dam is used to hold back as much as possible of the excess water and release it in periods of low water.

A secondary purpose is to reduce pollution from industrial sources and sanitary sewage.

The commission, which was set up by the 1935 General Assembly, operates the dam from funds provided by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

Aids River Flow

That the dam is fulfilling another of its purposes—to provide water for industrial expansion along the North Branch of the Potomac, is shown by the current report of the Geological Survey.

The federal agency said 30 per cent of the water now flowing past Cumberland comes from the Savage River Dam.

The West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, which has undertaken an expansion program as a result of the assurance of a steady water supply, reports that 75 per cent of the water in the river at Luke is coming from the dam.

The Savage River Dam, however, is only an auxiliary source, as the paper firm receives about five million gallons of water a day from its Stoney River Dam in Grant County, which impounds about two billion gallons of water.

Funds Are Secured

The original Upper Potomac River Commission was composed of George W. Legge, chairman, then Mayor of Cumberland; Owen E. Hitchins, treasurer, and George Warnick, the Garrett County member.

Legge resigned the post in the fall of 1939 to become attorney and secretary of the commission, and McMullen was named to fill the unexpired term.

Some time later, Mr. Warnick died and was succeeded by Fraley.

All members of the commission serve without pay.

The huge reservoir would not have been possible but for two factors, the commission said.

The first was the issuance of $1,000,000 in bonds by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners as the county's share in the work, which began as a WPA project back in 1939.

Five Teachers Resign To Take Other Positions

Music Instructors Leaving County

One of W. Valgene Routch's first jobs as new supervisor of music education in the Allegany County public schools will be to find suitable replacements for a number of music teachers who have resigned here to accept employment elsewhere.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said yesterday that five music teachers have resigned in the county since schools closed last month, for various and unrelated reasons.

Miss Nancy Lee Lawyer, 325 Maryland Avenue, Westernport, who has been a special music teacher in the lower end of the county for the past two years, is leaving to accept a position in Baltimore County.

Morris C. O'Neill, Winifred Road, junior high school music teacher at Allegany High School the past two years, is another resigning teacher. He has not yet informed the Board of Education where he plans to teach next year.

Miss Marilyn Ashbaugh, 217 Union Street, who taught music at Mt. Savage High School the past year after five previous years at Fort Hill High School, also has resigned. She plans to accept employment in Chicago but not in the field of music teaching.

John C. Meerbach, 403 Washington Street, who has taught music at Beall High School in Frostburg the past year, is returning to Stratford, Conn., his home town, to take a teaching job.

Martin E. Weisman, RFD 6, Bowling Green, who has been the string instrumental music teacher in county schools the last three years, is resigning to take a job in another state.

Request For SRC Funds In Paving Job Gets Backing

The city has asked the State Roads Commission to consider a proposal by Frederick Street residents that the state pay half of the cost of linking the East Side street into the Maryland highway system.

Present tentative plans call for improving the thoroughfare and converting it into a one-way northbound street from Mechanic Street to the city limits. Bedford Street would become one way southbound.

The work, cost of which has been estimated at $500,000, would be done under the Federal Urban Aid Program, which means the federal government would pay half the cost. The State Roads Commission wants the city and the property owners along the route to bear the other half of the cost.

But the Frederick Street Improvement Association this week asked the city to endorse a resolution adopted by the association, which recommends that the state bear Cumberland's share of the expenses.

The Mayor and Council, at a meeting Monday, ordered a copy of the resolution sent to the SRC. City Attorney Thomas B. Finan wrote that the Council had "indicated definite interest" in the proposal, and asked the SRC to explore the possibility of using state money.

George R. Hughes Jr., attorney for the improvement association, said the property owners felt that the state should bear the expense because the cost of the project would be higher than if the street were to be a residential street, and because heavy traffic would mean higher maintenance costs.

Under the method of financing suggested by the property owners, the state would pay the 50 per cent of the construction cost now tentatively delegated to the city and the property owners, and would shoulder all the cost of future maintenance.

Weather

An official high of 89 degrees was recorded at Constitution Park for the second straight day yesterday but a lowering of the humidity made the day pleasant and fair following a weekend of oppressive heat. Low for the day was 70 and at 8:30 last night the thermometer read 80 degrees. Humidity was recorded at 39.5 per cent. Today's prediction is fair with slightly cooler temperatures.

Buser To Head Land Week Here

Emphasis Placed On Shore Counties

Floyd Buser of Oldotwn, president of the Allegany County Farm Bureau, will serve as chairman again this year of the committee planning this county's observance of the fourth annual Maryland Land Week starting Sunday, August 9.

His election featured a meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of County Agent Ralph F. McHenry, where tentative plans for the observance were mapped.

Committee Members

Other members of the Land Week committee are Albert O'Neal, this city, chairman of the PMA Committee; Harry Hartman of Flintstone, assistant district forester; R. W. Ferguson of Union Grove, chairman of the Allegany Soil Conservation District Supervisors, and Dale Arner of Frostburg, representative of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission. Martin M. Gordon, soil conservation aid, and McHenry will serve as advisory members of the committee.

McHenry explained that the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, State Department of Forests and Parks, State Game and Inland Fish Commission, and the State Extension Service are cooperating in offering to show films and provide other programs for Allegany County service clubs interested in learning something of Maryland Land Week and the importance of wise use of soil.

In past years service clubs, 4-H groups, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and rural ministers have taken part in the program.

Upper Eastern Shore

This year the Maryland Land Week observance will be highlighted by activities in the five counties in the Upper Eastern Shore.

A special program has been arranged in a different county each day, Monday through Friday, of Land Week. Forestry management and spot drainage will be featured Monday, August 10, in Cecil County, where a conducted tour of the Elk Neck State Forest is in the day's activities.

Soil conservation and farm ponds will be stressed Tuesday, August 11, Kent County. Drainage ditches will get special attention in Queen Anne's County Wedneesday, August 12.

In Talbot County on Thursday, August 13, the emphasis will be on historic points with a highlight being a visit to the Wye Oak, the oldest and largest white oak in American, estimated to be about 400 years old. The Talbot County tour also will take in the Old Wye Church, built in 1721, one of the oldest existing church buildings in Maryland.

Also on the Talbot County tour is a visit to the Third Haven Meeting House in Easton, the oldest Friends meeting house in continuous use in America. William Penn spoke in this building in 1700.

Finally, the Maryland Land Week emphasis will be concentrated on Caroline County Friday, August 14. Governor Theodore R. McKeldin is scheduled for an address there.

600 Will Take Swim Classes At Park Pool

At least 500 youngsters and another 100 adults are expected to receive swimming instruction at the Constitution Park pool this summer, according to Robert E. Pence, recreation director.

Two classes are being held each morning at the pool for children registered on the city's 16 playgrounds. Classes for adults are being held in the evenings.

Pence said the program has been enlarged this year, since classes are larger and a full hour of instruction is being offered. He said at least 500 youngsters are slated to get beginners and advanced swimming training.

Class Is Planned

A class for adults, which got underway recently, has been so popular, Pence said, that another course will be offered beginning July 14.

Instruction is also being given in the morning for a class of about 65 from Mt. Savage.

The swimming instruction is being given by Paul Stickley, a Red Cross swimming instructor, and William Steppe, Donald Stine, Michael Smith and Gerald Arthur, lifeguards at the pool. Adult courses are being taught by James Hines.

Dr. Lookenott, who had practiced here 47 years, died June 22. His brief will left all of his real and personal property to his wife, Mrs. Frances M. Lookenott, RFD 1, LaVale. The will was so brief it did not even name an executor of the estate.

Mrs. Lookenott qualified as administrator c.t.a. of the estate under a $2,000 bond.

Salvation Army Girls Attend Summer Camp

County To Seek Additional Data On School Loans

May Be Cheaper To Borrow Funds

After William H. Lemmert, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, and Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County public schools, conferred yesterday afternoon concerning ways and means of financing the school construction program, they decided to ask for applications in order to borrow state money if the interest rate proves advantageous.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, has informed Webster that Allegany County is entitled to borrow up to $3,963,000 from the General Public School Construction Loan. This money for school construction was authorized last winter by the General Assembly.

The annual levy list for Allegany County for the fiscal year which started July 1 includes a $105,000 item as the estimated cost of the proposed $1,500,000 School Bond Issue including interest.

Although the commissioners have the authority to issue $1,500,000 in bonds, Lemmert believes it would be unbusinesslike to issue them if that amount is not needed within the next 12 months for school construction.

Last month the County Board of Education awarded contracts for the first two projects in a five-year $3,500,000 building program but these two jobs total only $91,776. They are a new Lincoln Elementary School for Negroes in Frostburg and an addition to McCoole Elementary School.

These two jobs plus funds for the purchase of land for the new LaVale Elementary School and the land for the new high school in Westernport will still only take about $150,000, Webster estimates.

If the commissioners decide that it will be cheaper for the county to borrow from the state rather than issue its own bonds they will be in position to do so if they make application for a state loan.

Emery Bus Line Sale Is Again Deemed Illegal

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 7 (AP)—The Berkeley County Circuit Court was directed again today to set aside as illegal a 1949 sale of Emery's Motor Coach Line Inc.

At the same time, the Supreme Court directed Circuit Judge Decatur H. Rodgers to restore to the docket of his court a suit brought by Emery interests against Mellon National Bank and Trust Co. of Pittsburgh, and others.

The Emery firm was indebted, in October 1949, to the bank in an amount of $85,300. One of three trustees named in a deed securing payment of the indebtedness subsequently sold the coach line's property to the bank for $79,000.

Later, the bank sold the property to Potomac Coach Lines for $85,289.12 and $315.30 interest.

The Supreme Court last year set aside the sale by the trustee on the ground that sufficient and reasonable notice of sale was not given and only one of the three trustees was present at the sale.

While the appellate judges were hearing the appeal, the Berkeley circuit court entered a judgment of $9,436.38 against Emery and on behalf of the bank this amount apparently was ascertained as the difference between the bank's bid at the property sale and the total amount of indebtedness due the bank from Emery.

Cyclists Injured On Dingle Hill

Two youths who reside in Homewood Addition were in "good" condition last night at Sacred Heart Hospital, where they were admitted for observation about 3:10 p. m. with injuries sustained when they fell from a motorcycle on Dingle Hill.

David Folk, 16, operator of the cycle, sustained cuts about the right arm and elbow, while James Harden, 15, suffered numerous cuts about both elbows and leg, attaches reported.

Maryland State Police reported the accident occured about 20 feet south of the city limits on Route 220 as the youths were traveling toward Cumberland.

Police said Folk was traveling at a "high rate of speed" and as he applied the brakes of the front wheel the cycle went out of control and plunged into an embankment.

Investigating the mishap is Trooper J. F. Lewis.

Three Local Residents Now Members Of RC Gallon Club

Three local men yesterday afternoon became the first members of the "Gallon Club" as each gave his eighth pint of blood during the monthly visit of the Red Cross Mobile Unit at the Eagles Home on North Mechanic Street.

They are Lewis Griggs, a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employe, Perry Ambrose, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company worker, who are neighbors on Brookfield Avenue, and Robert H. Mann, an employe of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Pinto, who resides on Cumberland Street.

Mrs. Harry Beneman, chairman of the Allegany County Chapter of the American Red Cross, last night said failure of a number of residents to keep their appointments resulted in only 115 pints of a quota of 150 pints of blood being collected.

A total of 243 persons were scheduled to donate blood but many failed to show up. There were also 33 persons rejected. Many of yesterday's donors, Mrs. Beneman noted, were "walk-ins."

During the visit of the mobile unit in Lonaconing on Monday a total of 64 pints of blood was collected. The next visit of the unit from Johnstown, Pa., will be on August 3 when it will be here at the Eagles Home from noon to 6 p. m.

On the following day the unit will visit Westernport and will be located at the home of Victory Post, American Legion from noon to 8 p. m.

Fred Hillegas Places First In Post Playground Show

Fred Hillegas, 17, of 38 Mary Street, last night took top honors in the talent show held at Thomas S. Post Playground.

He sang, "Golden Hair," which he composed, and played his own accompaniment on the accordion. The youth will represent the playlot at the intra-city talent show tomorrow night at the amphitheater in Constitution Park.

Last year and in 1951 he was runner-up in the city-wide competition. Second place winner last night was Sharon Berry, 7, who did a tap dance. Both were presented loving cups by William B. Orndorff, president of the playground association and master of ceremonies during the show.

Other participants were Larry Grove, 6, who sang "Little Ducky Donald," Norman Brode, 3, who recited "Porky The Pig," Miss Vicki Reynolds, 5, who sang, "Your Cheating Heart," and Carmen Bishop who also sang.

Today at 11 a. m. baton lessons will be given by Mary Frances DeLuca, a majorette of Fort Hill High School. And from noon to 2 p. m. a picnic will be held with soft drinks furnished by the association. Children are asked to bring their own lunch.

Judges last night were Rev. Kenneth Grove, Nancy Meese and Bertie Soulsby. Following the show movies were shown and a movie is also scheduled for Thursday night at dusk.

Savage River Dam Is Turned Over To Upper Potomac Board

Area Commission Will Operate Project

The Upper Potomac River Commission has taken over from the Corps of Engineers the operation and maintenance of the Savage River Dam.

The commission, at a meeting here yesterday, formally adopted a resolution which turned over to the commission, effective July 1, the huge earth-fill reservoir which impounds some 6½ billion gallons of water from the turbulent Savage River in Garrett County.

Present at the meeting were all members of the commission, John J. McMullen, chairman, Owen E. Hitchins, treasurer, the Allegany County representatives, and Lawrence M. Fraley, who represents Garrett County on the commission.

McMullen yesterday received from Governor McKeldin his commission as a reappointed member of the commission and took his oath of office from Clerk of Circuit Court Joseph E. Boden. He has been on the commission since 1939.

Offer Technical Aid

The Corps of Engineers, operating the dam for the commission since it was completed late in 1951, will continue to offer technical aid to the commission, which will be in full charge of operations.

Officials said the dam, designed to regulate the flow of the North Branch of the Potomac River and to help reduce the danger of floods in this area, will be operated according to a manual which has been prepared by the Corps of Engineers.

Julian G. Patrick, Westernport, is supervisory engineer for the Savage River Dam.

The staff for the huge dam will include Francis D. Glass, head dam tender, who lives on the site; Albert F. Howard, Bloomington, assistant dam tender, and Harry Bittinger, who lives in the area, helper.

The dam which the commission yesterday accepted from the government was begun in 1939, interrupted by World War II, and completed late in 1951 at a cost of over $6,000,000.

The huge reservoir impounds 6½ billion gallons of water, covers 405 acres and receives water from a watershed of about 100 miles.

The primary purpose of the Savage River Dam, officials said, is to regulate the flow of the North Branch by maintaining a flow of 60,000,000 gallons of water a day at Luke.

In times of heavy runoff, the dam is used to hold back as much as possible of the excess water and release it in periods of low water.

A secondary purpose is to reduce pollution from industrial sources and sanitary sewage.

The commission, which was set up by the 1935 General Assembly, operates the dam from funds provided by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

Aids River Flow

That the dam is fulfilling another of its purposes—to provide water for industrial expansion along the North Branch of the Potomac, is shown by the current report of the Geological Survey.

The federal agency said 30 per cent of the water now flowing past Cumberland comes from the Savage River Dam.

The West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, which has undertaken an expansion program as a result of the assurance of a steady water supply, reports that 75 per cent of the water in the river at Luke is coming from the dam.

The Savage River Dam, however, is only an auxiliary source, as the paper firm receives about five million gallons of water a day from its Stoney River Dam in Grant County, which impounds about two billion gallons of water.

Funds Are Secured

The original Upper Potomac River Commission was composed of George W. Legge, chairman, then Mayor of Cumberland; Owen E. Hitchins, treasurer, and George Warnick, the Garrett County member.

Legge resigned the post in the fall of 1939 to become attorney and secretary of the commission, and McMullen was named to fill the unexpired term.

Some time later, Mr. Warnick died and was succeeded by Fraley.

All members of the commission serve without pay.

The huge reservoir would not have been possible but for two factors, the commission said.

The first was the issuance of $1,000,000 in bonds by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners as the county's share in the work, which began as a WPA project back in 1939.

Five Teachers Resign To Take Other Positions

Music Instructors Leaving County

One of W. Valgene Routch's first jobs as new supervisor of music education in the Allegany County public schools will be to find suitable replacements for a number of music teachers who have resigned here to accept employment elsewhere.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said yesterday that five music teachers have resigned in the county since schools closed last month, for various and unrelated reasons.

Miss Nancy Lee Lawyer, 325 Maryland Avenue, Westernport, who has been a special music teacher in the lower end of the county for the past two years, is leaving to accept a position in Baltimore County.

Morris C. O'Neill, Winifred Road, junior high school music teacher at Allegany High School the past two years, is another resigning teacher. He has not yet informed the Board of Education where he plans to teach next year.

Miss Marilyn Ashbaugh, 217 Union Street, who taught music at Mt. Savage High School the past year after five previous years at Fort Hill High School, also has resigned. She plans to accept employment in Chicago but not in the field of music teaching.

John C. Meerbach, 403 Washington Street, who has taught music at Beall High School in Frostburg the past year, is returning to Stratford, Conn., his home town, to take a teaching job.

Martin E. Weisman, RFD 6, Bowling Green, who has been the string instrumental music teacher in county schools the last three years, is resigning to take a job in another state.

Request For SRC Funds In Paving Job Gets Backing

The city has asked the State Roads Commission to consider a proposal by Frederick Street residents that the state pay half of the cost of linking the East Side street into the Maryland highway system.

Present tentative plans call for improving the thoroughfare and converting it into a one-way northbound street from Mechanic Street to the city limits. Bedford Street would become one way southbound.

The work, cost of which has been estimated at $500,000, would be done under the Federal Urban Aid Program, which means the federal government would pay half the cost. The State Roads Commission wants the city and the property owners along the route to bear the other half of the cost.

But the Frederick Street Improvement Association this week asked the city to endorse a resolution adopted by the association, which recommends that the state bear Cumberland's share of the expenses.

The Mayor and Council, at a meeting Monday, ordered a copy of the resolution sent to the SRC. City Attorney Thomas B. Finan wrote that the Council had "indicated definite interest" in the proposal, and asked the SRC to explore the possibility of using state money.

George R. Hughes Jr., attorney for the improvement association, said the property owners felt that the state should bear the expense because the cost of the project would be higher than if the street were to be a residential street, and because heavy traffic would mean higher maintenance costs.

Under the method of financing suggested by the property owners, the state would pay the 50 per cent of the construction cost now tentatively delegated to the city and the property owners, and would shoulder all the cost of future maintenance.

Weather

An official high of 89 degrees was recorded at Constitution Park for the second straight day yesterday but a lowering of the humidity made the day pleasant and fair following a weekend of oppressive heat. Low for the day was 70 and at 8:30 last night the thermometer read 80 degrees. Humidity was recorded at 39.5 per cent. Today's prediction is fair with slightly cooler temperatures.

Buser To Head Land Week Here

Emphasis Placed On Shore Counties

Floyd Buser of Oldotwn, president of the Allegany County Farm Bureau, will serve as chairman again this year of the committee planning this county's observance of the fourth annual Maryland Land Week starting Sunday, August 9.

His election featured a meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of County Agent Ralph F. McHenry, where tentative plans for the observance were mapped.

Committee Members

Other members of the Land Week committee are Albert O'Neal, this city, chairman of the PMA Committee; Harry Hartman of Flintstone, assistant district forester; R. W. Ferguson of Union Grove, chairman of the Allegany Soil Conservation District Supervisors, and Dale Arner of Frostburg, representative of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission. Martin M. Gordon, soil conservation aid, and McHenry will serve as advisory members of the committee.

McHenry explained that the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, State Department of Forests and Parks, State Game and Inland Fish Commission, and the State Extension Service are cooperating in offering to show films and provide other programs for Allegany County service clubs interested in learning something of Maryland Land Week and the importance of wise use of soil.

In past years service clubs, 4-H groups, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and rural ministers have taken part in the program.

Upper Eastern Shore

This year the Maryland Land Week observance will be highlighted by activities in the five counties in the Upper Eastern Shore.

A special program has been arranged in a different county each day, Monday through Friday, of Land Week. Forestry management and spot drainage will be featured Monday, August 10, in Cecil County, where a conducted tour of the Elk Neck State Forest is in the day's activities.

Soil conservation and farm ponds will be stressed Tuesday, August 11, Kent County. Drainage ditches will get special attention in Queen Anne's County Wedneesday, August 12.

In Talbot County on Thursday, August 13, the emphasis will be on historic points with a highlight being a visit to the Wye Oak, the oldest and largest white oak in American, estimated to be about 400 years old. The Talbot County tour also will take in the Old Wye Church, built in 1721, one of the oldest existing church buildings in Maryland.

Also on the Talbot County tour is a visit to the Third Haven Meeting House in Easton, the oldest Friends meeting house in continuous use in America. William Penn spoke in this building in 1700.

Finally, the Maryland Land Week emphasis will be concentrated on Caroline County Friday, August 14. Governor Theodore R. McKeldin is scheduled for an address there.

AFL Engineers To Hear Report On Wage Talks

Members of Local 37-B, Operating Engineers Union (AFL), will hear a report on the progress of wage negotiations at a meeting Saturday at 7:30 p. m. in Dairy Workers Hall, according to Harry Hickle, business agent.

The report on the wage talks will be presented by the newly elected state officers, James McLaren, president; Peter Bittinger, business agent, and William Kicker, assistant business agent, all of Baltimore.

Wages in the Cumberland area, Hickle said, are set up from Baltimore, under the state-wide agreement negotiated by the Operating Engineers Union.

Local 37-B, the Cumberland area unit of the union, has about 175 members.

The union has asked a 25-cent across-the-board increase for its members in Maryland. Current wages are $3 an hour for crane operators, $2.12½ for bulldozer operators, $2.35 for compressor operators and $2.35 for pump operators.

Three Local Residents Now Members Of RC Gallon Club

Three local men yesterday afternoon became the first members of the "Gallon Club" as each gave his eighth pint of blood during the monthly visit of the Red Cross Mobile Unit at the Eagles Home on North Mechanic Street.

They are Lewis Griggs, a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employe, Perry Ambrose, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company worker, who are neighbors on Brookfield Avenue, and Robert H. Mann, an employe of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at Pinto, who resides on Cumberland Street.

Mrs. Harry Beneman, chairman of the Allegany County Chapter of the American Red Cross, last night said failure of a number of residents to keep their appointments resulted in only 115 pints of a quota of 150 pints of blood being collected.

A total of 243 persons were scheduled to donate blood but many failed to show up. There were also 33 persons rejected. Many of yesterday's donors, Mrs. Beneman noted, were "walk-ins."

During the visit of the mobile unit in Lonaconing on Monday a total of 64 pints of blood was collected. The next visit of the unit from Johnstown, Pa., will be on August 3 when it will be here at the Eagles Home from noon to 6 p. m.

On the following day the unit will visit Westernport and will be located at the home of Victory Post, American Legion from noon to 6 p. m.

Mrs. Lookenott qualified as administrator c.t.a. of the estate under a $2,000 bond.

County To Seek Additional Data On School Loans

May Be Cheaper To Borrow Funds

After William H. Lemmert, president of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, and Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County public schools, conferred yesterday afternoon concerning ways and means of financing the school construction program, they decided to ask for applications in order to borrow state money if the interest rate proves advantageous.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, has informed Webster that Allegany County is entitled to borrow up to $3,963,000 from the General Public School Construction Loan. This money for school construction was authorized last winter by the General Assembly.

The annual levy list for Allegany County for the fiscal year which started July 1 includes a $105,000 item as the estimated cost of the proposed $1,500,000 School Bond Issue including interest.

Although the commissioners have the authority to issue $1,500,000 in bonds, Lemmert believes it would be unbusinesslike to issue them if that amount is not needed within the next 12 months for school construction.

Last month the County Board of Education awarded contracts for the first two projects in a five-year $3,500,000 building program but these two jobs total only $91,776. They are a new Lincoln Elementary School for Negroes in Frostburg and an addition to McCoole Elementary School.

These two jobs plus funds for the purchase of land for the new LaVale Elementary School and the land for the new high school in Westernport will still only take about $150,000, Webster estimates.

If the commissioners decide that it will be cheaper for the county to borrow from the state rather than issue its own bonds they will be in position to do so if they make application for a state loan.

Emery Bus Line Sale Is Again Deemed Illegal

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 7 (AP)—The Berkeley County Circuit Court was directed again today to set aside as illegal a 1949 sale of Emery's Motor Coach Line Inc.

At the same time, the Supreme Court directed Circuit Judge Decatur H. Rodgers to restore to the docket of his court a suit brought by Emery interests against Mellon National Bank and Trust Co. of Pittsburgh, and others.

The Emery firm was indebted, in October 1949, to the bank in an amount of $85,300. One of three trustees named in a deed securing payment of the indebtedness subsequently sold the coach line's property to the bank for $79,000.

Later, the bank sold the property to Potomac Coach Lines for $85,289.12 and $315.30 interest.

The Supreme Court last year set aside the sale by the trustee on the ground that sufficient and reasonable notice of sale was not given and only one of the three trustees was present at the sale.

While the appellate judges were hearing the appeal, the Berkeley circuit court entered a judgment of $9,436.38 against Emery and on behalf of the bank this amount apparently was ascertained as the difference between the bank's bid at the property sale and the total amount of indebtedness due the bank from Emery.

Two youths who reside in Homewood Addition were in "good" condition last night at Sacred Heart Hospital, where they were admitted for observation about 3:10 p. m. with injuries sustained when they fell from a motorcycle on Dingle Hill.
